SENATOR RUNS ON RECORD; NEW SHIFT BY DEMOCRATS

Aim Is to Win War and to Preserve U. S. System.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]
(Picture on page 3.)

Washington, D. C., Feb. 3.—Offering himself as a public servant committed to the dual objective of winning the war and preserving the American form of government, Sen. Wayland Brooks [R., Ill.], today formally announced his candidacy for return to the United States senate.

In a letter addressed to the voters of Illinois, Brooks reviewed his record in the senate, emphasizing that while he had resisted efforts to involve the country in war he had fought for the strongest possible national defense and that when the nation was attacked he had voted to declare war on our enemies.

Future Will Be Difficult.

"No living person," said Brooks, "can, with certainty, predict the future; but, we know the future days will be more dark and difficult than any we have yet experienced as we prepare for and fight an all-out war on all the seas and on all the fronts of the world against the most formidable and treacherous foes in all the world's history.

"We must have unity, and yet we must vigorously maintain our two-party system to save our form of government as we forge thru the desperate days and experiences that lie ahead.

"While some speak now of the peace that will follow, we must realize that the peace will be written by the victors, and our course and task must be to win the war and preserve our form of government. Then we can write the peace—one in which America will, no doubt, play a leading rôle in the future welfare of humanity."

Copies to State Chairmen.

Copies of Brooks' letter were sent to all downstate county chairmen and precinct committeemen. Petitions to place the senator's name on the ballot for the April 14 primary will be circulated in Cook county thru the ward and township organizations.

In reviewing his record in the senate Brooks said in his statement:

"I appreciate the opportunity of presenting myself and my candidacy to the voters of Illinois, asking for your continued confidence, with the full knowledge and firm conviction that I have faithfully kept my pledges to the people of our great state.

Resisted Foreign War.

"From the day I took my oath of office in November, 1940, I have used my every effort to demand and develop the strongest possible national defense for our country. I also resisted with equal energy what was apparent to me to be a persistent effort to involve us in a foreign war.

"When our country was attacked by Japan and war had been declared upon us by Germany and Italy, I voted to accept that challenge and attack and voted to declare war on them.

"In every way I held to the course outlined by the Republican party, and to the promises which I personally made to the people of Illinois who elected me as their representative in the United States senate.

Heard Appeals for Funds.

"As your senator, I was assigned to serve on the all-important appropriations committee, the interstate commerce committee, and the committees dealing with claims, pensions, and interoceanic canals.

"As a member of the important appropriations subcommittee I had opportunity to hear all testimony concerning requests for the vast sums of money appropriated for the department of agriculture, independent offices, the war department, and all deficiency needs, including the navy. This gave me an opportunity to ques-

Way Paved to Place Rep. McKeough on Ticket.

A complete list of the candidates indorsed yesterday by the Cook county Republican and Democratic central committees is on page 2.

BY PERCY WOOD.

Congressman Raymond S. McKeough of the 2d district [south side] seemed to be as close as any Democrat to the senatorial nomination last night after both parties had selected their county tickets for the April 14 primary. Democratic slatemakers put their local choices over with their county committee without an opposing vote, while the Republicans found only one dissenter—Committeeman Felix F. Kucharski of the 12th ward, who said more Polish-Americans should have been placed on the G. O. P. list.

McKeough's name was pushed forward for the Democratic senatorial nomination when Ald. William A. Rowan [10th] was unanimously indorsed for McKeough's seat in the national house of representatives by all ward committeemen in the district.

Plans to File Saturday.

"I'll file my petition Saturday, the first possible day," Rowan said, "and so, I understand, will McKeough. If he stays in the race for the house, I'll withdraw, but if he withdraws to run for some other office, I'll stay in."

Thus was written the latest chapter in the perplexing senatorial situation, which is complicated by the possible candidacy of Mayor Kelly, the announcement of State's Attorney Courtney that he would run if indorsed by the organization, and the potential candidacies of Ald. Paul H. Douglas [5th] and Benjamin S. Adamowski.

Secondary highlights at the Democratic committee's meeting in the Morrison hotel were the dumping of Judge Thomas A. Green from the Municipal court slate and of Emmett Whealan from the board of tax appeals. Green was displaced in favor of Congressman Harry P. Beam of the 4th district, who is in trouble with the Polish elements in his territory.

Gorski Named for Congress.

As a candidate for congress in Beam's place, the district committeemen picked Attorney Martin Gorski, 3145 South Morgan street, an old timer in the party. Another Democratic congressman was also moved—A. F. Maciejewski of the 6th district. He was shifted to the sanitary district board to make room for Sheriff Thomas J. O'Brien as a candidate for congress.

No official reason was given for the dropping of Judge Green, but several committeemen said unofficially that it was because of his ebullient conduct both on and off the bench. Green rose to protest against the committee's action, but Chairman P. A. Nash ruled him out of order.

Whealan did not appear during the deliberations, and it was reported that he plans to retire to his chicken farm. His Democratic colleague on the board, Paul Drymalski, did not seek renomination.

Clayton Smith Reslated.

In general, the Democratic organization reslated its top officeholders, including Clayton F. Smith, president of the county board, who drew some heat last week. Peter B. Carey, candidate for sheriff, is a new figure, but is already a prominent figure in in the business world, having been president of the Board of Trade. Wendell Green, who was given the Sheffler vacancy on the Municipal bench, is a well known colored lawyer and a member of the city civil service commission.

Three comparative newcomers in the political field were slated for big jobs on the Republican ticket—Charles O. Rundall, former president of the state bar association, for county judge; Chief Leo Carr of Gov. Dwight Green's state police, for sheriff, and Samuel L. Workman, 42d ward committeeman, for county treasurer. Workman is assistant director of the state department of finance.

A Business Man Describes His Arms Contract Hunt in Capital

The Tribune has received the following letter from a business man describing his experiences seeking arms contracts in Washington, D. C.:

"WASHINGTON MADHOUSE."

"As I stood on the corner one morning and watched a surging mass of uniforms and dresses converging upon two low but tremendously wide buildings fronting on Constitution avenue, I suddenly realized how unimportant one insignificant sales manager can be.

"The day before I had caught a Pennsylvania crack flyer from Chicago and headed toward the nation's capital, where, despite many advices to the contrary, I hoped to do business with Uncle Sam. I represented an aviation accessory concern and the army and navy were crying for firms to sell them real necessities; that was the story as we heard it in the middle west.

Bundles Make Him Suspect.

"Caught in the surging mass, I was swept across the street and before I knew it I was in the munitions building of the war department. Since I carried a brief case and a package of one of our pet accessories the first soldier who saw me hustled up to the inspection desk where my case and package were checked, and all the photographs counted and stamped. Then I was sent over to a big desk where girls waited to give you passes upstairs.

"My first surprise came when a young lady curtly asked me with whom I had an appointment. I told her I had none except letters from a certain major whom I wanted to see. Nothing doing—I had to have an appointment and would have to call him up and get one. When I asked where the phones were I was then told more curtly that I had to call from the outside, so I was given a pass to go out and get myself to a telephone.

Finds Navy More Obliging.

"Being far from a phone and closer to the Navy building, which was next door, I decided to spare my steps and try there before going back uptown to find a phone. Just why the navy and army have to be so different I don't know, but the examiner inspected my case much more efficiently and friendly and then directed me to the desk. I asked to see a certain department and the girl called, made an appointment, gave me a badge, and away I went—feeling much better. The lieutenant commander with whom I talked was entirely friendly, heard my story, and then took me to see another lieutenant commander, who was equally kind.

"All that morning I spent in the Navy building, being guided from office to office by the men themselves and treated with the utmost courtesy. They were sympathetic if they weren't interested, frank, and above all, coöperative.

Calls War Department.

"After being shoved almost flat in a jammed restaurant and waiting until after 1 o'clock, I called the war department and got my party. They made an appointment for me and I hastened back to take advantage of the break. After going thru the same thing I had that morning [and I don't blame them for being careful at all—they have to be], I was given an escort and sent up to see my man. After waiting some 40 minutes I was ushered into his presence and started to tell my story. However, I never finished it.

"'You're talking to the wrong man,' he exclaimed. 'I haven't time to see you—go see Lieut. So-and-So.'

"When I asked him where that was he told me to ask the girl at the desk—and, frankly, not in a very friendly tone. The girl told me where

NAZI SHIPS BOMBED BY BRITISH 109 TIMES MAY RAID SEAS AGAIN

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Feb. 3.—Despite consistent Royal air force attacks, the German warships Scharnhorst, Gneisenau, and possibly the Prinz Eugen may be preparing to slip out of the Brest docks to resume surface raiding on the Atlantic, in the opinion of naval observers here.

British planes raided the docks in Brest in which the German warships were being sheltered 109 times during the last 10 months, including 12 times during the last month, but their failure to destroy or even seriously damage them is attributed by experts to the difficulty of hitting the ships below the water line.

One raider which attempted to overcome the problem by skimming over the dock wall and dropping a torpedo in direct line with the ship, was brought down and its occupants killed.

DERIDES EXCUSE FOR FBI FAILURE IN HAWAII RAID

Truman Says Bureau Was Tapping Wires.

BY CHESLY MANLY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 3.—Sen. Harry S. Truman [D., Mo.] told the senate today that the failure of the Federal Bureau of Investigation to catch Japanese spies in Hawaii and ascertain plans for the surprise attack last Dec. 7 was not due to peacetime restrictions on the interception of telephone and other communications, notwithstanding the contrary finding of the Roberts commission.

Sen. Barkley.

Directly impugning the excuses made by Director J. Edgar Hoover's FBI and accepted by the Roberts commission, Sen. Truman said that "a study of the record will show that wire tapping and interception of messages were fully practiced prior to the attack on Pearl Harbor."

Assails Attack on Wheeler.

Sen. Truman, who is chairman of an interstate commerce subcommittee on wire tapping legislation, took the floor to denounce published accusations that Sen. Burton K. Wheeler [D., Mont.], chairman of the interstate commerce committee, blocked legislation to authorize wire tapping by the FBI and hence was partly responsible for the Pearl Harbor disaster.

The Missouri senator's speech resulted in general senate condemnation of a smear campaign now being conducted by New Deal gossip columnists and radio commentators against members of congress who opposed the administration's foreign policy before the war. Not only Sen. Truman but other prewar supporters of the administration's foreign policy, denounced the smear campaign against the former noninterventionists.

Barkley Calls Charge Stupid.

Senate Majority Leader Alben W. Barkley of Kentucky said he had not heard "of anybody stupid enough to think that the debacle at Pearl Harbor was caused by the failure of congress to pass wire tapping legislation."

Barkley implored his fellow senators not to be distressed by "the little pin pricks" of "irresponsible" radio commentators and gossip columnists.

"I desire to say publicly," he added, "and I am not ashamed or afraid to say it, that without regard to any senator's position on our foreign policy prior to our entry into the war all of them have coöperated and are now coöperating and I have no doubt will continue to coöperate in the enactment of whatever legislation is necessary to win the war, and win it as promptly and effectively as possible."

Guam Enters Controversy.

Barkley precipitated a controversy on another subject when he expressed the opinion that the attack on Pearl Harbor might have been averted by the fortification of Guam. He professed to find support for this position in a radio address last Saturday night by Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.

"I do not have very frequent occasion to quote Col. McCormick here," Barkley said, "but I will say about him that he has a good radio voice and he deals logically with the subject he discusses. He has been discussing in a series of Saturday addresses over the radio the question of our national defense and he has much information about the geographical distribution of islands and defenses all over the world.

"Whether one agrees with him or

A comprehensive two section color map of Java appears on the back page of today's Tribune. Adapted from a Dutch map, it is the most detailed map of this rich island of the Netherlands Indies ever widely distributed in America. With the Japanese striking at Java, which is described in a story on page 6, readers are advised to retain this map for further reference in respect to the war in Australasian waters.

In all issues of tomorrow's Tribune will appear another of the series of famous news photos in color—the sinking of the Vestris.

DIGEST OF DAY'S NEWS FROM ALL FIGHTING FRONTS

Latest war developments on all battle fronts:

The United States navy disclosed that a battalion of marines and bluejackets is fighting alongside Gen. MacArthur's defenders of the Philippines on Luzon Island. No other details were given. The navy also announced that a motor torpedo boat had penetrated Manila bay and "is believed to have torpedoed an enemy warship."

The navy department's communique revealed that an enemy submarine had sunk one of its tankers, the U. S. S. Neches, in an undesignated area. One hundred twenty-six crewmen reached port safely, with 56 men unaccounted for, the navy said.

MacArthur Counterattacks.

The war department declared that MacArthur's troops had beaten back two Japanese attempts to land behind the American-Filipino lines on Bataan peninsula. The army communique added that a counterattack by MacArthur's forces had overrun three lines of Jap trenches.

Dispatches from Singapore told of new attacks by Japanese bombers. Many fires were reported set off by the explosives. The British again assaulted with big guns the Japanese massed in southern Malaya along the strait of Johore, a mile wide stretch of water separating Singapore from the mainland.

A British army communique issued at Rangoon said British forces had clashed with Japanese invaders of Burma 30 miles north of Moulmein, which is in the hands of the enemy.

Bomb Java Naval Base.

From the Netherlands East Indies came word that 26 Japanese bombers had wrought great destruction at Soerabaja, big naval base on the Island of Java. Surrounding airdromes also were reported to have been attacked. The first big air raid on Java came a day after American bombers were credited with sinking two and perhaps three more Japanese transports off Borneo.

The British command in Africa announced that its armored columns had struck counterblows southeast of the abandoned Libyan port of Bengazi. The British were said to be attempting to maintain control of the inland short cut across the Libyan hump and to lighten axis pressure on retreating Indian troops.

A Red army communique said its troops were stabbing toward Smolensk, 230 miles west of Moscow. Smolensk was described as a German anchor city. The Reds claimed that German reserve troops had been unable to stem the soviet advance. They also reported they were filtering into the Ukraine between the Donetz and Dnieper rivers.

SAILORS, FLYERS HELP M'ARTHUR SMASH LANDING

Navy's Communique

Washington, D. C., Feb. 3 (AP).—A communique issued by the navy department late today said:

"1. A motor torpedo boat of Adm. Hart's far eastern command is believed to have torpedoed an enemy warship in night action inside Manila bay. Altho under heavy fire of the warship's guns, and in the full glare of her searchlights, the motor torpedo boat managed to fire two torpedoes and survive the action without being hit.

"2. A naval battalion composed of bluejackets and marines has been organized and is fighting on Bataan peninsula with Gen. MacArthur's command.

"3. The U. S. S. Neches, a naval tanker, has been torpedoed and sunk by an enemy submarine. One hundred twenty-six members of the crew have reached port safely. Fifty-six men are as yet unaccounted for."

BY CLARK LEE.

WITH THE UNITED STATES FORCES AT BATAAN, Feb. 3 (AP).—In the most spectacular battle yet fought in Luzon, American naval, land, and air units early today smashed a strong Japanese attempt to land from the China sea on the American left flank.

Many Japanese landing boats were sunk under a storm of American machine gun and artillery fire and aerial bombing.

Scores of Japanese troops were killed outright or drowned. Small enemy groups succeeded in reaching shore, but were cornered quickly.

Firing for Three Hours.

The battle was fought under a brilliant full moon. Against the cloudless sky the tracer bullets of machine guns and anti-aircraft made flaming paths of red and orange death.

From a vantage point I watched the firing, which started shortly after midnight and continued for three hours. The navy and army air force coördinated perfectly in beating off the Japanese attempt.

The Japanese landing boats were sighted far up the coast, escorted by a warship—either a large destroyer or a light cruiser.

The boats were about 40 feet long, motor driven and carrying 30 to 50 men each, protected by sheet metal and armed with machine guns.

Planes Dive on Japs.

As the Japanese approached, the American shore defenders curtained the beaches with bullets and shrapnel. With many Japanese struggling in the water as the result of this fire, others pushed on toward land.

American planes suddenly dived out of the night. The pilots selected their targets in the moonlight, dropped their bombs, then roared low and heavily strafed the Japanese.

The paths of the diving planes could be followed easily by their tracer bullets.

The Japanese warships' anti-aircraft guns sent tracer shells at the planes, ineffectually. As the planes roared off an American patrol vessel pitched into the middle of the remaining Japanese boats and attacked the warship, which fled under the attack.

Navy in the Action.

Details of the navy's participation cannot now be disclosed, but the navy was very much in the midst of the action.

Likewise, another Japanese landing attempt several days ago was checkmated by a force of American sailors and aviators, fighting on land with rifles. The Americans were unfamiliar with jungle fighting, but learned quickly.

The sailors were without ships; the aviators without planes, so they all became adept at tossing grenades, avoiding ambush, camouflaging machine guns and taking advantage of the natural cover.

The sailors and flyers pushed the Japanese onto the peninsula, where the Filipino scouts took over the job and annihilated the enemy with the assistance of shelling from a naval patrol vessel.

Commander Francis J. Bridget, naval aviator and former United States air attaché at Tokio, directed the early phase of the operations in a manner which won the praise of the army officers.

PICTURE OF IDLE U.S. OFFICE STAFF AROUSES STORM

BY WILLARD EDWARDS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 3.—A picture of government workers packed into an office where there was standing room only and drawing wages while they waited for desks space and work to do was given to the house today by Rep. Earl Wilson [R., Ind.].

Wilson demanded an investigation of overstaffed departments where the work, he said, easily could be done in a fraction of the space now used and by a fraction of the staffs now employed.

He estimated, upon the basis of information supplied by the workers themselves, that more than 1,000 employés have existed for eight hour periods each day in the last few weeks under conditions resembling the black hole of Calcutta.

Picture Supports Charge.

Wilson brandished a half page photograph which appeared this afternoon in a Washington newspaper. The picture had been snapped in a third floor room of a temporary building of the war department.

The picture showed government workers, the majority of them women, a few of them colored, huddled together in the war department office. A few had chairs or tables to sit on, but most were forced to stand.

Wilson told the house all were on the pay roll for periods of three weeks or more.

The photograph was made upon the suggestion of one of the girl workers herded into the war department office.

"I was hired as a junior stenographer and have reported promptly for work every morning at 8 a. m. since Jan. 23," she wrote the newspaper, "but I have not been near a typewriter or even had a pencil in my hand. In short, there is nothing for me to do but write letters to my boy friend and read movie magazines.

"The people in charge tell me not to worry because I am being paid just the same as if I were being useful. Not one single bit of work has been assigned me. The room in which we are forced to loaf against our will is one of the most horrible fire traps I have ever seen."

Work? How's She to Know?

A reporter who visited the war department asked a girl who sat on a corner of a desk: "When do you people go to work?"

"I don't know" was the answer, "I've only been here two weeks."

A woman supervisor protested when the photographer took the picture. She said it had not been authorized by the war department's press relations office.

"These workers have told me that the days were long and tiresome to them sitting around with nothing to do," Wilson said. "Also they have said that their supervisors wanted to keep them on the pay roll for fear of losing their jobs or having their salaies cut. Several employed who have attained desk space have testified that their bosses have instructed them to let their work pile up so they can appear busy at all times and have something to do.

Idle for Weeks, He Says.

"These people were brought to Washington to help out in the war program. They are on the pay roll, but after weeks many of them have not touched a pencil."

Rep. Clare E. Hoffman [R., Mich.] interrupted to tell of a visit he and several other congressmen made to the office of Price Administrator Leon Henderson.

"While we waited in the outer office," Hoffman said, "we watched a number of young women employés who were doing nothing but smoking or fixing their nails and lips. Maybe they were there waiting for a bicycle ride, but it's certain they weren't doing any work."

"This is a situation that has existed for a long time," said Rep. George H. Bender [R., O.]. "Workers have been jammed into offices until their feet are almost literally hanging out the windows."

INJURED CABBIE TRAPPED 7 HOURS BETWEEN TRAINS

Springfield, Ill., Feb. 3 (AP).—Robert Timm, 30 year old taxicab driver, survived the nerve shattering ordeal of being trapped for seven hours in the wreckage of his cab after it was smashed between two railroad locomotives in a freak grade crossing accident early today.

Finally freed from the wreckage by firemen and railroad workers who were forced to hoist one of the locomotives partly off the rails, Timm was taken to a hospital suffering leg bruises, cuts, and burns. Physicians said he would recover.

Timm's cab was struck by an Alton railroad freight train at the Jefferson street crossing in downtown Springfield, and was jammed against the side of another locomotive standing on an adjoining track. The automobile was so tightly wedged between the engines Timm could not be removed.

Action on Added Hours for Taverns Delayed

The city council subcommittee on taverns, headed by Ald. William A. Rowan [10th], yesterday postponed action on an ordinance which would permit taverns to remain open until 4 a. m. weekdays and 5 a. m. on Sundays upon payment of an additional $700 yearly. The postponement was to permit tavern keepers to decide whether they want to pay the extra fee for an additional two hours of business.

SEN. WILEY DEMANDS OUSTER OF PARASITES ON FEDERAL PAY ROLLS

Washington, D. C., Feb. 3 (AP).—Sen. Alexander Wiley, [R., Wis.], suggesting that the government get rid of the "parasites who draw government pay," told the senate today there should be a "demobilization of federal employés in nondefense activities."

"Why don't we have some one who really comprehends efficiency take hold the job in Washington to the end that space now devoted to nonwar activities could be utilized for war activities?" he asked.

He praised the appointment of Donald M. Nelson as war production chief and said the President should find some one else to do a real job in "demobilizing useless and expensive employment in government."

2 SEIZED FLEEING A LOOTED HOME; THIRD ESCAPES

Two youths, fleeing from a ransacked home at 3106 North Kostner avenue, ran into the arms of two Cragin police squads last night. A third youth escaped under police fire. The prisoners identified themselves as Warren Burton, 18 years old, 2534 North Lawndale avenue, and Paul Nelson Shackleford, 21, of 3251 Pierce avenue. Neighbors had noticed lights in the Henry Reder home while the family was out and called police. Sergts. John De Laurentis and Ray Gilso and their squads surrounded the house and seized Burton and Shackleford. The youths said they were to report Saturday on their applications to enter the army air service.

CHICAGO COURTS MANNED BY TEN VISITING JUDGES

Ten judges from other Illinois cities are hearing cases this week in the Superior and Circuit courts.

In the Superior court Judge Michael L. McKinley, Robert C. O'Connell, and John C. Lewe are ill, and Judges Joseph Graber, Oscar F. Nelson, Joseph Sabath, and Charles A. Williams are on vacation. Judge Michael Feinberg of the Circuit court is vacationing. Two other judges are on assignment to other courts which draw their jurists from the Circuit and Superior courts.

Visiting judges receive $20 a day and expenses.

OPEN VERDICT IN SLAYING.

A coroner's jury returned an open verdict yesterday in the fatal shooting of Frank B. Coyle, on Jan. 10. Coyle, 34 years old, was found dying in his bed in his home at 7121 University avenue. A revolver lay at his side.

NYA HEAD'S SLAP AT PATRIOTISM HIT IN SENATE

Aubrey Williams Branded 'Arrogant Burocrat.'

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Aubrey Williams.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 3.—Aubrey Williams, director of the National Youth administration, was denounced by Sen. Harry F. Byrd [D., Va.] in the senate today as "an arrogant and dictatorial burocrat" because of his attack on college students who wanted to get off the NYA pay roll.

The NYA administrator denounced by Sen. Byrd is the same Aubrey Williams who caused a storm in congress back in 1936 when he was deputy WPA administrator. At that time Williams addressed a meeting of the communist controled Workers alliance, an organization of WPA pay rollers, whom he adjured to "keep your friends in power."

Want to Get Off Pay Roll.

Sen. Byrd said he had received a communication from a group of students at Harding college, Searcy, Ark., who advised him that they had requested the NYA to remove their names from its pay roll, effective Feb. 1.

Sen. Byrd said the young men and women urged that the money which had been allotted for their assistance be used instead for the war effort. Their patriotic action aroused the indignation of Williams, the senator said.

"Mr. Williams," he added, "went so far as to issue a public statement, and in an interview is quoted as taking a slap at Dr. George S. Benson, president of Harding college, and calling Dr. Benson a 'ringleader in the so-called economy drive.'

"When every dollar of the resources of America is needed to meet the crisis now confronting us, it is a most remarkable procedure that an arrogant and dictatorial burocrat should attempt to condemn patriotic citizens who are anxious to help their country in this emergency.

Should Welcome Action.

"One would think Mr. Williams would welcome such a statement as that made by the students of Harding college who said they would work so they could pay their way thru college and not be dependents on the federal government. Williams evidently prefers to destroy initiative and to condemn those who attempt to make themselves self-sustaining."

Sen. Byrd is chairman of a joint congressional committee on nonessential federal expenditures, which has recommended that the NYA be abolished.

Avalanche in Swiss Alps Buries Four Men Alive

BERNE, Switzerland, Feb. 3.—Four men were buried in an avalanche in the Alps yesterday near Linthal, in Canton Flaris, and all perished. One was the father of seven children. Much damage is reported from snow slides on the French side of the Alps, especially in Savoy. In the Italian Alps four skiers were killed by avalanches.

A BUSINESS MAN TELLS ARMS JOB HUNT IN CAPITAL

to go and when I asked her how to get there she didn't know but suggested that I ask one of the fellows who had a desk in the hall.

Business Must Wait.

"When I went out there I found three fellows and a girl, all diligently checking the scratch sheet to see how to bet on the ponies. I asked one of them to help me and he told me to sit down for a minute. So I did, and he finally figured out his bet, told his cohort how to call it in, and then took me part way to where I was supposed to go. Having followed his instructions, I blundered into the room where they were dispatching messages to all parts of the world and where, to my sudden surprise, I found that I had absolutely no business and was told so emphatically.

"That went on all afternoon and by the time I had reached the man I was supposed to see, he was gone for the rest of the day and I had to make an appointment for the next day. I was back there bright and early the next morning but he was held up in conference until 11:30.

"However, I noticed that a number of fellows who seemed to know their way around kept sliding in ahead of me and when I asked the girl at the desk who they were she replied, 'O, those men are official representatives of firms that are doing business with the war department.'

Right of Way for Brokers.

"'You mean brokers?' I inquired.

"'Yes, that's what they are,' she answered.

"In other words, these parasites that make their living here in Washington have free run of the place and we outsiders have to cool our heels while they go barging in.

"I finally saw my man and I wonder why they keep such a fine fellow so exclusive. He was the only civil one I found in about 20 so I can understand why every one wants to talk with him.

"My next move was to see the OPM [now absorbed by the War Production board] about some priorities matters—and that's the pay off. When I finally found the man I was supposed to talk with he referred me to his secretary and stated that he would listen to the conversation while he read his paper, and that if anything in the line of talk warranted it he would break in and give his advice. Evidently it didn't so I talked with the secretary who stated she would take the matter up later with her boss, who was sitting 10 feet away.

"Needless to say, our priorities matters were not settled at the conference. We are still waiting for a rating, having tried to conform to all rules [and there's plenty of them] and regulations [ditto].

Deals with "Representative."

"With so little success upon my own tries, I looked up one of these Washington 'representatives' and endeavored to see what could be worked out. After answering numerous questions about our credit rating, financial structure, floor space at the plant, ability to produce and, about all, our ability to sign a three year contract, this so-called representative stated that while he had plenty to do at present, he would consider taking on our account on a 'restricted basis.'

"In other words, we were equipped to do only certain types of work and he could not take us on a real basis but would make frequent checks and keep in touch with his 'personal contacts' in the war and navy departments. For this service, we would have to pay $50 per week and 5 per cent of all contracts obtained and the contract would have to be for three years. Needless to say, the interview was terminated very shortly after that.

"After three more futile days of trying to see certain people and endeavoring to get some help in getting some of the great volume of business that seems to be ready and waiting for any one who can cut thru the red tape on the right angle, I gave up and checked out of my rather dingy room. Hotel reservations cannot be obtained in Washington unless you belong to an association that controls certain blocks of rooms at the various hotels or you know some one who can get you one. After having made a tour of them, I know how it goes.

What Cab Driver Thinks.

"On my way back to the train, I vented my fury to a cab driver, who agreed with me heartily. If Mr. Roosevelt ever wants a people's cabinet all he has to do is to select 10 cab drivers in Washington—any 10 of them can give him the cross section of public opinion—and as the saying goes in the nation's capital, that public opinion 'ain't good.'

"It isn't because Mr. Roosevelt isn't trying; it's because of the utter lack of interest and inefficiency of those who have been placed in positions of importance and who care more for the spotlight than for fires in the furnaces of thousands of small business firms thruout the country. Furthermore, the lights of Pearl Harbor will probably be dim before many of these firms ever get an opportunity to do their share in national defense.

"This isn't meant to be disparaging—it's just a true picture of what a business man is up against trying to preserve his business and at the same time be patriotic and coöperate in the defense program. But the question is: HOW CAN HE DO IT ?"

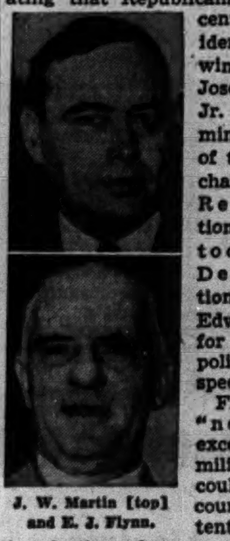
MARTIN ASSAILS FLYNN'S 'UNFAIR' POLITICAL SPEECH

Can't Squelch Criticism, He Declares.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 3.—Reiterating that Republicans are 100 per cent back of President Roosevelt to win the war, Rep. Joseph W. Martin Jr. [R., Mass.], minority leader of the house and chairman of the Republican National committee, today rebuked Democratic National chairman Edward J. Flynn for his partisan political radio speech last night.



J. W. Martin [top] and E. J. Flynn.

Flynn said that "no misfortune except a major military defeat could befall this country to the extent involved in the election of a congress hostile to the President. . . . Vast confusion would inevitably result if we had a President of one party and a house of representatives, for example, of the opposite party while we are carrying on the worst war in our history."

Wants to Liquidate Party.

Rep. Martin, who is preparing to lead a vigorous campaign for the election of a Republican congress dedicated to a more efficient conduct of the war, lost no time in replying to Flynn in a formal statement.

"It is obvious from the address delivered by Chairman Flynn of the Democratic National committee that what he wants is to liquidate the Republican party and squelch all criticism," said Martin. "That is the only possible explanation of the political speech which he delivered last night.

"Notwithstanding the unfair Flynn attack, the Republicans will not be diverted from their course. Republicans will continue to give President Roosevelt 100 per cent support to win the war. We will continue to put national safety above partisanship.

"Despite abuse or villification that may come, we will stand by the American right to offer any constructive appraisal or suggestion. It still prevails in England and it should continue here. We shall continue to work for the preservation of the two-party system. We shall be steadfast in support of democracy and constitutional government at home."

Attacked in New York.

Martin announced during the day that he has decided to retain the chairmanship of the Republican National committee till after the November election. He will call a meeting of the committee, probably in Chicago, for a date following the Illinois primary on April 14 at which the campaign for the election of Republican senators and representatives in November will be launched.

In New York, Thomas J. Curran, chairman of the Republican county committee, said "The Democratic party has no monopoly on patriotism," and attacked Flynn in a statement which said:

"Flynn seems to have a notion that the Democratic party, not the American people and the United States, is waging this war on the axis powers. The Democratic party has no monopoly on patriotism or loyalty to the President. Whatever sacrifices are to be made by the people of this country will not be made on party lines."

RITA HAYWORTH.

Hollywood, Cal., Feb. 3 (AP).—Kisses count—and are counted—in Hollywood. That's why Rita Hayworth and Charles Boyer worked overtime last night—one of the movies' few exceptions to its strict daylight schedule.

"They discovered Boyer kissed me only twice in a scene," Rita explained. "They said we'd have to add a third."

Then she added a bit of gossip about the romantic Boyer.

"He doesn't like spectators when he's making love. He's sensitive. It's hard work, you know."

With you, Rita?

WESTERN UNION ASKS PUBLIC TO ADVANCE CLOCKS

J. N. Armstrong, superintendent of the Western Union Telegraph company, asked the public yesterday to coöperate in setting Western Union operated clocks ahead next Monday when the nation will go on daylight saving time.

Armstrong said it will be impossible for the company's service men to change all its subscribers' clocks at the same time.

"Turn the minute hand forward once around the dial to the right to set clocks ahead one hour," Armstrong said. "Do not touch the hour hand."

The time change will take effect at 2 a. m. Monday.

Primary Election Ballots Cost $9.95 a Thousand

The board of election commissioners yesterday let a contract for printing ballots for the April 14 primary. The John Maher Printing company obtained the job at a price of $9.95 a thousand. Six hundred twenty official Democratic and Republican ballots will be needed for each of the 4,007 precincts under the board's jurisdiction.

SENATORS URGE CONGRESS REPEAL ITS PENSION ACT

'Bundles for Congress' Move Gains Impetus.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 3 (AP).—Sen. Harry F. Byrd [D., Va.] introduced legislation today to repeal the pensions for congressmen provided in a recent civil service law, while the civil service commission said that if congressmen were denied the retirement benefits "it would be difficult to justify any such discrimination."

Byrd proposed the repealer jointly with Senators Josiah W. Bailey [D., N. C.], Harold Burton [R., O.], and Edwin L. Johnson [D., Colo.]. Johnson told reporters that widespread "public indignation" had followed enactment of the pension provision. In the house Rep. Homer D. Angell [R., Ore.] also urged the repeal.

Excessive Cost Denied.

The civil service commission issued a five page statement to correct "a great deal of misinformation" which it said had been circulated on the subject.

"Instead of costing from 21 to 30 million dollars to retire congressmen," the commission said, "the cost of retiring all those affected, considering the very small number of members of congress able to meet the required age and service conditions, would not now be more than $80,000 per annum. If applied to the full membership, which will never at any time be the case, the cost per annum would be approximately $500,000."

"Bundles for Congress..

Spokane, Wash., Feb. 3 (AP).—A "Bundles for Congress" campaign, launched by the Athletic Round Table, is getting "bigger and better by the minute," Joe Albi, president, reported today.

Latest celebrity to contribute to the campaign, aimed at ridiculing out of existence the pensions voted by congressmen for themselves, is Sally Rand, Albi said.

The dancer, he reported, mailed in a scanty piece of lingerie with the note:

"It's my last stitch. Send it to congress."

Bundles of old clothes from all parts of the west, cash donations, old tires, glass eyes, and other odds and ends have been flooding in so rapidly the truck originally planned to carry the "bundles to congress" may become a convoy, Albi asserted. Its departure has been delayed.

SENATE VERSION OF 26½ BILLION NAVY BILL O. K.'D

Washington, D. C., Feb. 3 (AP).—A joint house-senate conference committee agreed today on a $26,495,265,474 naval appropriations bill, the same amount voted yesterday by the senate.

The conference agreement provided for house acceptance of senate increases in cash and contract authorizations totaling more than $6,000,000,000 over the amount originally approved by the house.

The measure would provide approximately $8,000,000,000 for new airplanes, a like amount for ships and $5,000,000,000 for maintaining the operations of the present fleet.

Chairman Overton [D., La.] of the senate conferees said the bill would probably be brought before the house tomorrow and the senate Thursday for final congressional action.

Dubinsky Tells 50,000 Gain in Garment Workers' Union

David Dubinsky, president of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' union, reported yesterday to his general executive board, currently meeting in the Morrison hotel, that the union's membership increased more than 50,000 during 1941 and now totals more than 300,000.

tion our service officers, cabinet members, department heads, and statisticians when they explained the need for sums greater than were ever requested or appropriated in any like period in our nation's entire history. The requests included the 13 billion dollars appropriated to lend-lease our resources to other countries.

"This information gave me first hand knowledge of the plans for our national defense. I also knew of the lack of our national defense, and was informed as to what we were sending to other countries. I constantly urged reduction in nondefense expenditures, but supported all appropriations to speed our national defense program.

"I served on important subcommittees of the interstate commerce commission. We heard testimony on new regulations for radio chains and broadcasting stations. We listened to evidence concerning movie propaganda; the proposed merger of telegraph systems and international cables; and the possible government control of all communication systems in time of war. We took testimony regarding railroads and trucks in forwarding services and interstate commerce.

Participated in Debates.

"I was a member of a special committee to study the old age pension system.

"I also sat as a member of a committee to consider a more adequate defense for the Panama canal and to appropriate funds therefor.

"I participated in debates on the floor of the senate on vital questions affecting our people and our nation. I joined in debates on establishing Nation-wide radio forums so our people could have the views of members of congress and know their attitude on important subjects.

"In addition, I received and answered more than 175,000 letters, telegrams, and communications in one year, as well as receiving and assisting scores of individuals and delegations from our state.

Fulfilled Pledges.

"While studying the activities of the nation I have sought to coöperate with our state, county, and municipal officials in meeting their complex problems and solving their difficulties. I have joined cheerfully with our business men in aiding them to meet the distressing conditions they are endeavoring to solve; with our farmers in protecting their interests, and with labor in those activities where they required advice and sound leadership.

"While malicious and vicious attacks were being made against me for fulfilling my pledges made to the people of Illinois, I gave my loyal attention to establishing unity and strengthening our country to meet the awful shock of war."

Vandenberg Recites Poetry as Senate Votes Billions

Washington, Feb. 3 (AP).—Pointing out that the senate in the last six days had approved appropriations totaling 37½ billion dollars, Sen. Vandenberg [R., Mich.] quipped to his colleagues today:

"Count that day lost whose low

"Sees not another billion flung at

The Michigan senator added: "Mr. President, if appropriations can win this war, then it's in the bag."

HATHAWAY ENDS EFFORT TO AVOID LIBEL SENTENCE

New York, Feb. 3 [Special].—Clarence A. Hathaway, ousted editor of the communist paper, the Daily Worker, today quit his 20 month fight to set aside his conviction for criminal libel. Judge John J. Freschi, who presided at his trial, had sentenced Hathaway to a 30-day workhouse term and to pay a $500 fine.

Execution of the sentence was stayed at the time, and after the appellate division of the Supreme court on Oct. 24 unanimously affirmed the conviction Hathaway obtained another stay to take the case to the state Court of Appeals.

A jury convicted Hathaway and the Comprodaily Publishing Co., Inc., owners of the Daily Worker, on the complaint of Mrs. Edith Liggett, widow of Walter Liggett, crusading editor of a Minneapolis weekly, who in 1935 was slain by gunmen on the eve of his appearance as a witness before a legislative committee. Liggett had been exposing the link between officials and racketeers in Minneapolis. Mrs. Liggett charged Hathaway and the Daily Worker had libeled her and the memory of her husband in articles published in 1936.

DERIDES EXCUSE FOR FBI FAILURE TO GUARD HAWAII

Truman Says Bureau Was Tapping Wires.

not, his talks are interesting, and in his talk last Saturday he seemed to me to emphasize the fact, or his belief at least, that if Guam had been fortified years ago [the disaster at] Pearl Harbor would not have occurred on Dec. 7."

What Speech Said.

Col. McCormick's only reference to Guam in his radio speech last Saturday night was as follows:

"Our strategic advantage over Japan is overwhelming.

"The Alaskan base points a pistol at Japan's head. From Hawaii the route runs by Midway Island, Wake Island, and Guam to the Bonins. Once there we can take Japan by the throat. This route is flanked by the Marshall Islands, which would have to be cleaned up on the way.

"From Samoa the road lies thru the Fijis, Solomon, and Bismarck Islands, now belonging to the British empire, to Papua, where it would join any effort from Australia. When we reach the Philippines we will come to a battleground known to our officers and to a friendly population. With the Philippines back in our hand Japan's fate is sealed."

Clark Blames Lack of Alert.

Sen. Bennett Champ Clark [D., Mo.], replying to Barkley, commented that no amount of fortification at Guam "would have supplied to any degree whatever the fatal lack of alertness on the part of the army and navy at Pearl Harbor that was responsible for the disaster at Pearl Harbor."

"If they had been on the alert the defenses at Pearl Harbor would have been entirely adequate," Clark said.

Altho persisting in his opinion that the fortification of Guam "would have operated as a barrier against Japanese forces getting to Pearl Harbor," Barkley conceded that "it could not have supplied the lack of alertness and diligence on the part of our forces at Pearl Harbor."

Calls Guam Vulnerable.

Sen. Robert A. Taft [R., O.] said the navy had advised members of the house naval affairs committee that "even if we spent 150 million to 200 million dollars to fortify Guam we could not hope to hold it for more than 30 days against Japanese attacks from islands surrounding Guam."

Sen. David I. Walsh [D., Mass.], chairman of the senate naval affairs committee, said Sen. Taft's information was correct. Chairman Walsh also noted for the record that the navy never did ask congress for authority to fortify Guam, but proposed only that it be authorized to dredge and otherwise improve the harbor. This proposal, he recalled, was defeated by the house of representatives and never did come to a vote in the senate because the navy did not insist upon it.

Says Congress Not Involved.

Walsh objected to an intimation by Barkley that congress was partly responsible for the Pearl Harbor disaster.

"The operations at Pearl Harbor were of an executive character, and responsibility for them was lodged in the departments," he said. "Congress does not manage or direct or control the operations of naval units."

Walsh also denounced the current smear campaign against members of congress who opposed the administration's foreign policy before the war.

"There were high ranking naval officers and high ranking officers of the army who did not agree in full and completely with the foreign policy of the administration before the war began," he said.

Millions Not in Agreement.

"There certainly were millions of young men who are now in the service of our country, and their fathers and mothers, who did not agree in toto with the foreign policy of our country. They did not have the obligation which senators have to vote when the roll was called and to be publicly put on record as to their position and to explain to their constituents their views pro and con.

"But it is just as much of an insinuation against these army and navy men and these young men who are now out fighting for their country to suggest that they are not wholeheartedly in favor of carrying on this war to the end and to the limit, whatever sacrifice may be involved, as it is to suggest that any member of this body, because he differed with the foreign policy of the administration, is now hesitating or doubtful or resisting in any way, shape, or form the importance and necessity of all together, whatever our views were before, standing together and fighting together and dying together to the end that we may bring as speedily as possible victory to our country."

Refers to Columnist Attack.

Discussing the wire tapping controversy, Sen. Truman alluded particularly to an attack on Sen. Wheeler by Walter Winchell, gossip columnist and radio commentator and a Stork club playmate of FBI Director Hoover. The Missouri senator also quoted a news story carried by a press association last week, which set up Hoover's third alibi for the failure of the FBI in Hawaii.

Immediately after the Dec. 7 attack Hoover replied to published charges that the FBI, under an executive order issued by the President in 1939, was directly responsible for the investigation of espionage and sabotage activities in Hawaii.

"Jurisdiction over Japanese matters in Hawaii was vested primarily in the naval authorities and not in the FBI," he said.

First Alibi Upset.

The Roberts report destroyed the first alibi by its finding that the FBI was "primarily responsible for investigation of matters connected with the civil population" in Hawaii.

The Roberts report, however, accepted Hoover's second alibi—that peace time restrictions "prevented resort to certain methods of obtaining the content of messages transmitted by telephone or radio telegraph over the commercial lines operating between Oahu and Japan."

The second alibi was destroyed by the citation of testimony and statements by former Attorney General Robert H. Jackson, now a justice of the Supreme court, and Attorney General Francis Biddle, both holding that the communications act of 1934 does not prohibit wire tapping.

Sen. Truman cited this evidence in his speech today. He called attention particularly to a letter formally addressed to the judiciary committee of the house by Attorney General Jackson, who said:

"There is no federal statute that prohibits or punishes wire tapping alone. The only offense under the present law is to 'intercept any communication and divulge or publish' the same. Any person, with no risk of penalty may tap telephone wires and eavesdrop on his competitor, employer, workman or others and act upon what he hears or make any use of it that does not involve divulging or publication. . . . The courts do not stop people from tapping wires—no one has even been or under present law could be convicted of that by itself. What has been stopped is the use of the evidence to enforce the laws against criminals."

The provision referred to by Jackson's letter is section 605 of the communications act of 1934. It provides that "no person not being authorized by the sender shall intercept any communication and divulge or publish the existence, contents, substance, purport, effect, or meaning of such intercepted communication to any person."

Third Alibi Offered.

Hoover's third alibi, as cited by Sen. Truman, was the story saying the FBI did tap telephone wires and did detect the Japanese plan for a secret attack but that this information went unheeded by the army and the navy. The published story said that the FBI intercepted a telephone conversation between Honolulu and Tokio on Dec. 5 and learned about the proposed attack two days before it occurred.

Sen. Truman also referred to an official justice department report, made late in 1941, which states that agents of the department deemed it lawful to tap telephone wires and actually did tap the wires of a labor leader in the summer of 1941.

Sen. Truman also noted justice department testimony that under present law it is entirely lawful for the government to subpena copies of telegrams in the files of cable and telegraph companies.

"Regardless of whether one agrees or not with the opinion of the attorney general that it is lawful to tap wires," he said, "it is clear that under the law as it now stands the federal government could have subpenaed copies of all telegrams sent by Japanese spies over the commercial lines between Hawaii and Japan in the weeks and months preceding the attack on Pearl Harbor.

Could Have Obtained Messages.

"It is therefore fair to say that the federal government agents were not prevented, by anything in the present law, or by the lack of any law such as has now been proposed in the house or was proposed in the house last year, from intercepting the messages of spies and tapping the wires of spies in Hawaii or anywhere else."

Sen. Truman recalled that wire tapping legislation sought by the administration was defeated by the house on June 30, 1941, and was never introduced in the senate. The legislation he referred to was sought by the justice department notwithstanding its contention that the communications act does not forbid the tapping of telephone wires. The bill rejected by the house would have authorized federal agents to tap telephone wires in espionage and kidnaping cases.

On Jan. 27 Rep. Emanuel Celler [D., N. Y.] introduced a new administration wire tapping bill, which is pending before the house judiciary committee. It specifically exempts the FBI and the intelligence services of the war, navy, and state departments from the prohibitions of section 605 of the communications act.

Calls for Study of Question.

Altho no bill was introduced in the senate after the house defeated the administration's wire tapping legislation last summer, Sen. Truman introduced a resolution calling for a study of the question. Vice President Henry A. Wallace referred it to Chairman Wheeler's interstate commerce committee, which handled the original communications act.

Sen. Truman recalled that Sen. Wheeler appointed a subcommittee of seven members, four of whom were stanch supporters of the administration's foreign policy, to consider the Truman resolution. This subcommittee, of which Truman is chairman, is ready to consider any bill that comes before it, the Missouri senator said. He added, however, that the evidence thus far adduced emphasizes "the need for care in considering this kind of legislation."

REP. THOMAS URGES DIES TO INVESTIGATE PUERTO RICO PLOTS

Washington, D. C., Feb. 3 (AP).—Confronted with evidence given by one of its own members that a strong un-American movement of "most serious proportions" was developing in Central and South America, the house committee on un-American activities was reported tonight to be ready to make a first-hand investigation in Puerto Rico.

Rep. J. Parnell Thomas [R., N. J.], a committee member, said he has requested Chairman Dies [D., Tex.] and other committee members to order a subcommittee to visit Puerto Rico, Panama and other Latin countries to obtain more complete information. Thomas made a personal investigation in Puerto Rico and Panama last year and said he was "alarmed and amazed" at what he found. He said the Spanish Falange is the strongest subversive activity in Puerto Rico and that its membership extends into the best families with Gen. Franco of Spain the key to the situation.

Thomas said he had found pamphlets and copies of Falangist literature disclosing that members of the organization in Puerto Rico take an oath of allegiance to Spain. The organization, he said, has made a thoro inventory of all arms available in Puerto Rico and of the number of men available and able to handle them.

3,848 AGRICULTURE AGENCY WORKERS TO LEAVE WASHINGTON

Washington, D. C., Feb. 3 (AP).—Budget Director Harold D. Smith announced today that the agriculture department had agreed to move 3,848 employés out of Washington to make room for defense workers.

Approved by President Roosevelt, the transfers will send 1,140 Farm Credit administration employés to Kansas City, 700 Agricultural Adjustment administration employés to various cities where the agency now has field offices, 1,155 Rural Electrification administration employés to St. Louis, 633 Farm Security administration employés to Cincinnati, and 220 agriculture department solicitor's office workers to various cities.

The transfers were another step in a program designed to move more than 15,000 government employés out of Washington to make room for the rapidly growing defense agencies.

DOUGLAS, PRESS AGENT OF OCD, ACCUSED AS RED

Appointment Called Blow to U. S. Morale.

BY WILLIAM STRAND.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 3.—The appointment of Melvyn Douglas, a 40 year old Hollywood actor, to a press agent's job with the Office of Civilian Defense drew a protest on the floor of congress today.

Melvyn Douglas.

Rep. Leland M. Ford [R., Cal.] warned the house that the elevation of "these incompetent parasites" to important posts in the war program is destroying confidence in the government.

He charged that Douglas had been denied a commission in the California National Guard "because of his pink and Red activities and his close association with subversive, communistic groups."

Refers to Change of Name.

"I note that a man going by the name of Melvyn Douglas [old name Melvyn Hesselberg] is appointed to the office of civilian defense," Rep. Ford told the house.

"Do we always have to have men who have changed their names, and whose past activities are questioned, in high places in government? Perhaps this is the reason that we constantly have to have reorganization; the reason that we get conversation, reports, and publicity statements instead of guns, airplanes, anti-aircraft, and subchasers.

"Do they realize, in advance, that the appointees who have been named are absolutely unqualified to do their work, and thru these departmental publicity hounds play up to our people high sounding publicity to cover up their failures?

Asks How Taxpayers Feel.

"How do our tax payers feel when they see our money used like this? Partisan politics are supposed to be adjourned—and I hope they are—but when our people see such men appointed to positions in government you can well see why many are losing confidence in the organization in Washington.

"Instead of having a thoro housecleaning of these incompetent parasites, the program seems to be to obtain the most unqualified and the most incompetent, who always has tied up with the interests which would destroy the American form of government."

Red Links Disclosed.

Meanwhile, secret files of the Dies committee on un-American activities revealed that Douglas has been identified with seven organizations which committee investigators described as communist fronts.

Hitherto unpublished testimony before the committee also disclosed that Douglas was described as "the most energetic sympathizer and likely recruit to the communist party" by one member of the party who appeared before the committee in executive session.

This witness was Rena M. Vale, a former newspaper woman and movie writer, who won a $5,000 prize from Paramount, Inc., in 1928 for her play, "Swag." Records show that she told the Dies committee that she joined the communist party in 1936.

Election Drive Described.

In describing attempts to mobilize members and fellow travelers in support of Democratic candidates in the 1938 elections, she told the committee:

"The Hollywood cultural commission [described as a division of the communist party] was to work behind the scenes in the organization of this group, for it musn't be suspected that it was in any way tainted. Manageable fronts were to be used insofar as possible.

"Actor Melvyn Douglas was mentioned as the most energetic sympathizer and likely recruit to the communist party and it was decided he would be approached. I don't recall a report back on that matter; it seems to me I attended no more communist meetings. However, I entertain no doubts about the formation of the motion picture Democratic committee, chairmaned by Melvyn Douglas, which played such an active part in the 1938 elections and subsequent state appointments."

Groups Listed by Probers.

Following is a list of the organizations, described as communist fronts, with which Douglas is associated by Dies committee investigators, either as indorser, supporter, or member:

American Congress for Peace and Democracy, American Friends of Spanish Democracy, Committee for Concerted Peace Efforts, Consumers' Union, First Congress of the Mexican and Spanish American Peoples of the United States, Motion Picture Artists' committee, and Motion Picture Democratic committee.

Joining Lieut. Robert Montgomery and Lieut. Douglas Fairbanks Jr. in the Hollywood colony here, Douglas comes fresh from an acting assignment in "Two Faced Woman," a film that was frowned upon by the Catholic League of Decency.

Recent Guest at White House.

According to a newspaper column conducted by Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt, wife of the President, he has been a recent guest at the White House. His wife, known on the stage as Helen Gahagan, is Democratic committeewoman from California.

James M. Landis, executive of civilian defense activities, said Douglas will be director of the arts council of the OCD, coördinating the services of artists, actors, and writers in the program.

Landis said he supposed Douglas would receive traveling expenses and remuneration for subsistence in lieu of a salary. He will work under a director of information yet to be chosen.

Landis also revealed that Mrs. Roosevelt will continue as head of an enlarged community and volunteer participation section. Reporting directly to her will be three main subdivisions — program planning, headed by Jonathan W. Daniels, Raleigh, N. C., publisher; operations, headed by Hugh Jackson, associate secretary of the New York State Charities Aid association, and survey, headed by Mary Dublin, a research specialist.

Mass Production of Cargo Vessels

Using assembly line methods, the Todd-Bath shipyard at South Portland, Me., turns out cargo vessels in 57 days—seven at a time. Prefabricated construction is used where possible. The views show (1) workers assembling frames which giant cranes pick up and distribute; (2) a stern view of one boat, with a bulkhead in place; (3) a ship in construction with prefabricated parts, lying in docks, and (4) two of the ships, nearly completed, in the docks. DIFFERENCE IN U.S. AND BRITISH ARMY PAY STIRS AN M. P.

LONDON, Feb. 3 (AP).—The question of differences in pay between United States and British soldiers already has been raised in parliament—only eight days after the arrival of American troops in Northern Ireland.

Lieut. Col. Sir Thomas Moore asked war Secretary Capt. H. D. R. Margesson in the house of commons today "how the pay and rations of the British army compared with those of American soldiers as stationed in this country or Northern Ireland?" The question was not answered immediately.

The British Tommy's basic pay is two shillings, ninepence [about 55 cents] a day. An American buck private gets about 70 cents.

PLACE WAR DEAD TOTALS FOR 1941 AT OVER 1,200,000

New York, Feb. 3 (AP).—The Metropolitan Life Insurance company estimated today that the war dead of all belligerent nations during 1941 was between 1,200,000 and 1,600,000—figures comparable with annual fatalities during World war I.

Fighting in Russia, said the report, was responsible for most of the deaths, with the Germans losing between 300,000 and 600,000 men and the Russians more than 750,000. Britain's fatalities were estimated at about 40,000 and Italy's between 30,000 and 50,000.

The company's statisticians said that United States losses in action during the three weeks of active participation in the present war were heavier than in all the first year of United States participation in the last war. They said the 2,729 deaths among naval personnel at Pearl Harbor were more than three times the navy's losses from enemy action thruout the last war.

STEAL 70 USED INNERTUBES.

Seventy used innertubes, valued at $142, were stolen last night from an automobile parked in front of 70 West Madison street. The victim was Charles E. Hickey, an automobile accessories dealers of Senandoah, Ia.

CANADA MAKING MORE ALUMINUM THAN IT CAN USE

Surplus for U. S. After Supplying Britain.

New York, Feb. 3 [Special].—Canada's aluminum industry can supply the war production needs of both Canada and Great Britain and, in addition, furnish 750,000,000 pounds of this vital product to the United States in the next two years, Victor T. Goggin, general manager of Wartime Housing, Ltd., of Canada, declared today.

Addressing the Canadian Club of New York, Goggin, who sits in at staff meetings of Canada's department of munitions and supply, painted the latest and probably the most comprehensive picture yet received of Canada's war preparations.

40,000 Plane Workers.

Canada is now producing enough war material, he said, to equip a new army division every six weeks and is still able to ship to England many tons of badly needed munitions. A total of 52,000,000 tons of food and munitions, he added, already has been shipped from Canada's eastern seaports to the mother country.

Forty thousand workers are now engaged in producing airplanes. Manufacturers now have on hand orders for nearly 8,500 planes, which, on the basis of population, would be the equivalent of 93,500 planes in this country.

There are 120 airdromes and 5,000 buildings devoted to airplanes, he disclosed, involved in a scheme that has increased Canada's air force to nearly 20 times its prewar size.

500,000 Men Under Arms.

Canada, with a population of only 11,000,000, already has 500,000 men under arms. Some 150,000 of these are abroad. The navy, which before the war had only 2,000 officers and men on 15 ships, now has 27,000 officers and men on 300 ships.

There are 100,000 men in uniform in the Royal Canadian air force.

The dominion has more than 10 types of complete heavy guns in the making and has produced 12,000 Bren guns with 14,000 extra barrels, he said. Bren gun production now exceeds 3,000 a month.

Twenty sizes of heavy shells are in production and 9,000,000 units of these, 10,000,000 units of 10 sizes of cartridge cases, as well as 7,000,000 fuses and 8,000,000 primers already have been delivered.

Corvette Every 3 Days.

There also are 23 new plants built at a cost of $112,000,000 that manufacture vital war chemicals.

One plant alone is delivering 10,000 500 pound aerial bombs a month. Facilities have been made or are in the process for stepping up the production of nickel to 50,000,000 pounds a year.

Canada now has 17 major and 58 smaller shipyards that have enabled the launching already of 80 corvettes and 60 mine sweepers, Goggin said. This year it expects to launch a corvette every three days and a freighter every five days.

REVEALS BRITISH LOST 4,000 MEN IN HONGKONG FIGHT

OTTAWA, Ont., Feb. 3 (AP).—British casualties at Hongkong, including Canadians, were 4,000 killed or wounded, "at a very rough guess," Defense Minister J. L. Ralston told the house of commons tonight.

Ralston said it was estimated that the whole Hongkong garrison numbered about 12,000 and that about one-third were casualties in the Japanese assault. He was quoting a message received by the British war office.

There were two Canadian regiments at Hongkong.

JAPS STAKE ALL ON QUICK BLOW, EXPERTS ASSERT

Seek to Win Vital Zones Before Allied Drive.

BY WALTER TROHAN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 3.—Military experts have fitted the jigsaw puzzle of confusion in the Pacific—produced by Japanese action on more than a dozen fronts from deep China to the mid-Pacific and from the equator to the fringes of Siberia—into a picture of well ordered Japanese strategy. Here are the conclusions of American experts:

Speed is the essence of Japan's strategy. For that reason, Japanese forces are operating in China, the Philippines, the Celebes, Borneo, Singapore, Burma, and points east to Hawaii.

The yellow men are aware that unless they seize their immediate objectives—the strategic centers and rich sources of raw materials—before the united nations are ready to take the offensive, they never will seize them.

Life Regarded Recklessly.

For this reason the Japanese conquest is moving with a reckless disregard for life. Japanese troops are being poured against strategic centers. Once these outposts are captured, the Japs plan to place them in the state of military preparedness to which they should have been equipped to hold off the invasion now under way.

Speed, altho costly in life and arms, is the cheapest way to victory for the Japanese. The essence of the strategy of the united nations is delay, with each day making the allies stronger in trained manpower and war materials.

Russia and India lie beyond the immediate objectives in the Jap strategy. It is believed that in the spring Japan will make a surprise attack on Russia to harass the soviets in the rear as the Germans renew the Russian assault with the return of favorable weather.

Smarting Under Red Victory.

The Japanese are smarting under the defeat which Jap troops suffered in Manchukuo in the impromptu border clash of 1939. Beyond the matter of revenge, the Japs are aware they never will dominate Asia, the ultimate Japanese goal, if Russia sprawls unchecked over the northern half of the continent.

India also is seen as an objective of Jap cupidity. It is felt the grand plans of Japan also embrace a possible joint Nazi-Nipponese nip at one of the chief sources of British wealth—the Germans swooping from the west after conquest of Russia and the Japs moving from the east after taking the Pacific situation in hand.

This is not what is going to happen, military experts emphasize, but what the ill-sorted Nordic partnership of Hitler and Hirohito are hoping will happen.

Eyes Cast on India Thrust.

Axis powers are believed to feel that a successful invasion of India would bring Britain to her knees in suit for peace. They felt the same way, experts caution, about the fall of Poland, the fall of Norway, the fall of France, and the fall of Greece.

Experts are aware that every Japanese move in the Pacific and in Asia has been part of a well developed plan, approved if not prepared in Berlin.

The attack on Hawaii was undertaken not with any intention of capturing the islands but only for the purpose of immobilizing the American fleet with a view toward delaying the sending of reënforcements to the western Pacific.

Experts believe that even the Japanese were surprised by the success of the attack. Had the Japs known how successful the attack would be, they probably would have sent along a landing force to occupy the Island of Oahu.

Move Against Stepping Stones.

The Japs at the same time moved against a number of American islands which were stepping stones of the navy and Clipper ships. The objective in attacking these islands was to cripple further the line of communications and supply to the orient.

The Japs struck at Hongkong and Manila because these strategic centers could not be left on either flank while an attack was made on Singapore.

Experts say that for the same reason, when the time comes, allied forces will have to attack Corea and Formosa in order to make a successful campaign against the Jap islands.

Experts said the attack on Singapore was made because Singapore stands guard on commercial lines vital to Japan. The Nipponese forces are moving against Borneo, the Celebes, Rangoon, and other strategic centers in order to control the vast supplies of raw materials in the East Indies, which Japan needs, and also to prevent their being used as bases in counterattacks on Japan.

Seek to Grab What They Can.

Experts are confident Japan is trying to grab as much as she can in a hurry so as to be able to release men and guns and planes and ships for a Russian campaign to be timed with a renewal of the Nazi offensive in Russia in the spring.

If the Russian campaign should be as successful as the axis dreams, experts believe that a thrust at India will follow, with the Japs moving from Rangoon and the Germans thru the Caucasus and Persia.

At the same time Japan would continue to eat away at the southwest Pacific. With such strongholds as Manila and Singapore conquered, Japan expects that subjugation of the rest of the area could be intrusted to smaller forces than now are in action.

The Recruit of the Day

He's Experienced

Ex Coxswain Carl Pearson of the United States navy became Coxswain Carl Pearson of the United States coast guard yesterday. He was sworn in at the coast guard recruiting office in the United States courthouse by Chief Boatswain A. C. Stewart.

Pearson served a four year hitch in the navy from 1927 to 1931, two years of it aboard the battleship Oklahoma, which was capsized in the Pearl Harbor attack. Since then he has worked as a cook and a milkman. He is 31 years old and lives at 231 Scribner street, Joliet, Ill.

Chief Boatswain Stewart swore in 75 coast guard recruits yesterday and 125 the day before. The new recruits left last night for an unrevealed training station.

BIG INDIA CITIES SPEED DEFENSE FOR AIR ATTACKS

BOMBAY, India, Feb. 3 (AP).—All the big cities of India concentrated on defenses against air attack today. The Bombay branch of the All-India Congress party, which hitherto had refused to coöperate in air raids precautions, urged that protection for municipal schools be made ready quickly.

Mohandas K. Gandhi and his doctrine of nonviolence now were said to have faded into the background since the investment of Singapore. He and his adherents have made little effort to propagate their views since the congress party executive committee decided "as free men" to defend their country by force.

Another congress group headed by the right wing leader Chakravarti Rajagopalachari, until recently premier of Madras province, pleaded with Indians to organize themselves for armed defense "even at this eleventh hour." He urged immediate formation of street guards in towns and villages. Congress leaders indorsed a government plea that city dwellers should stick to their jobs.

PRINTER CLAIMS EXCLUSIVE RIGHT TO WAR SLOGAN

Pearl Harbor Motto Is Mine, He Says.

Exclusive right to the use in Illinois of the slogan, "Remember Pearl Harbor," was claimed yesterday by a Chicagoan who said the slogan has been registered under the state's patent and trade mark laws in his name and asserted that its use in any printed or advertising matter without his permission is an infringement of the laws.

Louis A. Fortman of 6913 Ridge avenue, a printer, made the claim and, thru his attorney, Norman Gerlach, said he was prepared to protect it.

[Last November a resident of Tulsa, Okla., obtained a patent on an emblem carrying the slogan, "V for Victory," the slogan for enemies of the axis powers, especially in Europe.]

Registered in Washington.

Gerlach said that last Dec. 8, the day after the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor, Fortman designed an emblem which pictured a battleship with the slogan printed beneath it. This was registered in Washington, D. C., under the copyright laws, then filed with the Illinois secretary of state for a registration certificate, asking for exclusive right to use of the slogan and another, "Avenge Pearl Harbor." On Jan. 22, according to Gerlach, the certificate was issued to Fortman.

"The slogan is protected only in Illinois, but the emblem is copyrighted thruout the country," Gerlach said. "Illinois law gives the exclusive right to use a slogan to the person who files first, whether he is the originator or not."

Offers It to City and State.

Fortman said he has no objection to use of the slogan for patriotic purposes and to aid defense activities, but that he will object to its use for private commercial activities. He already has threatened to sue one publication for use of the slogan. Fortman said he has offered it to the city and state defense committees "without the expectation of any reward."

Technically, Gerlach said, the government, under the law, must get permission to use the slogan for advertising the sale of defense bonds and stamps. "But," he added, "I am certain my client will not go that far."

Jail Full, Belgians Freed; Did They Skip? You Guess

VICHY, Feb. 3 (AP).—The Valenciennes jail was so full the newspaper La France Socialiste said today, that 50 indicted Belgians were allowed to go free awaiting trial. When the judge called them for trial every one of the 50 had disappeared. So they were sentenced in absentia.

JAPANESE POUR BOMBS ON GREAT JAVA NAVY BASE

Dutch Admit Vast Damage in Soerabaja Raid.

BULLETIN.

BATAVIA, N. E. I., Feb. 4 [Wednesday] (AP).—Dutch and Japanese troops are engaged in heavy fighting on the Dutch Indies naval base of Amboina, the Dutch high command announced today.

BATAVIA, Netherlands East Indies, Feb. 3 (AP).—Twenty-six Japanese bombers blasted the great naval base of Soerabaja [Surabaya] for 2 hours 20 minutes today in an assault which caused extensive destruction from the heart of the city to outlying airdromes.

The air alarm sounded at 10:10 a. m., and the invaders first went to work on the airdromes. It was in the area surrounding the fields that the greatest number of dead and injured were counted. One delayed-action bomb fell in a thickly settled residential area.

From the military establishments the Japanese headed for the center of Soerabaja, and there they unloaded bombs on civilian establishments. Various shops, a hotel, and a Chinese cemetery were hit.

Try to Smash Offensive.

The Japanese attacked in an effort to smash the allied offensive power which apparently has kept a Japanese invasion armada bottled up in Macassar strait more than 300 miles to the north.

This first big air raid on Java came a day after United States bombers sank two and probably three more Japanese transports off Balik Papan, eastern Borneo port.

Besides Soerabaja, now vital to the allies as a naval base because of the immobilization of besieged Singapore, the Japanese also attacked Rembang, Malang, Madioen, and Magetan, all within a 125 mile radius of Soerabaja.

The news agency Aneta said Soerabaja's anti-aircraft batteries shot down one bomber and several fighter planes.

Two persons were killed and 11 were wounded at Rembang, 100 miles to the west. The raiders used their machine guns also in the attack there and on another unidentified island target where 12 natives were killed and 15 wounded.

Lone Allied Plane Goes Up.

In describing the attack on Malang, the site of an important airfield 60 miles south of Soerabaja, Aneta said the alert sounded at 1 a. m., followed 15 minutes later by the appearance of three Japanese fighter planes.

A few minutes later, four more fighters roared over, and only a single allied craft arose when the Japanese bombers, flying at 10,000 feet, swept across the airport.

One grounded allied plane was hit and set afire, but no other damage was done.

Soerabaja, where some 350,000 persons live, is one of the most important trade centers in the Netherlands East Indies as well as a strong naval base. It is one of the main Japanese objectives in the push down Macassar strait off eastern Borneo.

That Japanese push, as far as is known here, has not succeeded in gaining any footholds south of Balik Papan, 450 miles north of eastern Java. Another Japanese thrust down the western coast of Borneo has reached Pontianak, about the same distance by air from Batavia across the Java sea.

Claim Amboina Seized.

BERLIN, Feb. 4 [Wednesday] [From German Broadcasts] (AP).—The Tokio radio reported today that Japanese troops had completed occupation of Amboina island, site of an important Dutch naval base 635 miles north of the tip of Australia.

[The Dutch acknowledged Saturday that the Japanese had landed on Amboina, which is midway between Celebes and New Guinea, and the Australians later reported that the landing forces were menacing Amboina airdrome.]

The Berlin radio, quoting a Japanese imperial headquarters report, said the Japanese had occupied the Celebes seaport of Tawao, British North Borneo. The invaders were said to have released 587 Japanese interned there.

Bomb New Guinea City.

MELBOURNE, Australia, Feb. 3.—A Japanese bomber attacked Port Moresby, capital of Papua, on New Guinea, 320 miles from the Australian mainland, early today, dropping six bombs, a royal Australian air force communique said. The raid was directed at airdromes, but no material damage was done, it said.

Java—It's a Crowded Corner in Rich Indies' Storehouse

In the large scale two section color map on the back page of today's edition, THE TRIBUNE presents the most detailed map of the island of Java published in this country. Adapted from a Dutch map, it shows hundreds of cities and towns, main railways and tramways, highways, secondary roads, trails, and mountains.

Since Java is 622 miles long and 121 miles wide at its widest part it is mapped in two sections to provide as large a scale possible within the space available.

Java, which yesterday underwent its first Japanese air raid, is the heart of the Netherlands East Indies, the most densely populated area in the world, and one of the richest in natural resources. With the relatively small island of Madoera, which is associated with it for administrative purposes, it covers an area somewhat smaller than Illinois. Yet its population is approximately 42,000,000 as compared to 7,874,155 for Illinois. There are approximately 817 persons to the square mile in Java and Madoera.

Japs Raid Soerabaja.

Most of the 4,070 miles of railroads in the Netherlands Indies is in Java, which also boasts most of the large cities of the Indies. The principal cities of Java, with their populations as of 1930, are as follows: Batavia, the capital of the Netherlands Indies [with the town of Meester Cornelis], 533,015; Soerabaja, 341,675; Semarang, 217,796; Bandoeng, 166,815; Soerakarta, 165,484, and Jogjakarta, 136,649.

Soerabaja, second largest city of Java and site of the major naval base of the Netherlands Indies, was the target of the Japanese attack yesterday. The interests of Soerabaja are wholly naval and commercial. The naval base has an inner and outer harbor, a torpedo boat harbor, barracks, and other facilities. Commercial docks at Soerabaja are extensive, since the city is one of the most important centers of trade and commerce in the East Indies.

Altho Java has extensive mountainous areas, much of the island is fertile and crops grow in abundance. There are four different plant zones on the island, from sea level to mountain tops, and more than 5,000 species of plants are found there. Teak is the chief tree exploited economically.

Half of Island Cultivated.

Roughly between 40 and 50 per cent of Java is cultivated, the remainder being mainly mountain or forest. Principal crops are rice, rubber, sugar cane, coconuts, millets, cassava, sweet potatoes, soy beans, kapok, tobacco, coffee, cocoa, fruits, and cinchona. Kapok, or silk cotton, is almost a monopoly of the island. It is well known in America as a stuffing for pillows. It is from the bark of the cinchona tree that quinine is derived. Nearly the entire world's supply of quinine originates in Java.

Petroleum and coal also are found in Java. At Wonokromo, near Soerabaja, are large oil refineries.

The Portuguese were the first Europeans to visit Java. They arrived early in the 16th century. The Dutch appeared in 1595, obtained their first territorial concessions in 1677, and controled a large part of the island by the beginning of the 19th century. When the French, during the Napoleonic period, tried to take the Dutch possessions in the East Indies they first hoisted their flag over Batavia. This brought the British to the scene. The British defeated the French at Weltevreden, near Batavia, and took over control of Java. In 1816, however, the island was returned to the Dutch.

TWO CHICAGOANS IN COAST GUARD SLAIN IN ACTION

Two Chicago coast guardsmen have been killed in action on undisclosed fronts, telegrams to their parents from the navy department revealed yesterday. The victims were George Holl Jr., 21 years old, of 7123 Roosevelt road, Berwyn, and James B. McGrane, 22, of 649 North Monticello avenue. McGrane was the son of Policeman Lee McGrane, assigned to the Union railroad station. Holl wrote his parents last month that he was being transferred from the Atlantic coast to an unrevealed destination.

CAN'T KEEP GRANDMA IN HER CHAIR

She's as Lively as a Youngster—Now her Backache is better

Many sufferers relieve nagging backache quickly, once they discover that the real cause of their trouble may be tired kidneys.

The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking the excess acids and waste out of the blood. They help most people pass about 3 pints a day.

When disorder of kidney function permits poisonous matter to remain in your blood, it may cause nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

SINGAPORE GUNS HIT BACK AS JAPS BOMB FORTRESS

Put New Defense Works in Mangrove Swamps.

SINGAPORE, Feb. 4 [Wednesday] (AP).—Artillery batteries on Singapore island roared into action again today, blasting away at Japanese troop movements on the Malayan mainland as enemy air raiders unleashed new attacks on this island fortress.

Despite the sudden flurry of artillery and air activity, there was no sign that the Japanese were about to begin their expected attempt to cross Johore strait, and a communique described the general situation as unchanged.

The announcement said that the new Japanese air assaults had caused some damage but few military casualties.

22 Dead, 90 Injured in Day.

It was acknowledged that 22 persons were killed and 90 injured by air raiders yesterday.

At the same time it was disclosed that anti-aircraft guns had shot down two, and probably three, Japanese planes over the island Sunday, Monday and Tuesday.

Taking advantage of each passing hour free from actual attack on the island itself, soldiers and civilians labored shoulder to shoulder today to strengthen Singapore's defenses while anti-aircraft crews manned their guns to ward off Japanese air raiders.

In the tangled mangrove swamps along Johore strait, across which the Japanese were massing on the Malayan mainland, troops familiar with the art of camouflage cunningly masked new machine gun nests, rifle pits, and gun emplacements.

Recruits Taught Tricks.

Battle hardened imperial troops, meanwhile, worked swiftly to instruct newly arrived reënforcements in tricks of war learned in the Malayan jungles, where for more than six weeks they fought the invaders.

British military men declared that every day the Japanese delayed in launching their expected assault would make the attack more difficult and more costly.

[A German radio broadcast heard last night in London acknowledged that the Japanese would "face a heavy task" if they tried to take Singapore. "Singapore still has enough and more than enough defense potentialities," the broadcast said.]

Singapore's cosmopolitan population appeared to be accepting stoically the repeated raids by Japanese bombers, which were generally regarded as preliminary to an attempted invasion.

"Business as usual" signs, long familiar in bomb blasted London, hung defiantly before many shops in sections hit by enemy raiders. The Japanese bombers ranged over the island from dawn to early afternoon yesterday, starting a number of fires and at the day's end smoke clouds smudged the blood red sunset.

The governor of the Straits Settlement, Sir Shenton Thomas, worked in his shirt sleeves with other civilians to help put out fires. The imperial military commander, Lieut. Gen. A. E. Percival, set a similar example by personally helping in fire defense work.

Hold on, Singapore Told.

CANBERRA, Australia, Feb. 3 (AP).—Army Minister Francis M. Forde told the Australian forces overseas in a broadcast today that "a big movement by the allies is underway."

Addressing especially the men of the Australian imperial force at Singapore, Forde declared that each hour that the Japanese are held at bay permits the concentration and deployment of more reinforcements and the accumulation of more weapons.

"It does not need my words to impel you, therefore, to hold on," he said.

Claims Division Wiped Out.

CHUNGKING, China, Feb. 3 (AP).—The Chinese army spokesman today reported that the Japanese 16th division had been all but wiped out at Johore Bahru, across the strait from Singapore, and that 10,000 Japanese bodies already had arrived in Indo-China.

WOUNDED YANK GENERAL FORMER MAJOR IN I. N. G.

Brig. Gen. Clinton A. Pierce, reported wounded in the Philippines yesterday, began his military career in Illinois. He was born in Brooklyn, N. Y., June 15, 1894. In 1916 he was a corporal in the 1st field artillery, Illinois National Guard.

He rose to the rank of major in the National Guard, then transferred to the regular army with the rank of second lieutenant of cavalry in 1917. He was made a captain in 1920, a major in 1930, and a lieutenant colonel in 1939. He graduated from the cavalry training school at Fort Riley, Kas., in 1923, and completed the advanced course at the school in 1932.

Pearl Harbor Trophy

Mrs. Anne Gardner showing Japanese parachute silk to Col. R. M. Montague, officer in charge of the marines' central recruiting division in the federal building.

A letter from Private Charles Burrows of the marine corps at Pearl Harbor brought a trophy of American marksmanship yesterday to his mother, Mrs. Anne Gardner of 4425 Indianapolis boulevard. It was two pieces of silk, which Burrows explained were cut from the parachute of the first Japanese air raider shot down in the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor. The marine, who is 18 years old, said the attack was "like a sky full of Roman candles and sky rockets." He asked in return for the trophy one of his mother's fruit cakes.

DOMINION STATUS FOR INDIA URGED IN PARLIAMENT

Can Not Grant It Now, Says Secretary.

BY LARRY RUE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Feb. 3.—Demands that India be given dominion status and treated as an equal, and that an end be put to the color bar, were made in the house of lords today.

The duke of Devonshire, parliamentary undersecretary for India, replied to critics that the statement issued by the governor general of India [the Marquess of Linlithgow] Aug. 8, 1940, was a definite promise that the British government was "prepared to hand over to Indians the government of their country" and "would do so at the earliest possible moment."

India's war effort is "already vastly greater than contemplated in the period before the war," and the only reason recruiting was limited was due to "difficulties of equipment and technical services," he said.

Recruits are now enlisting at the rate of 50,000 monthly, and technical volunteers more than 9,000 monthly. He said the war itself made it impossible to turn over the government to the Indians, even if Britain could find some one in India capable of taking over the government, as Indian leaders have not reached any agreement among themselves.

Lord Faringdon, Laborite peer, accused the British government of having adopted for a hundred years of English rule an attitude of complacency regarding India. He said India "paid and is paying a handsome dividend for anything we might have done for them," but "appalling poverty still is the outstanding feature of Indian life," and during all of English rule, the "standard in India has not risen."

He quoted statistics to show that the average income in India is only 6 pounds 3 shillings [about $24.60] yearly. He compared that with Japan, where the income averages 20 pounds [about $80].

PLANES HELP U. S. WIN 2 BATTLES IN BATAAN AREA

Detect Efforts to Land Jap Troops at Night.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 3 (AP).—Gen. Douglas MacArthur today reported that his troops in the Philippines had smashed two Japanese forces which attempted night landings behind his lines on the west coast of the Bataan peninsula, Luzon, battleground.

The first was beaten off by artillery fire. The second, a more serious attempt, was first discovered by American pursuit ships which attacked from the air. As the invaders approached the shore MacArthur's beach batteries opened up. The result, in the words of the war department, was:

"The Japanese force suffered heavy casualties in men and boats. On the following morning a number of disabled barges were found along the beaches. Some of these were burning and others were adrift. None of the invading group reached shore."

A Successful Counterattack.

At the other side of the peninsula, on the right of the MacArthur line, meanwhile, American and Filipino troops were counterattacking with great success. Previously, the Japanese 65th division, under Gen. Nara, had attempted to "drive a wedge" into the defending forces by a frontal assault.

By the counterattack, MacArthur's men over-ran three lines of Japanese trenches, and captured a considerable store of enemy war equipment.

At the left of the line there was ground fighting of a minor character. Japanese pressure there was much relaxed. Some "enemy pockets" were discovered in that region, however, and "isolated groups of Japanese soldiers" were "being mopped up."

Artillery Disperses "Tatori."

Describing the landing attempts, the war department said the first, early Monday evening, was undertaken by the "Tatori," specially selected and trained Japanese shock troops. The artillery was sufficient to disperse it.

The second attack, at midnight, apparently was carefully planned by the Japs, for the barges sent against the coast were given naval support. Perhaps a considerable factor in its defeat was its discovery by American flyers, remnants of the air fleet with which Manila was provided when the war began.

Gen. MacArthur reported that Brig. Gen. Clinton A. Pierce had been slightly wounded in action. Gen. Pierce was one of six officers whose promotions from colonel to brigadier general were confirmed by the senate on Jan. 29 on MacArthur's recommendation.

British Report French to Send Aid to Nazis in Libya

New York, Feb. 3 (AP).—The British radio today said Adm. Jean Darlan, French vice premier, had agreed to send two shiploads of supplies weekly to Tunis in French North Africa for transport overland to German Field Marshal Erwin Rommel in Libya. The first ship is due in Tunis soon with a cargo of trucks and about 1,000 tons of other goods, the broadcast said.

GIRL PERISHES, SISTER HURT IN SISTERS HURT IN

Cecelia Bronson, 3 years old, was suffocated and her twin sister, Clara, and another sister, Camille, 16 months old, were seriously affected by smoke when fire attacked the Bronson home at 102 East Kenilworth avenue, Villa Park, last night.

Mrs. Bronson was awaiting the return of her husband, George, from his work in Chicago when she smelled smoke and rushed to the rear. She found the basement ablaze and had a neighbor call the fire department while she went upstairs where the children were sleeping to try to rescue them. The smoke was so dense, however, that she could not enter the room.

The firemen under Chief George Williams quickly arrived and equipped with gas masks brought the children out. Clara and Camille were taken to Elmhurst hospital while an inhalator squad worked in vain on Cecelia.

JAPANESE SHELL BRITISH TROOPS NEAR MOULMEIN

Enemy Bombs Airdromes in Central Burma.

RANGOON, Burma, Feb. 3 (AP).—British troops operating from their new line above Moulmein in lower Burma came into contact with a small Japanese force 30 miles north of the city and east of the river Salween today, an army communique announced.

"Later there was a little shelling but we had no casualties," the communique said. "Two officers who were missing after the withdrawal from Moulmein [last week] have arrived safely."

Japanese planes twice attacked airdromes in central Burma, the RAF announced.

There were no casualties among RAF personnel in the first raid, nor any damage to RAF property, said the communique. No details were given concerning the second attack.

Sight Big Japanese Convoy.

CHUNGKING, China, Feb. 3 (AP).—Heavy Japanese troop movements, presumably made necessary by the enemy's losses in the southwest Pacific, were reported today by a Chinese military spokesman who said that a single Japanese convoy of 69 vessels had been sighted moving south in Formosa strait off Amoy.

Twenty-one ships of the convoy were transports, he added, and 41 were warships.

He said, too, that several Japanese divisions which had been moving south on the Tientsin-Pukow railway on Jan. 23 had been diverted at Tsinan to the North China port of Tsingtao and there embarked on waiting transports; and that tens of thousands of Japanese troops were arriving in Shanghai to embark there.

Among the enemy's known present maneuvers in force, the spokesman said, was a major effort to drive into British Burma from northern Thailand. The point of concentration, he added, was Chiengmai, 175 miles northeast of Moulmein.

Bomb Martaban: Japs.

TOKIO, Feb. 3 [From Japanese Broadcasts] (AP).—Crack Japanese bombing units took advantage of ideal weather to subject Martaban to a mass bombing this afternoon following the capture of Moulmein across the Salween river in Burma, a Domei news agency report said.

Heavy damage was inflicted on military objectives and all the Japanese raiders returned to their bases, the dispatch said.

The fiercest battle for Moulmein, which the British evacuated last Friday, occurred near Salween park, where pillboxes and barbed wire entanglements were left rent and twisted, the agency reported.

Christmas Card Mail at Pearl Harbor Recovered

HONOLULU, Feb. 3 (AP).—Thousands of water-soaked, rust-marked Christmas cards—many written by men now dead—were salvaged today from a damaged warship in Pearl Harbor. The grim reminders of the Dec. 7 attack were mailed just before the Japanese planes struck. All were turned over to the postoffice for dispatch to their destinations.

You do NOT need a "Priority" to Travel by Air!

With the newspapers, the newsmagazines and the radio reporting total "priorities on tires," "priorities on aluminum" and priorities on other essential materials, it is not surprising that many people have the mistaken impression that government priorities on transportation interfere seriously with air line operation and with the public use of air travel.

THE FACTS ARE:

1. When seats on an air line, or on any other medium of transportation, are required by the government for war purposes, priority, to the extent required, is given promptly.

2. The establishment of such travel priorities has not interfered with the operation of the air lines or with the use of air transportation by the public; nor was it intended by the government that the formal institution of priorities would, to any substantial extent, result in such interference. Here is what the War Department has said officially on the subject:

". . . assigning priorities of air line space to certain persons whose travel is necessary to the successful prosecution of the war effort . . . will not interfere to any measurable extent with the travel of the general public . . . The percentage of such (priority) passengers to the total is and undoubtedly will be very small . . ."

Furthermore, for many weeks prior to the government's announcement, the air lines had already been granting priority to travelers on business "necessary to the successful prosecution of the war effort," whenever such priority was required to secure a reservation. A very small percentage of the total number of seats available have had to be assigned on a priority basis. The formal application of priorities to air travel has not changed this percentage.

3. You do not have to ask for or secure any form of "priority" to make a reservation on an air line or to make a trip by air. Any impression given by the press that you have to "stand in line" to get air line reservations, or that most of the seats are taken by "priority" passengers, is entirely at variance with the facts.

4. When you take a trip by air, you will not be preventing anyone "whose travel is necessary to the successful prosecution of the war effort" from getting transportation on an air line. On most of the flights, seats are available: if or when there are not enough to go around, preference will be given to government requests if priority is specifically requested.

Thus, the record itself and the statement of the War Department indicate that the majority of the air line seats are and will continue to be available for the use of the American business man who wants to aid in conserving our most precious resource, Time.

REDS HURL BACK NAZIS' RESERVES; CLAIM NEW GAINS

Press Drive on Smolensk, Foe's Anchor City.

MOSCOW, Feb. 4 [Wednesday] (AP).—German reserve troops have failed to halt the advancing Russians and today Red army columns were stabbing toward the Nazi anchor city of Smolensk, 230 miles west of Moscow, and filtering into the Ukraine between the Donetz and Dnieper rivers.

The midnight communique announced that "during Feb. 3 our troops continued to advance on most sectors of the front" and other dispatches likewise told of steady Red marches. "The enemy threw in reserves," the communique said, and "on some sectors of the front started counteroffensives but were repulsed with heavy losses. "Our troops again advanced."

A resumption of German aerial activity in the Moscow area was acknowledged, when the communique said that nine German planes were shot down near here yesterday.

Bomb Behind Nazi Lines.

Far behind the Germans' fighting lines, soviet big bombers struck at communication lines over which Adolf Hitler was rushing troop reënforcements. Vital German held railway junctions were bombed by Red flyers who were credited with destruction of at least three supply trains and upward of 200 freight cars.

The central front push was developing into a flanking attack on Smolensk from the Kirov region to the southeast, in weather 40 degrees below zero Fahrenheit.

Frontal pressure continued from the direction of Mozhaisk, but the Reds appeared to be concentrating in a wide sector some 80 miles to the south. The Russians were moving from Kozelsk.

20 Miles from Dnepropetrovsk.

This drive swept the Reds along roads and forest trails blotted out by the ice and snow. The fingers of the drive clutched within 100 miles of Smolensk. Front line dispatches said many German bodies were found frozen.

In the Ukraine, the Germans were rushing tank and air support in an effort to halt the soviet forces, whose spearheads were reported within 20 miles of the main southern German base of Dnepropetrovsk at the great bend of the Dnieper river.

Red Star, the army paper, reported that troops were being flown to the front and that soviet fighter planes were intercepting them along the route.

Claim Nazi Losses "Terrible."

New York, Feb. 3 (AP).—The British radio heard here said today German losses have been so terrible that Hitler's generals had demanded 20 fresh divisions immediately from the occupied countries. The radio said the commanders declared it would "be hard, if not impossible, to prevent a general Russian break thru if immediate reënforcements were not forthcoming.

Counterattacks in Crimea.

BERLIN, Feb. 3 [From German Broadcasts] (AP).—Russian troops in the eastern Crimea launched severe counterattacks against the German lines, but were repulsed with heavy losses, the Berlin radio said tonight.

Earlier the high command reported the repulse of heavy soviet attacks northeast of Taganrog on the sea of Azov and declared that elsewhere on the Russian front counterattacking Nazi troops had scored local successes despite "stubborn enemy resistance" and adverse weather. The Red army suffered heavy losses in its unsuccessful attacks in the Taganrog sector, the daily communique declared.

STALIN PROGRAM PERILS EUROPE, FINLAND IS TOLD

HELSINGFORS, Finland, Feb. 3 (AP).—President Risto Ryti told the Finnish parliament today that schemes for the reorganization of Europe agreed upon in Moscow by Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden of Britain and Premier Josef Stalin were "worth nothing for they will never be realized."

He said he had no official information concerning Eden-Stalin agreements, but on the basis of Finland's experiences with bolshevism he could safely conjecture that Stalin's program constituted "the greatest danger threatening us and the whole of Europe."

"Mr. Eden seems to have no objections to Stalin's program," the Finnish president added.

TRAIN AIRBORNE INFANTRY TO BE TOUGH AND FAST

Picked Men to Support Parachute Troops.

BY JACK THOMPSON.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Fort Benning, Ga., Feb. 3.—Rigorous training is making tough, fast, level headed soldiers out of members of the army's new airborne infantry, the fighting men assigned to swarm into airports which have been seized by parachute troops.

Activated only last October, the new troops are in command of Col. E. G. Chapman, formerly in charge of the ROTC unit at Northwestern university, Evanston. Much of the work they do, and some of their equipment, is still in an experimental stage, but the colonel thinks his men are already a well trained organization.

All Are Volunteers.

All are volunteers, the pick of infantry replacement centers. Only four have failed to make the grade in the special training now in progress. This training, like that of the parachutists whom they support, stresses individual ability and initiative. Under battle conditions the men may often work as independent small units, fighting off heavy enemy forces, so they undergo rigorous physical conditioning.

Much of their training centers about the loading of transports, unloading, and getting into action fast with equipment. They usually bring in heavier weapons than the parachutists are able to carry, such as 37 mm. anti-tank guns, heavy machine guns, and mortars.

To gain experience along this line they work on an immense imitation airplane fuselage, built to scale, but fashioned mostly of wood. It simulates the type of transport they will use.

Practice on Obstacle Course.

One of the devices designed to develop the physical stamina these soldiers need is the obstacle course—a maze of hurdles, walls, ropes, tunnels, and pits. One soldier is said to have maneuvered the course in 3½ minutes. In this time he:

Clambered over an 8 foot wooden wall with the help of a knotted rope; picked his way thru an arena of closely packed automobile tires, like a football half back; ran thru a zigzag knee high corridor; stumbled over a 6 foot log pile; ran thru a small forest of tree stumps; pulled himself thru a coffinlike wood tunnel; swung by ropes over a deep pit; jumped a wide trench; climbed over a 12 foot stile; made his way, hand over hand, by a horizontal ladder over another pit; pulled himself up a 20 foot rope ladder and then slid down a fire pole; climbed another 12 foot wooden ladder, sliding in and out of the rungs; jumped to a horizontol bar, and swung to the ground; ran up and down an Irish bank, one of the jumps for a hunting horse; rolled down into a trench; climbed up sand bags; rolled under a wooden wall, and climbed another, and then raced thru barbed wire up a hill.

That is all required on the first try and for the second "run" the soldier goes thru the course carrying a full pack!

The recruits here like the airborne infantry. They consider themselves élite troops, and they enjoy the distinction their hazardous work gives them.

DECLARES REDS WILL NOT RELIEVE NAZIS BY MAKING WAR ON JAPS

KUIBYSHEV, Russia, Feb. 3. (AP).—The soviet union will not "give Hitler the pleasure" of [Russia] entering the Pacific war against Japan, Andrei Malyshev, communist party spokesman-lecturer, declared tonight. His statement followed many official reaffirmations of Russia's relations with Japan, based on the neutrality pact between them.

"Japan's entry into the war was the climax to Hitler's foreign policy successes," Malyshev said in a speech. "But it was an incomplete success because Hitler failed to drag Japan into the war against the U. S. S. R. "Naturally, we will not give Hitler the pleasure of unleashing war in our far east."

Malyshev reiterated the soviet point of view that Germany is enemy No. 1 and said the United States "is interested in speeding up" the Nazi defeat.

Kelly and Naval Official Will Speak at Rally

Mayor Kelly and Assistant Secretary of the Navy Ralph Bard were added yesterday to the list of speakers at the patriotic rally, "Lincoln Speaks Again," Feb. 12 in the Medinah temple. Other addresses will be made by Gov. Green and Rear Adm. Wat T. Cluverius, former commandant of the 9th naval district. The rally is sponsored by the treasury department, the American Legion and the Navy league.

DOROTHY LAMOUR AND SABU BOOST SALE OF STAMPS

Tribune Offices Collect $13,415 in Day.

Two Hollywood movie players, Dorothy Lamour and Sabu, the Hindu boy actor, made separate appearances in Chicago yesterday to aid the sale of defense bonds and stamps. Miss Lamour addressed employés at the Bowman Dairy company and the Reliance Manufacturing company, and sold bonds and stamps in the victory center at Marshall Field's department store.

Sabu and his pygmy elephant entertained high school students at Lane Technical, Amundsen, Senn, and Lake View high schools. He is in Chicago to stimulate sales of defense stamps by newspaper carriers.

Tribune Sales $13,415.

Tribune public service offices in Tribune Tower and 1 South Dearborn street reported sales of $13,012 in bonds and $403 in stamps yesterday.

Among the buyers at Tribune Tower was Lynne Lee Hall, 20 months old, who emptied her Christmas stocking of pennies and carried home an $18.75 bond. Her mother is Mrs. Evelyne Hall, former American Olympic team hurdler, of 3215 Washington boulevard.

Mrs. Bertha L. Knapp, financial chairman of the first district, Illinois State Nurses' association, bought a $10,000 series G bond in the name of the organization.

The Royal League, a national fraternal society, bought defense bonds totaling $50,000 yesterday. Henry R. Kent, national treasurer, said the organization has 12,000 members in 60 councils in Chicago.

Club Buys $1,000 Bond.

A Jugo-Slav Moslem fraternal group, Muslimansko Popmagajuce Drusto Dzemjjetul Harjrye, bought a $1,000 defense bond. Smajo Kravich, secretary, said each of its 72 members had pledged to buy between $100 and $5,000 in defense bonds.

The Chicago-Illinois Bowling league bought $300 worth of 10 cent defense stamps at Tribune Tower. The stamps, to be placed in 60 five dollar albums, will be awarded as prizes to league members, C. E. Winegart, president, said.

Sailors at the Great Lakes Naval Training station have bought $3,652.70 in defense savings stamps since the Pearl Harbor attack, Ensign Clark E. Nixon, issuing agent, reported yesterday.

GENERAL OFFICE 585 FIFTH AVENUE • TELEPHONE PLAZA 6-3100

Mr. D. F. McMahon
Manager, Retail Advertising Department
Chicago Tribune
Chicago, Illinois

Dear Mr. McMahon:

Companies always make year-end reports to their stockholders, sometimes to their employees, almost never to the advertising medium they employ. But, because the Tribune has played so large a part in Peck & Peck's 1941 sales record, we thought you might be interested in knowing:

1. Our three women's sportswear stores, one in Evanston and two on Michigan Avenue, have been breaking all previous sales records.

2. For the month of November we showed a sales increase of 60%.

3. Even in the difficult month of December Peck & Peck shops showed a 27% gain.

This continued increase in Peck & Peck sales is the result of no change in merchandising or advertising policies. We have continued to offer Chicago women clothes that are both sound fashion and sound investments. And we have continued to advertise them in the Tribune. As a matter of fact, this is the fifth consecutive year that we have advertised exclusively to Chicago through the Tribune. What is more, our ten year record shows 128,683 lines of advertising out of 130,677 placed with the Tribune.

We believe that our policy of offering sound-investment clothing through the prime advertising medium of the Chicago Tribune, has accounted to a large degree for our success here.

Very truly yours,

A. Wells Peck

AWP/s

Reproduced in greatly reduced size above are typical advertisments in the series placed by Peck & Peck exclusively in the Tribune—with the results reported in the letter above.

IN the accompanying letter, another long-term advertiser adds case history proof that you use your promotion funds to best advantage when you build your sales drive around the Tribune.

In 1930, after many years of experience with Chicago newspapers, Peck & Peck made the Tribune its number one medium. In 1937 Peck & Peck began to use the Tribune exclusively.

In each of the past five years this establishment has stepped up its use of Tribune space. Last year Peck & Peck's linage in the Tribune was practically double the amount used in 1937—with the results noted above.

When you can have more, why take less? Delivering hundreds of thousands more circulation, daily and Sunday, than other Chicago newspapers, the Tribune is the one medium which has the full market coverage you need in order to make a maximum showing at minimum cost.

Chicago retailers as a group know this to be a fact. Last year they placed in the Tribune 58% more of their advertising linage than they placed in any other Chicago newspaper.

To maintain your sales in line with your requirements and your expectations, ask a representative to help you plan a program built around the Tribune.

BRITISH LAUNCH COUNTER-BLOWS ON LIBYAN FRONT

Strive to Stabilize a Line from North to South.

CAIRO, Egypt, Feb. 3 (AP).—British armored columns took to the offensive southeast of Bengazi today in an effort to maintain command of the inland shortcut across the hump of Libya and to ease axis pressure on withdrawing Indian units in the coastal mountains to the north.

Strongly supported from the air, roving columns turned upon German Field Marshal Erwin Rommel's extended flank along the desert highway which the British twice have traveled in previous drives to cut off Bengazi.

The theater of this action was northeast of Msus, 70 miles southeast of Bengazi, where a north-south caravan trail crosses the highway. In the Jebel el Achdar coastal range to the north, the 4th Indian division, also closely supported by the RAF, gave ground slowly before reënforced enemy forces.

240 Miles from Egypt.

Today's British communique failed to say how far these troops have withdrawn, but yesterday their positions were said to be just east of Slonta, about 240 miles west of the Egyptian border and 100 miles northeast of Bengazi.

By diverting some of the axis forces from the coastal area to the Msus front, 80 miles south and slightly east of Slonta, the British apparently hoped to equalize their opposition and stabilize a front from the north to south.

Military circles appeared confident, however, that the front would be stabilized and exhibited no great concern over ground lost.

"It's only a question of time when Rommel's supply line, stretching like a rubber band, will break. Then we will move in again and smash as much as possible of his forces," an officer said. "We've always known there's little point in desert conquest unless you take as a prime problem the necessity of destroying the enemy's forces. Area is not important. Tanks, men, and trucks are."

Axis Reports Advance on Derna.

ROME, Feb. 4 [Wednesday] [From Italian Broadcasts] (AP).—Axis forces in Libya are continuing their advance toward Derna after inflicting a heavy defeat on Indian troops thrown into action to cover the British retreat, the Italian high command said today. The advancing axis columns are strongly supported by air forces, the high command added.

[The German communique said Nazi aircraft had bombed British forces in the Tobruk area and supply dumps near Matruh, Egypt.]

The daily war bulletin also declared that German air formations were continuing their daily assaults on the British Mediterranean base at Malta.

BRITAIN, ETHIOPIA SIGN PACT; ARMY ALLOWED TO STAY

Selassie Gets Military and Financial Aid.

BY LARRY RUE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Feb. 3.—Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden announced in the house of commons today that Britain has signed a pact with Ethiopia under which Emperor Haile Selassie will allow Britain to maintain in his country all the military forces it desires. Under the pact, Britain will make grants totaling $10,000,000 to Ethiopia over two years, and British officials will remain as personal advisers to the emperor, as well as police commissioners, officers, inspectors, and judges.

Selassie, Eden stated, asked for a British military mission to help reorganize his army, which will be equipped with the booty captured from the Italians.

Eden also said that the emperor had "declared his intention of issuing decrees abolishing slavery as soon as he is in a position to legislate."

British Minister on Way.

The Anglo-Ethiopian pact, signed Jan. 31, restored diplomatic relations with the emperor, and the British minister, R. G. Howe, already is en route to Addis Ababa.

The agreement provides that a 25 mile wide strip of Ethiopia along the border of French Somaliland, together with all the land in Ethiopia occupied by the Franco-Ethiopian railway, will remain under British military administration as long as the British commander in chief in East Africa considers it necessary.

Altho the pact specifies that there will be no "special or extraterritorial jurisdiction over foreigners," it provides that any foreigner who wishes may have his case transferred to a high court where at least one of three judges shall be British.

British to Evacuate Prisoners.

All enemy war prisoners will be handed over to British military authorities who will evacute them from Ethiopia. In return, Britain undertakes to try to secure repatriation of all Ethiopians, as well as artistic works, now in Italian hands.

The agreement will remain in force until replaced by a treaty for which "the emperor is invited to make proposals." If the treaty does not materialize within two years, the agreement may be terminated at three months notice by either side.

One of the first registered nurses to join the United States army with the Northwestern base hospital unit was Miss Margaret Lacey, 29 East Division street, secretary to the medical counselor of THE TRIBUNE. The unit, comprised of 60 doctors and 120 nurses, will leave for Camp Custer in Michigan within the next two weeks.

Miss Lacey is a graduate of Sioux Falls college, Sioux Falls, S. D., and Passavant hospital. She has been an employé of THE TRIBUNE for the last two and a half years. Miss Lacey's sister and classmate at Passavant, Miss Ida Lacey, also enlisted with the unit. She has been a floor superintendent at Passavant for 18 months.

A brother of the girls already is in the service. He is Lieut. Donald Lacey, a graduate of Annapolis who is on the faculty of the Naval Reserve school in Boston, Mass.

GERMANY FIGHTS TO GET READY FOR SPRING OFFENSIVE

Curbs Europe's Railways to Bolster Army in East.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Against the inroads of plague, creeping revolt, hunger, and lack of fuel, Germany is engaged in a tremendous midwinter attempt to mobilize subdued and trampled Europe for the spring offensives which Adolf Hitler has promised.

This is the picture contained in private advices to the Associated Press from persons at the few remaining neutral listening posts on the German frontier and in disclosures from within the borders of both the reich and her allies.

Last night from Norway to the Black sea, the German masters imposed upon middle Europe the second restrictions on civilian railway travel in less than three weeks, in an effort to get men, armies, and supplies to Russia.

But the strain on long distance transport to the eastern fighting areas is not the only reason for the curtailment of train facilities. Lack of coal and oil is an important factor; another is the conversion of many coaches into ambulance trains and even stationary barracks; still a third is the problem of repairing worn out rolling stock under an economy geared almost 100 per cent to armament production.

Norse, Polish Trains, Cut.

In Poland, almost all local trains were stopped and the passenger expresses from Cracow and Warsaw to Germany were canceled. In Norway, the shortage of coal and coaches limited the important Oslo-Bergen line to three trains weekly. The Oslo-Trondheim line also was curtailed.

Bulgaria, which with Hungary sent engines to Germany in other days, reduced passenger train schedules. Hungarian trains were reduced even below the level prevailing at the end of 1940, when many suburban travelers had to leave Budapest by 5 p. m. or stay there all night.

The Frankfurter Zeitung noted that because of the many army trains, distribution of coal and potatoes was irregular within Germany and was causing shortages. But the German army was moving potatoes to the eastern front in passenger cars, which could be heated.

These were immediate difficulties affecting civilian Germans, but there were indications of more ominous ones.

Dread Typhus Strikes Hard.

Spotted typhus, dread camp follower of wars, spread west and south from the Baltic and Poland into Germany, Bulgaria, and other occupied areas. The German health ministry listed 126 cases in Germany and 138 in the occupied countries. Pernik, Bulgaria, was mentioned as a plague center; Bulgarian gypsies were carrying typhus; Danish doctors meeting at Copenhagen noted a sharp increase in the number of persons infested with the disease carrying lice.

A demarcation line was established at which persons coming from the east are examined for the lice. Jews in Poland were forbidden to forward letters and packages lest this spread typhus.

A frightening story of cold and hunger in Greece was told by the Budapest publication Southeast Economist, which said starved and shivering men, women, and children are roaming Athens in the coldest winter in two decades, eating only weeds and grass and utterly without heating facilities. There is no coal; industries, railways, and trolleys in Athens have stopped running; there have been periods of as long as eight days when some cities had no bread.

France Has "No More Coal."

Unoccupied France was little better off. The secretary of public works, Francois Lehideux, declared: "We have no more coal, no more gasoline, no more cement, even no more water to feed our turbines." He said France's once large stocks of metals "have been thinned out and in some cases have completely disappeared"—obviously into the Nazi arsenal.

At Lyons, in unoccupied France, the French executed a person for treason yesterday, but gave no particulars of the case.

Continued rebellion of the Norwegians against their conquerors and Quislings was attested from Germany's own ally, Finland. The Helsingfors newspaper Sosialidemokraatti, said only a handful of Norwegians supported Maj. Vidkun Quisling, who now has been made the puppet premier, and that most of the people "find it extremely hard to tolerate German occupation."

Stockholm received reports from Berlin to the effect that measures approaching a state of siege had been imposed by Nazi authorities upon Amsterdam, in the Netherlands, as a result of demonstrations and sabotage. No civilians may go outdoors after 8 p. m. and street cars stop running at 7 p. m.

British Women Assail Group (All Men) to Quiz Their Work

BY LARRY RUE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Feb. 3.—Women members of parliament were up in arms tonight against the government's proposal to establish an all male committee to investigate conditions in the three women's auxiliary services—the ATS, WAAF, and WRNS—which assist the territorial [home] army, the air force, and royal navy.

Lord Privy Seal Clement R. Attlee announced to the house of commons the committee membership: Sir Victor Warrender, 43 years old, parliamentary and financial secretary of the admiralty; Capt. Harold Harington Balfour, 45, undersecretary of state for air; Ralph Assheton, 41, parliamentary secretary, ministry of labor and national service; and Sir Edward Grigg, 63, parliamentary secretary of the war office.

Rely on Four Young Men?

Miss Eleanor Rathbone, 70 years old, independent party member, hastened to remark that the people seeking reassurances about conditions in the women's services are parents and husbands, and asked:

"Will they be reassured by the report of four young men in high positions in the government?"

Miss Thelma Cazalet, Conservative, suggested it might be a good thing to "set up an all women's committee to inquire into the amenities of the male services."

George Russell Strauss, Laborite, protested that "it is a mistake to have an investigation into conditions in these services by the people who are responsible for them."

Attlee refused to budge, however.

Plan Campaign of Ridicule.

A meeting of the woman power committee, of which most of the women members of parliament are members, was convened hurriedly to discuss a plan of opposition campaign.

Then it was announced the women would oppose the present setup of the committee "by every parliamentary means." They were convinced, it was said, that by the astute employment of ridicule as the main weapon, they would be able to force the government to alter the personnel and appoint at least three women to the committee.

EGYPTIAN KING STRIVES TO FORM UNION CABINET

CAIRO, Feb. 3 (AP).—King Farouk called on the Egyptian people today to support his efforts toward forming a government of national union. The government of Hussein Sirry Pasha resigned yesterday as a result of internal difficulties.

The king's appeal was interpreted as meaning the monarch would ask Mustapha Nahas Pasha, head of the Wafd, Egypt's largest political party, to form a coalition government embracing virtually all political groups.

The Wafd had refused to participate in recent cabinets on grounds that the elections were unfair. If the effort to form the proposed cabinet succeeds, Egypt will have a united front government for the first time since the war began.

Egypt Fears an Invasion —by Swarms of Locusts

CAIRO, Egypt, Feb. 3 (AP).—Egypt is threatened by invasion. Swarms of locusts have been seen in the vicinity of the Red sea and authorities have appealed to the British and Egyptian air forces to coöperate in reporting any of the insects over Egyptian territory.

CAR CONSERVATION HDQRS.

Doubly Important Now—Get These Services Regularly

Service	Recommended Frequency
Repack Front Wheel Bearings. Prevent bearing wear—a cause of wheel misalignment and wobbling—(an important factor in tire wear).	5000 miles
Clean Spark Plugs—Regap if necessary. Dirty and worn plugs waste gas.	5000 miles
Switch Wheels and Tires. Extremely important in gaining maximum mileage for all tires. Your Standard Oil dealer knows the proper rearrangement for longest service.	5000 miles
Examine Tires for bruises, cuts, nails, glass, etc. Prevent little hurts from growing big.	1000 miles
Inflate Tires to proper pressure. Prevent excessive wear due to underinflation and overinflation.	Once a week
Check Oil Filter. Very important to keep abrasive grit and dirt out of motor.	8000 miles
Drain and Flush Radiator, check cooling system, fan belt. Guard against dangerous overheating.	Each season
Clean Air Cleaner. Dirty air cleaner acts like choke, causes excessive use of gas. Also allows grit to get into motor.	3000 miles (more frequently in dusty driving)
Fill Battery to proper level. This care, plus recharging when needed, and cleaning and greasing terminals, prolongs battery life.	7-14 days
Check Oil Level. Prolongs engine life by maintaining proper oil level.	Each gasoline fill
Drain and Refill Crankcase. Draining out dirty oil and refilling with clean fresh oil will prolong engine life.	1000 miles
Complete Chassis Lubrication. Prolongs car life by saving wear. Reduces need for parts replacements.	1000 miles
Change Transmission and Differential Lubricant. Check level every 1000 miles for protection against gear and bearing wear.	Spring and Fall
Wax and Polish Car to make finish last indefinitely.	3 months
Safety-checking and cleaning of lights, lenses, windshield, and windows.	Each station visit
Check Anti-freeze to insure proper amount and protection, to avoid boiling or leaking away.	Frequently

"Our Country! In her intercourse with foreign nations may she always be in the right; but our country, right or wrong."
—Stephen Decatur.

ARMS OUTPUT, THEN AND NOW.

When the United States entered the first World war we had been serving for some time as the "arsenal of democracy," and it was the submarine attacks on our ships bound for allied ports with armament which brought us into conflict with Germany. The ordinary man would conclude that we must therefore have been well prepared to increase our production by an amount sufficient to take care of ourselves and our allies as well.

In the World war the basic artillery weapon was the 75 millimeter field gun. The war department placed orders for 10,600 of the 75s, of which, however, only 143 were shipped to France before the armistice. Our army did its fighting in the last war with 1,828 of the 75s we purchased from the French.

The second most important artillery unit in the last war was the 155 millimeter howitzer. The army ordered 2,500 of these, but not a single one was shipped to Europe before the war was over. Our army used 747 of the 155s acquired by purchase from the French.

During the last war the army placed orders for 23,405 tanks. Not only were none available to the AEF in France, but not one tank was delivered in time for training purposes.

Orders were placed in the last war for 11,150 five ton tractors for use in pulling artillery over muddy roads. Of these about 1,500 were received in time to be used before the armistice.

The airplane program in the last war called for the production of the equivalent of 30,000 service planes in a year, in addition to 10,000 training planes. By the end of 1918 we had delivered about 4,000 service planes, in addition to almost the full program of training planes.

We fought the war with artillery ammunition largely supplied by our allies. Of all the principal items of warfare needed for the last war we did reasonably well only with machine guns. We ordered 540,000 and received not quite half of the order before the armistice.

Production facilities were greatly expanded and a year or two after November, 1918, we would have been well armed for the war. There were some noteworthy performances. Carnegie Steel and Lackawanna Steel company began shipping shell steel to France in August, 1918, six days after a cable was received that the French factories were running short. The American Brake Shoe and Foundry performed a miracle by building a plant in six months to turn out howitzers. The Crane company of Chicago began shipping four inch mortars made in its plumbing fixture plant a month after receiving an order. All of these and many other spectacular achievements did not add up to enough. Because we could not develop the facilities for producing the materials needed in the war in time, we who called ourselves the "arsenal of democracy" were dependent upon the munition factories of France and England in the last war.

This time the arsenal of democracy cannot depend upon French factories while arrangements are being made to produce. We are depended upon to make and ship great quantities of arms to Russia, Britain, Australia, the Dutch East Indies, and China, while equipping our army and maintaining it all over the world.

Nelson's job has been likened to Baruch's. There simply is no comparing the two, so much is there now to be done. No fault of Baruch's, but the delivery record of weapons and ammunition under him was atrocious. If Nelson's is not better we are lost. In time we can meet almost any production schedule. The problem we have to face is to get production without being able to count upon time.

Note: All of the figures given here were printed in a pamphlet published by the Cleveland Trust company and written by Leonard P. Ayres, now brigadier general in charge of war department statistics.

FILIPINO FREEMEN.

The present war, no matter how many reverses may attend it at the outset, is proving a good education for the Filipinos in freedom. The Filipinos were granted their freedom by act of congress. Now they can feel that they are winning it for themselves. Every report from Gen. MacArthur's embattled forces on the Bataan peninsula attests the gallantry of the Filipinos who are fighting beside American comrades in arms.

Japan has done everything it can to drive a wedge between the American forces and their Filipino comrades. Only a few days ago an obvious device was employed. The Japanese commander gave Gen. MacArthur an opportunity to reject the proposal that he surrender. Leaflets addressed to Filipino troops were then dropped by the Japs saying that MacArthur was cruelly leading them to their doom. The war department announced that this crude stunt "evoked considerable mirth" among the Filipinos, who then promptly assisted MacArthur to defeat two picked divisions of Jap troops.

The Japanese have been similarly frustrated in all attempts to recruit a Filipino Quisling column. Gen. Emilio Aguinaldo, the old insurrectionist, turned thumbs down on overtures before the Japs had proceeded very far in the invasion. President Manuel Quezon has been equally obdurate. From a place of refuge, he recently announced that the Filipino civil administration functioning in Manila had received authority from him before he took flight, and that, far from having gone over to the Japs, its loyalty was unquestioned.

The evidence all indicates that Japan can expect to make no sale in the Philippines of the so-called Greater East Asia Co-Prosperity Sphere. The degree of the failure is demonstrated in the severity of the repressive measures which the Japs already have been forced to decree. Almost a score of offenses against the invaders are punishable by death, among them refusal to accept the Japanese funny money brought in by the army of Nippon.

The situation in the Philippines may be gloomy now, despite the gallantry of its defenders, but is less gloomy for the long run than it might be. If you don't think so, reflect on what a politically skilful Japan, bent on winning the other Asiatic peoples by conciliatory means, might have accomplished in welding a united front against the white democracies.

TWISTED STEEL.

The pictures of the destruction at Pearl Harbor, released this week, were kept on ice by the navy department for nearly two months. It is to be hoped that in the interval the pictures were studied carefully by the admirals and the burocrats in Washington. The photographs show that a surface fleet, unprotected by swarms of airplanes, is unable to resist an enemy attack from the air. That should have been known before Pearl Harbor, for the lesson was taught off Greece and off Crete, off Norway, at Taranto, and in the sinking of the Bismarck. Our navy failed to learn from the experience of others, but perhaps it has now learned from its own bitter misfortune.

It is fortunate that the vessels were anchored in relatively shallow water when the attack came. The result is that the decks of even the sunken destroyers remained above the surface and no doubt that fact resulted in the saving of some lives. In addition, the twisted steel of the ships remained in plain sight to serve as a horrible object lesson. If the vessels had sunk beneath the waves the evidence of the power of the air arm would have disappeared, and the lesson might have been lost. Seeing is believing, and in Pearl Harbor there is plenty to see, as we now know.

It is not easy to understand why these pictures were kept so long from the public. They contained no factual information which was not known to the Japanese pilots who participated in the bombing and, more particularly, there is nothing shown in the pictures which had not previously been made public in words by the navy department itself. The pictures, of course, are far more vivid than words could be, and therefore are far more condemnatory of the naval command.

The circumstances suggest that the photographs were deliberately withheld until the navy could report some aggressive action, such as the raid against the Marshall and Gilbert island bases. If so, the department is very seriously misapprehending the public mind. The American people can take it. They don't have to be coddled. Their resolution will not be broken by bad news. The one thing which might go furthest to disturb civilian morale is the feeling that Washington is trying to hornswoggle the people by hiding unpleasant truths until the public mind has been prepared to receive them, to borrow the favorite phrase of the professional propagandists.

LAWFUL BUT UNDESIRABLE.

The Supreme court has overturned the rulings of federal District and Appeals courts in Chicago and has held that the department of agriculture has the right to regulate the price of all milk sold here, even tho some of that milk may be produced within the state of Illinois and thus does not enter interstate commerce. The present milk price control system in Chicago is thus established as legal.

The fact that it is legal does not make it desirable, a distinction that seems to be lost on the burocrats in Washington. There are a great many activities that are permissible under the Constitution which common sense and regard for economic theory and experience should deter the government from undertaking. The federal milk price control in Chicago has victimized all the consumers in this area by imposing on them one of the highest prices for milk to be found in the nation. The high prices, in turn, have been a potent factor in breaking down the home delivery system formerly in vogue, with consequent injury to union labor in the milk marketing field.

The "turbulence" in the Chicago milk market which the burocrats in Washington so abhor was the turbulence natural to a free competitive market. Whatever its defects, it cannot be denied that it resulted in the consumers of Chicago getting milk at prices within their ability to pay and thus in their buying of a considerably greater volume of milk than is now being sold at the higher fixed prices. In the long run, needlessly high prices will injure the farmers as well as the consumers and the employés of the dairy companies.

POVERTY AND CRIME.

Some people say that economic deprivation is at the root of most crime. They say that when men can't get jobs to earn an honest living they use dishonest means.

Now, if ever, the sociologists have an opportunity to demonstrate whether this thesis is true. With the tremendous war production program, the country is facing an actual shortage of labor. Men need not turn to crime to obtain bread. Parolees should have little difficulty finding work. As long as these conditions last, there is little economic reason for any man to engage in a career of crime.

Those who believe that crime is related less to economic conditions than to the viciousness of the criminal will await with interest the findings the sociologists are able to muster. An unbiased statistical review of the incidence of crime among first offenders and parolees and repeaters should go far to settle the question.

THE PEOPLE RULE.

[Indianapolis News.]

The election of a Republican member of congress from the 5th Connecticut district, which has been strongly Democratic for 10 years, has stimulated much speculation as to what the people are thinking. The election was held Tuesday to fill a vacancy created when the representative from the 5th district resigned to accept appointment as judge of the United States District court in Connecticut.

The Democratic nominee made the administration an issue. He campaigned on the promise that he would support the President on all issues. His problem was merely to hold the safe Democratic majority in the district. He had the support of administration appointees and of the Democrat who had resigned.

The Republican nominee argued for preservation of the two party system, urged the necessity of a strong opposition, and pledged himself to work for better administration of the war effort. He won by 3,615 votes.

Political leaders are reminding themselves that the Lincoln administration lost such important states as Indiana and Ohio in 1862 and that Wilson lost control of congress in 1918 at the climax of the war. In every instance, including Tuesday's Connecticut upset, the people spoke their minds against political bungling in wartime. After all, the people still rule. It is that fact which is forcing the administration to go to work on the war—that fact and the additional fact that a good many members of congress have to stand a primary election test within a few weeks.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

Hew to the Line, let the quips fall where they may. Reg. U. S. Pat. Office

IN ADVANCE OF THE NEWS.

One of these days or years, after we have bounced the Japanese out of the Marshalls, the Carolines, the Marianas, and other archipelagoes on the road to Tokio, the war will catch up with the Pelews [spelled Palaus on modern maps]. Then you may remember that this infrequently mentioned scatter of islands is the scene of "Van Zanten's Happy Days," a South Seas idyl written by a Dane named Laurid Bruun. It rates fairly high in our collection of the literature of Oceanica.

If you hear that warships are being refitted with steel caps over their funnels to prevent bombs from dropping into their most vital machinery, please remember that the Linemaster invented the device last Friday night at the cocktail hour. The council of war-winners to whom he presented the idea was scornful, as usual.

To catch fish you must learn to think like a fish. To cope with submarines on a large scale, you must think and behave like a submarine. Therefore we suggest to the technicians now engaged in wartime research the invention of a counter-submarine. We imagine it as an undersea vessel with listening gadgets to trail the enemy and destroy it by ramming, or signal its location to surface craft.

SPRING SONG IN WINTER.

O, love is sweet and love is bitter and love is sharp to the touch but had I never handled it
I'd not be knowing much.

And had I never met its thrust
or melted at its glance
I'd not be stepping
its complicated dance.

O, love is quick
and love is very strong and love will run the sharpest path
as lightly as a song.

O, it's a one-two one-two step, turn, swing, for love is like
a red-bird on the wing.

And if you mean to follow, you must have a steady eye, a light foot and a heart as deep
as the starry midnight sky.

Mr. Devlin finished his quarter pound of raw hamburger, licked his chops, and burped impolitely.

"Say, Big Stuff," said he, "about this here cat Ferdinand; he must have went to school from the language he slings [Jan. 20]. I'm beginning to like the big, silver-haired sissy. He was right; while we were throwin' rocks, that pooch Choppy slipped into the Line with his cold footsies [Jan. 23]. Imagine!

"I'll bet the tomcat that hit the Line with icicles on his whiskers and Ferd and me could put Choppy in Florida faster than a streamliner if we got behind him and went to work.

"About this feudin'—tell Ferd I'm willin' to let it lay if he will keep his bazoo shut about what a superior feline he happens to be. Tell him to drift out to West Lake avenue, Glenview, some nice May day and I'll put him wise to catchin' frogs, mice, and snakes if he'll teach me some big words to confuse you with. Maybe he could teach you some grammar, too, no doubt."

The Class in Spelling.

Folks who are taking a fall out of the Linemaster for spelling "choreography" as "choregraphy" [Jan. 30] should consult the latest edition of Webster's dictionary. The latter spelling is given preference; the former is dunked into the variants at the bottom of the page. But the Linemaster will continue to make it "choreography" in his copy, and the proofreaders, no doubt, will continue to worship at the shrine of the Big Book.

Dear genie, I shall never ask
Perfection in this flash of life,
Nor that I master every task
Encountered in my daily strife.

I'm not ambitious, this I vow,
Even to meet the duke of York,
But please, O, genie, teach me how
To wind spaghetti 'round a fork.

COMFORT AND VENTILATION IN THE HOME.

We cannot get along without air. But, in order to be agreeable, it should be free from odors and noxious gases.

The effluvia from the kitchen may be acceptable when we are hungry, but quite the contrary when we are not. In addition, fumes from the furnace may be poisonous enough to be responsible for headaches, if nothing worse. Gas heaters can exhaust the oxygen in a small space rather quickly, substituting carbon monoxide—which is toxic.

How much fresh atmosphere from the outside will be demanded depends upon the number in the room. If 400 cubic feet is allowed per person, the air will need to be changed only one and a half times per hour. Many are sensitive enough to note a sensation of suffocation when mingling in a crowd. The reason is that the heat given off by the body is substantial, particularly when activity is pronounced. Thus a given area, which is perhaps 65 degrees F. when unoccupied, will rise to 75 when well populated.

About all we ask is that we shall be relatively warm in winter and cool in summer. Fortunately, we all possess our own heat regulating machinery, which permits reasonable adjustments. We complain of feeling chilly when the temperature of our tissues falls because too much warmth is abstracted by the surrounding air. On the other hand, we are comfortable when our own internal fires are not called upon to blaze too brightly. During the winter, we keep our homes at about 70 degrees F. because we do not wish to lose too much heat from the body.

What do we mean by room temperature? On a cold day, there will be considerable variation, depending upon the height above the floor. With an individual standing, there may be as much as 5 degrees difference between the feet and the head. At the ceiling, another 4 or 5 degree rise may be observed. This explains why some will experience cold feet even tho the thermometer at eye level registers 70 degrees. We instinctively use footstools and hassocks.

Now, we throw off heat by evaporation as well as by radiation. During torrid spells, the safety valves in the sweat glands may be opened. The reason we do not encourage dry air is because of its effect upon the mucous membranes within the nose, throat, and sinuses. In other words, under such conditions, the normal discharges within the nasal passages may become scaly and roughly irritating because of lack of humidity.

While a raised window in the sleeping quarters is desirable, the aperture may not be more than a half inch. The main objective is to avoid direct drafts. Moving air, however, has a more hygienic effect upon the skin than that which is dead. No matter how stoutly our houses are built, there will be enough leakage to furnish reasonable ventilation for a small family, even tho all the openings are closed. Sleeping porches are not nearly so essential as they were once believed to be. The danger is that chilling may abstract more caloric than the individual can afford.

Those who are older require more warmth. And it is sometimes impossible to maintain a range which will be ideal for children and oldsters alike. The answer is that which provides an optimum amount of comfort and which at the same time preserves alertness. If we wish to drowse, allow the thermometer to rise 6 or 8 degrees, and every one will start to nod.

CARROTS FOR VISION.

M. K. writes: I read recently about a young man who was rejected for service because of poor vision. After eating three carrots a day for a while he was accepted. I don't want to become a rabbit for nothing. Do you think the plan would help?

REPLY.

Carrots supply vitamin A. Whenever there is a deficiency, this edible is advised. It will relieve night blindness which comes about because this substance is lacking.

THE DUTY OF PUBLICITY.

Chicago, Jan. 30.—With tightening of censorship looming as a result of pressure by the "don't-let-the-nation-know-the-truth" phalanx at Washington, the warning uttered by Edward Livingston, one time secretary of state and author of the famous code for Louisiana [1822], should be revived and brought to the attention of every citizen. He said:

"Publicity is an object of such importance in free governments that it not only ought to be permitted, but must be secured by a species of compulsion. The people must be forced to know what their servants are doing, otherwise they will submit to imposition rather than take the trouble to inquire into the state of their affairs. No nation ever yet found any inconvenience from too close an inspection into the conduct of its officers, but many have been brought to ruin and reduced to slavery by suffering gradual imposition and abuses which were imperceptible only because the means of publicity had not been secured. The press is so powerful an engine to effect this that the nation which neglects to employ it in promulgating the operations of every department in government can neither know nor deserve the blessings of freedom. Spreading information must be made a public duty. Every public servant will then act under the conviction that his official conduct will be discussed before a tribunal in which he neither presides nor officiates. The effects of such a conviction may be easily imagined."

ATHLETES AND WEIGHT LIFTERS.

Chicago, Jan. 26.—We hear of many athletes who have made a name for themselves who have volunteered to become physical instructors in some branch of the service or have been given such jobs because of their names. We need men like that to lead our men on the battlefield, not to lead them in exercise. The one and only way to make our soldiers like these men, and yet more solid, is by weight training. So let us have weight lifters as our physical instructors in the service.

FOR A GASOLINE CURFEW.

Chicago, Feb. 1.—Mayor Kelly has said that he will not order gasoline stations to close at 7 p. m. This move would inconvenience few and only necessitate a little salutary adjustment in the buying habits of the motoring public to achieve a tremendous saving in electricity.

The gasoline operator has had difficulty in procuring merchandise to sell and has had to meet higher wage demands by labor. One hundred and thirty-seven stations on the north side have closed in the last three months. By helping cut expenses, "7 to 7" would allow the greatest number to survive. The gas station pays $50 tax on each 1,000 gallons of storage, which nets the city from $150 to $500 a station, not counting the driveway maintenance tax and a dispenser tax on all types of pumps. Without a curfew a great many more of these stations will not be in a position to operate and so will deprive the city of their revenue.

AMONG HITLER'S MAJOR MIRACLES

[Kansas City Star.]

SHAKEUP SENDS NEW LEADER TO ARMY G-2 UNIT

Intelligence Chief Gets Promotion.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb 3.—A shakeup in the military intelligence command today brought Brig. Gen. Raymond E. Lee, who has recently been serving as military attaché at London, in as assistant chief of staff in charge of G-2 to replace Brig. Gen. Sherman Miles, promoted to the command of the first corps area with headquarters at Boston.

Brig. Gen. Sherman Miles [top] and Brig. Gen. R. E. Lee.

Altho there have been congressional grumblings that the army and navy intelligence services were asleep in the Pacific, it was emphasized at the war department that the shift in command of the intelligence division was in no way a censure for Gen. Miles.

Advancement for Miles.

Miles, who has been nominated as a major general, is being advanced, it was said. In his new post Miles will replace Maj. Gen. Francis B. Wilby, who has been named superintendent of the military academy at West Point, N. Y.

Miles, who also served at London as military attaché prior to his appointment as head of the military intelligence division, is 59 years old. He came to the key war department unit shortly after the outbreak of the war and has served as its chief about two and a half years.

He was born in Washington, the son of the late Lieut. Gen. Nelson A. Miles, who was head of the army from 1895 to 1903.

Served in Artillery.

Lee is 55 years old. He was born in St. Louis and graduated from the University of Missouri in 1909. He entered the army that year as a second lieutenant in the coast artillery.

The navy department had previously shifted its intelligence command. Capt. Alan G. Kirk was succeeded after Pearl Harbor by Capt. Theodore S. Wilkinson.

SEARCH ESTATE OF WENNER-GREN FOR AID BY ENEMY

NASSAU, Bahamas, Feb. 3 (AP).—The Bahamas government today announced that Axel Wenner-Gren's estate on Hog Island had been searched for "secret facilities, appliances, and stores available to the enemy" and that nothing had been found. A spokesman said he thought it unlikely that Wenner-Gren, recently placed on blacklists by the United States and Bahamas governments, would be permitted to return here during the war.

The official notice declared the search was "a consequence of rumors" that the enemy was receiving assistance from Nassau.

Wenner-Gren, a Swedish industrialist, friend of Reichsmarshal Hermann Goering and at one time considered a close friend of Edward, duke of Windsor and royal governor of Nassau, has wide interests in the islands which, since his blacklisting, are being administered by the colonial government for benefit of Bahamian labor and food supplies. The industrialist is reported to be in Mexico seeking to develop that nation's natural resources.

PARISIANS ASSAIL DESTRUCTION OF HISTORIC REGIONS

VICHY, France, Feb. 3 (AP).—German destruction of historic quarters in Paris was protested today in a letter sent to Chief of State Marshal Henri Philippe Petain by 100 prominent French intellectuals.

"Paris, which in June of 1940 miraculously escaped trial by fire and the horror of destruction, is unexpectedly menaced by new destruction," the letter, printed in the newspaper Figaro, said. It charged the demolitions had been going on rapidly since the Nazis occupied Paris. Among the menaced quarters, the letter listed St. Germain des Pres on the left bank of the Seine; St. Gervais; streets around the central market; the Palais Royal, and the section known as Le Marais. Many of these areas contain buildings dating from the middle ages.

Signers of the protest included the poets Paul Valery and Jean Cocteau; the writers André Siegfried, Mme. Gabrielle Colette, Paul Morand, and Jean Giraudoux; the painters Derain and Segoizac, and the curators of several Paris museums.

Japs Finally Admit U. S. Navy Damaged Islands

LONDON, Feb. 3 (AP).—Reuters heard the Berlin radio broadcast a Japanese announcement today that "some military installations" were damaged in the week-end attack by United States sea and air forces on the Marshall Islands. Yesterday, imperial headquarters said the only success of the American naval blow was damage to a small Japanese auxiliary vessel.

Friend of the Yanks

[The Friend of the Yanks department will answer draft and military service questions, both in the daily columns and personally if stamped, self-addressed envelopes are sent with the query.]

"How can I be of service?"

This query is contained in many letters from men barred from enlisting in the armed forces because they are unable to meet physical requirements.

Their services will be welcomed by the Office of Civilian Defense. Hundreds of men are needed to fill openings in the civilian protection division. Ordinary physical defects that prohibit enlistment in the armed forces are no bar to civilian defense jobs. Neither is age necessarily a disqualifying factor.

"If you are able to get around and can obey instructions, we can use you," is the message from Maj. Raymond J. Kelly, director of the 6th civilian defense region, to all men who are interested in being of some service.

Needed in Many Units.

In the civilian protection division men are needed for the following units: Air raid wardens, auxiliary firemen and policemen, bomb squads, fire watchers, medical corps, rescue squads, messengers, drivers' corps, emergency food and housing corps, decontamination corps, demolition and clearance crew, road repair crew, and staff corps.

Thru the candidates' application blank on which he gives his profession and the type of work he is best qualified to do, it is determined in which unit to place the volunteer. A training course prepares the applicant for service.

Volunteers Not Paid.

The type of training varies with the various units. Air raid wardens, for example, receive 10 hours of first aid training, 15 hours of fire, gas, and general defense training, and two hours of drill.

At present civilian defense volunteers are not being paid for their services. Arm bands with the insignia of the unit are given, but uniforms are not issued.

Application blanks may be had at the Office of Civilian Defense, 23 North Wacker drive, or at public library branches.

[Tomorrow: Royal Canadian air force.]

QUESTIONS.

Miss J. L. writes: "Can you tell me the qualifications for army nurses? What is their remuneration?"

ANSWER: An applicant must be a high school graduate, a registered nurse, in good standing with her alumni, state, and American nurses' associations; single, an American citizen, between 21 and 40 years old, and physically fit. An army nurse is paid $75 a month plus maintenance.

Mr. K. L. writes: "I am about to start my last semester in university and tho I would like to enlist as a naval aviator I would first like to graduate. I expect to be called in the draft soon and wonder if I will be allowed to finish my schooling if I enlist in the naval air corps?"

ANSWER: College juniors and seniors after enlisting in the naval air corps, may be deferred from call to active duty until completion of their current college year, if they so request. Thereafter they will be assigned to active training duty in the earliest class in which they can be accommodated.

Mr. E. S. writes: "My family and I plan to go to Florida in February as that is the only time I am able to take a vacation. Can I register for the draft in Florida?

ANSWER: On Feb. 16 go to the nearest draft board in the Florida community in which you are staying. You may register there and your registration card will be forwarded to the proper draft board in your home state.

BRITISH OFFICER HAILS AEF; FIELD TRAINING BEGUN

WITH THE AEF IN NORTHERN IRELAND, Feb. 3 (AP).—After an inspection by Lieut. Gen. H. E. Franklyn, commander of British forces in this combat zone, the United States troops in Northern Ireland settled down today to an ordered program of intensive training on full field duty.

"There's a man sized job to be done and, as far as one can judge, these are the men who can do the job," declared Gen. Franklyn, 56 year old veteran of the battle of Dunkirk. "They are a happy, fine looking lot of men who are settling down well."

This expeditionary force is well equipped for all sorts of weather. They have galoshes, raincoats, and everything that may be needed. Maj. Gen. Russell P. Hartle, field commander of the United States force, has just concluded a series of meeting with his staff and commanders of units spread all over Northern Ireland.

DE VALERA URGES FARMERS TO GROW MORE FOOD CROPS

DUBLIN, Feb. 3 (AP).—Prime Minister Eamon de Valera urged Ireland's farmers today to increase crop production so the country could not be "held up to ransom" thru lack of food.

De Valera, who has voiced strong objections to the arrival of United States troops across the border in Northern Ireland, warned that before the next harvest the Irish must face a "considerable shortage of bread."

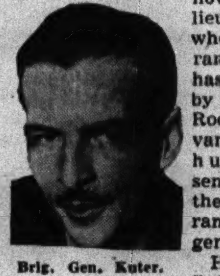
"We are becoming cut off more and more from the outer world," he told farmers at Naas, County Kildare.

"The danger of actual attack threatening the country may become greater. The production of actual supplies will be a valuable contribution to the great national effort to maintain our freedom."

ILLINOIS NATIVE MADE YOUNGEST ARMY BRIGADIER

Becomes General Officer at Age of 36.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 3 (AP).—A fast moving young staff officer of the army air forces, now a temporary lieutenant colonel whose permanent rank is captain, has been selected by President Roosevelt for advancement over hundreds of senior officers to the temporary rank of brigadier general.



Brig. Gen. Kuter.

He is Laurence S. Kuter, now 36. Confirmation of his promotion, sent to the senate yesterday by the President, would make him the youngest general officer in the army.

Altho Kuter is the first officer with the permanent grade of captain to be advanced to the temporary rank of brigadier general during the present war, there were several such promotions in 1917-'18, among them that of Gen. Douglas MacArthur, now commanding in the Philippines.

Attends Flying Schools.

Detailed to the air corps in 1929, Kuter attended the flying schools at Brooks and Kelly fields, Texas, and then went to Langley field, Virginia, as operations officer of the 49th bombardment squadron.

He reached his present permanent rank of captain in June, 1937. A temporary promotion to major came on December 30, 1940, and another temporary promotion to lieutenant colonel less than a month ago. He is now on special duty in the war plans division.

Born in Rockford.

Kuter, born at Rockford, Ill., on May 28, 1905, was graduated from West Point in 1927 and commissioned first in the field artillery.

Kuter describes himself as "not much of an athlete." He played polo while he was in the field artillery, but with more enthusiasm than accuracy, he recalled today.

His wife is the former Ethel Lyddon of Rockford, Ill., and they have a 13 year old daughter, Roxanne. Kuter's parents moved from Rockford while he was at West Point and now live in Milwaukee, Wis., at 2750 North 46th street.

President of Class.

Rockford, Ill., Feb. 3 [Special].—Laurence S. Kuter, named brigadier general today, was president of his 1923 graduating class at Rockford High school. He was a lieutenant in high school R. O. T. C. His wife is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Q. A. Lyddon, 1221 Camp avenue, Rockford.

Victoria Cross Awarded Wounded British Brigadier

LONDON, Feb. 3 (AP).—Brig. John C. Campbell, an artillery commander in Libya who replaced one of his wounded gunners and kept on firing after being wounded himself, has been given the Victoria Cross, Britain's highest award for valor, it was announced today. The 48 year old officer was decorated for his part in the fighting last Nov. 21 and 22 in the Libyan battle front at Rezegh.

EXPECT TO DRAFT FAMILY MEN, PUT WOMEN ON JOBS

House Witnesses Predict Manpower Shortage.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 3.—A few of the details of administration plans for raising the vast armed forces on land and sea and air necessary to carry the war to the axis powers were disclosed today by witnesses testifying before a special house committee. They included the following:

1. Conscription of married men and men with dependents with the taxpayers footing at least half the bill for supporting wives, children, and others left behind.

2. Reduction of the physical standards for conscripts as the needs of the fighting services increase.

3. Mobilization of women to replace men now deferred because they hold essential jobs in arms industries. At least 2,200,000 men drafted out of industry are to be replaced by women in the next nine months, the committee was told.

Testimony Before Committee.

The testimony was heard by the committee investigating national defense migration, a subject which has taken it into many other phases of the defense program, including civilian defense activities and the mobilization of American women power for war production.

The plans for extending the draft to include men now deferred because of dependency were discussed briefly by Brig. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, director of the selective service system. These men would be released for active military service thru an "allowance and allotment" system now being perfected by the war department on the basis of World war experience, he said.

Draftees would be required to allot part of their pay for the support of their families or other dependents with the government providing allowances at least matching each individual sum. The allowances from the public treasury in each case would be based upon the number of dependents, he explained.

Follows World War Model.

During the World war—and Hershey indicated that the 1942 version of the plan will be similar—monthly government allowances for dependents were granted up to half the army pay but not more than $15 per month, plus $10 for the first child and $7.50 for each additional child as long as the total did not exceed $50 per man.

The necessary enabling legislation probably will be introduced in both houses soon, Hershey said.

It was Hershey who also told the committee that army entrance standards inevitably would be lowered as the need for fighting man power increases. He predicted flatly that men with "minor defects" would soon be inducted for limited service "by the hundred thousands."

He served notice that social diseases would be stricken from the list of reasons for deferment, that the army and navy already were planning to take in men with "uncomplicated" cases of gonorrhea as they developed facilities for their treatment.

"In the near future the army will be inducting men from all age groups between 20 and 45," Hershey declared.

Estimates of Total War.

Estimates of the total fighting strength contemplated by the high command have varied from 6 million men to as high as 10 million. A recent publication, inspired by the administration, released by the Office of Facts and Figures, set the goal at 7 million. Hershey placed the figure somewhat higher.

The picture of 2,200,000 men in war production presently being replaced by women was sketched by Donald H. Davenport of the Bureau of Labor Statistics, who produced an elaborate set of charts which he said estimated the man power needs in various phases of the war effort. His display indicated there will be approximately 2,200,000 men inducted into the armed services before Oct. 1. For every one of these taken from industry, he asserted, a woman will have to be added to the program.

HONOLULU STEPS OUT AS CURFEW GOES TO 8 P. M.

HONOLULU, Feb. 3 (AP).—Residents who have not set foot outside after dark since the Japanese raid of Dec. 7 cheered today as the military government raised the nightly curfew from 6 p. m. to 8 p. m.

Any one is permitted outside until 8 o'clock under the new regulations, providing there is no smoking and only flashlights with blue tinted glass are used. The 6 p. m. curfew for use of automobiles was not changed.

This was the first major step toward returning something like normal night life to Honolulu. When war time becomes effective next Monday the curfew hour will be 9 p. m. and business houses and amusement places will be permitted to operate until 6 p. m. They now close at 4:30.

FORT SHERIDAN JOINS IN SCRAP IRON CAMPAIGN

Keeping pace with civilian efforts, army officials at Fort Sheridan have launched a salvage campaign to collect needed scrap materials for the war effort, it was disclosed yesterday. Out of date army vehicles are being sold for junk after parts in good condition are removed for replacement service. Officials said scrap paper and old clothing are being collected for sale to civilian dealers.

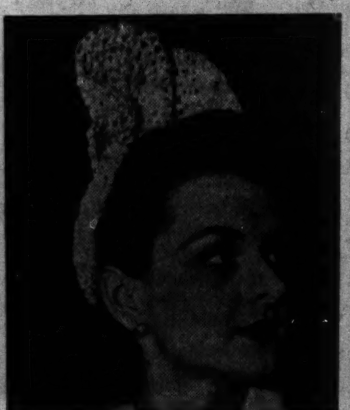
Millinery Styles

Millinery styles shown last night in the Gold room of the Congress hotel.

Norma Salvatori wearing large on the face powder blue felt hat.



Barbara Walters modeling hat of white braid with large loops of same material.

Jonnie Porte wearing multi-colored turban in South American colors.

New hats—feminine ones, of course—of every size, shape, and color, were displayed by the hundreds last night at the spring style show of Chicago Millinery Creators in the Gold room of the Congress hotel. The hats are the kind that women thruout the country are expected to wear this spring.

More than 700 designers, manufacturers, and buyers attended the exhibition. The buyers represented big chain stores and department stores from coast to coast, and predictions were made that Chicago will take the place of Paris as the millinery style center, and set the fashions for the country.

Bright colors, noticeably red and tan, seemed to be the most popular, altho black was well in evidence. So-called flower pot millinery also was well represented, as was veiled millinery. Felt will still be appropriate this spring, along with straws. Thus far, priorities have not impaired hat manufacture, so broad brims, framing the face, will not be lacking.

FARMERS URGED TO OVERSHOOT GOALS OF FOOD

Urbana, Ill., Feb. 3 [Special].—"The farmer's position in today's war differs from 1917-'18. Roy F. Hendrickson, administrator of the agricultural marketing administration, Washington, told farm and home week visitors at the University of Illinois college of agriculture today.

Hendrickson explained that undershooting the food and feed production goals set up by the secretary of agriculture will mean rationing of foodstuffs to both rural and urban people, and that it can mean more than that. "If we over-shoot our goals, we have nothing to fear."

He said there would be food enough for all.

Hendrickson also told the farmers that production of soy beans was as important now as "wheat and more wheat" was in World war I. He said that the beans were vitally needed for food as well as oil to offset supplies shut off by the Japanese.

Hendrickson predicted farmers would be able to meet the need for more soy beans without danger of the repercussions that followed their response to the 1917-'18 cry for wheat.

GAS STATIONS CLOSE AT 7 P. M. IN TWO MORE TOWNS

Waukegan and N. Chicago Operators Co-Operate.

Night closing of gasoline service stations became an issue in the Chicago area yesterday when owners in two more communities joined in a coöperative movement to shut up shop between 7 p. m. and 7 a. m. on week-days.

In Waukegan and North Chicago, where the early closing became effective last night, all except 5 of the 80 stations participated. East Chicago, Ind., station owners voted to close between 7 p. m. and 7 a. m. starting Feb. 10.

Want Others to Close.

The Waukegan owners discussed possible plans for convincing the five open stations they should close. The Waukegan council adopted a resolution commending the dealers for closing in the interests of defense. The dealers, however, said they would rather have an ordinance making closing mandatory.

Oscar Baumel, head of a Waukegan-North Chicago gasoline service station association, said his organization planned an advertising campaign asking citizens not to patronize the open stations as a patriotic duty. The station owners were against the plan put into effect in Aurora, where 100 of 105 stations have been closing their pumps at 7 p. m.

Station Still Blockaded.

In Aurora last night the dealers who closed still were besieging the Red Bird station, one of the five that chose to stay open. The dealers waited outside the station in their cars, offering large bills to buy single gallons of gas. There were enough of them to block the station's pumps from other purchasers. The blockade began at 7 p. m. Sunday.

Members of the Waukegan-North Chicago association opposed this strategy because they tried it once during a union dispute and discovered they increased the beset owner's business considerably.

Say It Won't Work in Chicago.

In Chicago officials of the Metropolitan Gasoline Retailers' association watched these coöperative efforts in suburban communities and said the plan would not work in the city. They said they were trying to get a mandatory closing order from Washington, D. C., and, failing that, would try to find an alderman to sponsor a closing ordinance.

This move apparently was doomed to failure, for a survey of aldermen found them unresponsive, and Mayor Kelly has announced that he would not sponsor a closing ordinance.

HOUSE DAMAGED BY FIRE.

An overheated coal range was blamed for a fire early yesterday in a house at 1634 Kimball avenue, causing damage estimated at $300.

WISCONSIN FEARS U. S. USURPATION OF CHEESE TESTS

State Inspector Is Denied Tires for Car.

BY FRED GRAFF.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Madison, Wis., Feb. 3.—Wisconsin officials, who apparently have sidetracked a move to federalize the state unemployment compensation plan, were fighting on another front today to prevent transfer of the cheese grading and inspection service from state to federal jurisdiction.

The proposed federalization of the state unemployment compensation system was strongly resisted by officials, employers and workers, who preferred the state's nine year old experience rating plan to the pool system of the federal law. The state transferred certain functions of administration of the law to the federal government under the express understanding that any powers abrogated now would be returned to the state after the present emergency.

In a special meeting today the state board of agriculture informed federal officials in Washington that Wisconsin statutes do not authorize the state department of agriculture to transfer its cheese gradings and inspection corps to any other agency. This action was taken following week-end developments in which state agricultural officials were informed that cheese graders and inspectors probably would not be able to obtain new tires for their automobiles unless an agreement was signed to transfer the service to federal jurisdiction.

Inspector is Denied Tire.

The incident which brought the controversy to a head came when Emil Zorn, chief of the state cheese inspection and grading force, blew out a tire on his automobile. He applied to his county rationing board for a requisition to purchase a new tire on grounds that his duties were of "public necessity." The rationing board communicated with higher ups in Washington and advised Zorn he was not eligible for new tires.

Zorn reported to his superior, L. C. Kuenning, who promptly wired federal department of agriculture officials. The reply, which came from E. Small, senior marketing inspector of the United States department of agriculture in Chicago, asserted in effect that state cheese graders and inspectors would be permitted to buy new tires only when state authorities signed an agreement to turn the corps of graders and inspectors over to the federal government's jurisdiction.

Board is Indignant.

If and when that agreement is signed, Kuenning was told, each of the cheese graders and inspectors will be given letters of authorization "to reimburse them for travel in accordance with department travel regulations and will be placed in the same class as other employés of the service in connection with the need for automobile tires in performing government services."

Director Ralph E. Ammon of the state department of agriculture and members of the board expressed indignation over the federal "sign or else" threat and indicated they will appeal to Wisconsin congressmen immediately in their fight to resist the proposed federalization if it is pressed further.

Under the proposed arrangement all fees and revenues from cheese gradings and inspection work would be collected by the federal government, which then would refund to Wisconsin each month an amount sufficient to pay costs of the inspection, which would be continued by the same personnel, but under federal direction.

Quality Not Sacrificed.

The state board of agriculture today pointed out that, while increasing production of cheese by more than 25 per cent and bringing the estimated 1942 output to 500,000,000 pounds, quality has not been sacrificed and present inspection standards are the highest ever demanded of the cheese industry.

Concurrently the board petitioned the state tire rationing board to include Wisconsin's 32 milk plant inspectors, 17 cheese graders, and 7 food inspectors in the list of eligibles for automobile tire replacement.

Tires Called Essential.

In its communication to Don Allen of Milwaukee, chairman of the state tire rationing board, the board of agriculture pointed out that Wisconsin dairy farmers have been asked by the federal government to increase milk production by 11 per cent, cheese production 25 per cent, and evaporated milk 30 per cent.

"If the Wisconsin dairy industry is to continue to provide the kind of products that will survive ocean transit, it is imperative that the milk inspectors, cheese graders, and food inspectors of the state department of agriculture be able to continue to render efficient service," the board declared.

"There are 6,000 dairy plants in Wisconsin under inspection of the state department of agriculture. Very few of them are accessible by bus or train. Therefore it is essential that these inspectors and graders have tires for automobiles used in this service."

The Inquiring Camera Girl

BY FREIDA ZYLSTRA.

THE QUESTION.

If you could keep but one of your electrical appliances, which one would be most important to you?

WHERE ASKED.

United States Court building, Clark and Adams street.

THE ANSWERS.

Steve Babyar, junior clerk, 2018 West 23d street—It wouldn't be a very pleasant life if I had to give up the refrigerator. No ice box can keep bottles of beer as cold as the electric one. And for the next morning, the little cubes of ice are convenient for an ice pack. I think I'd hang on to the refrigerator until the last.

Anthony J. McCarthy, chief clerk, 6929 Stony Island avenue—The first time I ever took an interest in cooking was when I started fooling around with an electric broiler. It will cook a complete dinner for me. Steaks, vegetables, toast, and everything. I think it would be a valuable item to sacrifice.

Laurette McGraw, junior clerk, 7329 Eberhart avenue—I wouldn't mind if the ice man replaced the refrigerator and a gas stove replaced the electric one, but I think I'd be lost if I had to use anything except my featherweight electric iron. I use it more than any other appliance and really find it indispensable.

Mrs. Frank Bering, canteen worker, Ambassador hotel—As long as I could keep my electric stove, I believe I could make it take the place of almost everything except the refrigerator. I could use it to make toast, to heat the iron, and to bake the waffles. And it could still serve as a good looking piece of furniture in my kitchen.

A. C. Boates, chief petty officer, 4556 North Bernard avenue—I would hate to see the time when our home would have to do without an electric washer. My wife rather enjoys her weekly laundry, but I bet she would not be the same woman if she had to give up the machine for a less efficient one or depend on some one else to launder for her.

V. T. Newsome, chief janitor, 601 Deming place—The most convenient and important appliance in the house is the refrigerator. I would hate to trade ice cubes for chunks of ice and a water pan for the defrosting tray. Also, I like it because it keeps food fresh. I can't imagine a kitchen full of foods and drinks without one.

CITES PERIL OF SOCIAL DISEASE TO WAR EFFORT

Boston, Mass., Feb. 3 (AP).—Germs of venereal diseases, if left uncontrolled among the nation's armed forces and industrial workers, will aid the enemy in the same fashion as deliberate bacteria warfare, the American Social Hygiene association was told today.

Declaring there was a special wartime threat of social disease, Geoffrey May, of the Federal Security agency, speaking at the hygienists' 29th annual meeting, said the germs we permit to spread—and could stop—are just as fully in the enemy's service as any that the enemy might deliberately plant.

Deputy assistant director of health and welfare services for the F. S. A., May said that during the first World war, venereal disease accounted for seven million man days lost to the American army and that "338,746 officers and men, the equivalent of 23 divisions, were under treatment for syphilis and gonorrhea."

"Now we are in total war," he said. "We can multiply those army figures by the men in America's production lines. We know that in this conflict a day lost anywhere is a score for the enemy."

May declared that while social disease had cost the first World war army more lost days than any other cause, "that army was freer from venereal disease than any other major army in history."

"In keeping the American army that way, and in reducing venereal disease to a minimum among the industrial plants of America, we are contributing more man days to American victory than we could contribute by any other means," May asserted.

SUBPENAS GIVEN TO FIFTY POLICY STATION OWNERS

Six Indicted as Wheel Operators Surrender.

BY JAMES DOHERTY.

Grand jury subpenas were issued yesterday for 50 operators of policy stations. And when those 50 have been questioned by assistants of State's Attorney Courtney, another batch of 50 or more will be called in, First Assistant Wilbert F. Crowley announced.

That was the prosecutors' answer to speculation whether the indictment last week of 26 policy wheel operators was to end the campaign to purge the Negro neighborhoods of the policy parasites. Negro ministers and social workers charged that the policy racketeers were responsible for the dire poverty of thousands of families, many of them on relief.

Bookies Next for Attention.

"We have a bit more work to do in reference to the policy gamblers," Crowley announced. "Then we can direct the grand jury's attention once more to the handbook syndicate and slot machine gangs."

Crowley said he had assigned Assistant State's Attorneys William Crawford and William E. Oplatka to question the policy station operators. These men are agents of the owners of wheels thru which numbers are drawn several times a day and on which the racketeers accept bets of pennies, nickles, dimes or any amount offered—and the players hope to be paid off at 100 to 1 or 200 to 1 or in rare instances at 1,000 to 1.

The station owners are permitted to keep 25 per cent of the money bet with them, Crowley said, according to evidence so far obtained. The grand jury is to investigate reports that the station owners are required to pay salaries to unneeded employés as tribute to local politicians, whereas the wheel owners paid $250 a week for each wheel to an unnamed person.

Jones Brothers Surrender.

Included among the wheel owners indicted and who surrendered and gave bond yesterday were James Martin, boss of policy and politics in a section of the west side; George Jones and his brother, McKissack McHenry Jones, millionaires who recently obtained a $500,000 income tax compromise with the government, and Julian Black, manager of Joe Louis, heavyweight boxing champion now in the army.

"I'm innocent," said Black. "I want a trial as soon as possible."

Martin and the Jones brothers were saying nothing. Mrs. Butler Coleman and Mrs. Leslie Williams, indicted as policy wheel owners, likewise gave bail and kept silent.

Judge Julius Miner, acting chief justice of the Criminal court, before whom the policy gamblers appeared, postponed their arraignment on the indictment until Feb. 24. It is planned to try the 26 together some time within the next few months, Crowley said.

Police made two raids on handbooks yesterday. Sergt. Frank O'Sullivan found 30 persons in a betting parlor at 820 Grace street, which he had raided last fall. George Calder the keeper, and three employés were held. Capt. Tom Duffy of the central station found a wire service relay station in room 210 of the building at 711 South Dearborn street. Ten phones were in the room, which had been leased Jan. 20 by a man who gave the name of Edward Smally. Duffy said no one was in the room when he and two sergeants entered.

Seized as Suspects

Three young men, one a parolee, and three girls were seized last night by Sergt. William Higgins of the Sheffield avenue station, as the result of an accidental overhearing of a telephone conversation. In the conversation two men referred to "38 potatoes" and "78 potatoes" and Higgins associated the remarks with two recent tavern robberies in which $38 and $78 were taken.

The phone call was traced to a flat at 739 Belmont avenue. There police seized Marshall Fischer, 21 years old, 3709 Lake street, who was carrying a loaded revolver; Annette Chamberlain, 18, and her aunt, Gertrude Morsette, 19. Later police seized Pat Metegrano, 25, of 815 South Keeler avenue; Alfred Belmonte, also 25, of 2435 Polk street, and Sylvia Netchin, 17, of 1206 North Rockwell street.

Police said Metegrano and Fischer, who is on parole from Pontiac prison, were identified in the tavern robberies.

JAIL HUMPHREYS FIRST IN NEW HOODLUM DRIVE

Murray Humphreys, old time Capone gangster, was arrested yesterday in a new drive against hoodlums. He was hurried to the detective bureau to be questioned and finger printed.

Humphreys, known as "The Camel," was striding jauntily past the city hall at Clark and Randolph streets in a camel's hair coat when he was seized in the new hoodlum drive, the first in years, which was ordered by Chief John L. Sullivan of the detective bureau.

Marshall Pidgeon and his detective squad saw him and drew over to the curb in their squad car.

"Get in the car," ordered Pidgeon.

"What for?"

"Chief Sullivan wants to see you."

"Why me?" asked Humphreys.

"General principles," Pidgeon explained as the car headed for bureau.

LENOX R. LOHR NAMED CIVILIAN DEFENSE DEPUTY

Lenox R. Lohr, president of the Museum of Science and Industry, was appointed deputy civilian defense coördinator in charge of social and economic welfare yesterday by Mayor Kelly, United States coördinator of civilian defense in the metropolitan area. Ralph Burke, chief engineer of the Chicago park district, was named deputy coördinator in charge of protection service, and Kenneth L. [Tug] Wilson, Northwestern university athletic director, chairman of the youth activities division.

FORMER PASTOR REFUSES TO GIVE UP OTHER WOMAN

Moved Church Organist in His Home with Wife.

A former pastor whose regard for a church organist was so strong that he took her home to live with his wife and their five children yesterday told Judge Rudolph Desort in Superior court that he was unwilling to return to his wife and certainly would not agree to give up the other woman.

The preacher, now a machinist, is Joseph Stanley Zapatka, 35 years old, 2146 Grand avenue, who resigned as pastor of the Polish Church of God, 1347 North Damen avenue, last Nov. 1 after 11 years. His wife, Grace, 31, of 2722 North Cicero avenue, is suing for separate maintenance.

Separated Last August.

The suit states they were married in 1928 and separated last Aug. 1. It charges the former pastor committed adultery on at least four occasions last year with a Jane Doe. Attorney Robert Rausch, representing Mrs. Zapatka, identified Jane Doe as the former organist, who has returned to her parents' home in another state.

Rausch said that altho Zapatka brought Miss Doe, who is 22, into his home to live, his wife was willing to forgive him and take him back. Zapatka protested at this:

"I am not willing to give her up," Zapatka said loudly. "I should have left my wife soon after we married, but because of my religious convictions I didn't. I don't see the organist girl any more. She's back home."

Rausch then broke in to say that they were in possession of two letters written to the girl by Zapatka and returned by her parents. One was sent in November, the other in December.

Expressed Love in Note.

One of them said, in part:

"I love you. It's so hard for me to be without seeing you for such a long time. Just to think that I should not see you I wouldn't care to live anymore. I believe and have faith that God will unite us. Because we love ourselves nothing but death can separate us."

Judge Desort, frowning, awarded Mrs. Zapatka custoday of the five children, Frances, 12; Priscilla, 11; Joseph Jr., 9; John, 8, and Victor, 5, and $16 weekly for support.

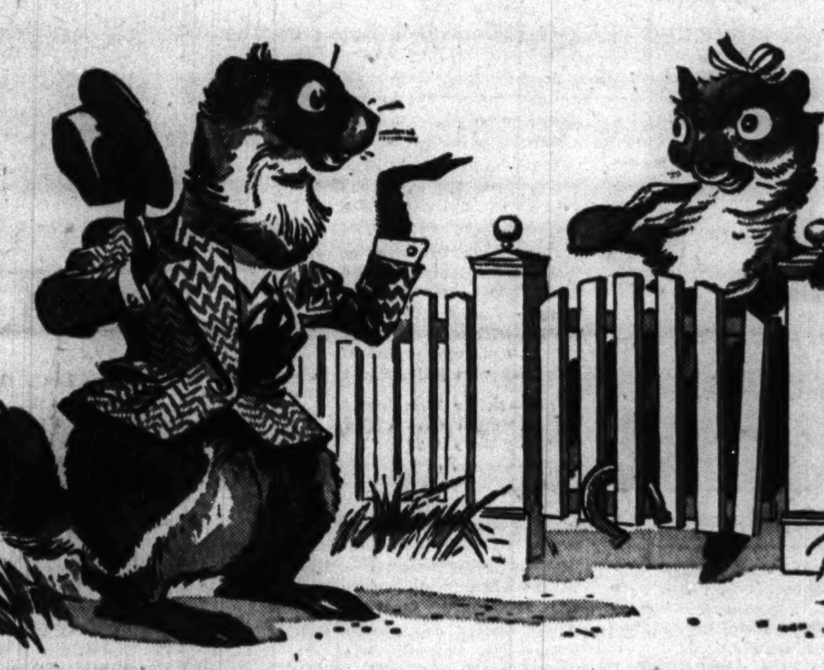
ALL THE WORLD LOVES A "HAPPY BLENDING"!

1. Willie the Woodchuck (a groundhog to you)
Emerged from his nap on the morn of Feb. 2.

2. He looked for his shadow, as all woodchucks should;
Instead he saw Mabel—and Mabel looked good!



3. "Hi, Toots," shouted Willie
And blew her a kiss.
And what did it lead to?
Connubial bliss!

The same blissful mating
Makes CALVERT the top—
You taste Happy Blending
In each mellow drop!

4. Yes, CALVERT'S a union of great whiskey traits;
No drink can surpass it in 88 states.
In Sours, Manhattans, Old Fashioneds, or "neat,"
It's right on the beam, so try CALVERT—toot sweet!

NAME OPERETTA CONTEST STAFF AT W-G-N TODAY

Officials Give Warning of Feb. 10 Deadline.

A staff of specialists in music and drama at W-G-N will be selected today to read the operettas submitted in W-G-N's $10,500 Great American Operetta quest. Already scores of original operettas have been received by W-G-N. The deadline for the acceptance of operettas is midnight, Feb. 10.

The reading staff will be divided into two squads. Music experts will read all scores. Producers and continuity writers will examine the librettos. Both squads will then review the lyrics as they are parts of both score and story.

Board to Judge Winners.

Henry Weber, musical director of W-G-N, will supervise the preliminary examinations. The W-G-N committee will eliminate works that do not comply with the rules of the competition and then pass on all of the potential winners to the board of nationally known judges. This is to be done the week after the deadline.

The judges are: Irving Berlin, Jerome Kern, Sigmund Romberg, Oscar Straus, Emmerich Kalman, all noted composers; Dr. Frederick Stock, conductor of the Chicago Symphony orchestra; Edwin McArthur, young composer-conductor; John Golden and Oscar Hammerstein, Broadway producers, and B. G. [Buddy] De Sylva, composer and executive vice president in charge of production of Paramount Pictures corporation.

Three to Win $1,000 Each.

The three operettas best reflecting the spirit and achievement of America will win their composers $1,000 each. These three works will be presented on the Chicago Theater of the Air from 7:30 to 8:30 p. m. Saturdays, March 14, 21, and 28, over W-G-N, W59C, and the Mutual network.

The public then will be invited to take part in a contest to give a name and help select the best of the three operettas. The work selected will be presented Saturday, April 11, as the Great American Operetta. Its composer will receive an additional $5,000.000.

Marion Claire, soprano prima donna, will be starred in the singing cast presenting the winning operettas. She will be supported by outstanding guest singers and an all-star dramatic cast. Music for the winning works will be arranged and presented under the direction of Weber.

'Soundies' Legal in Chicago if $200 License Is Paid

Assistant Corporation Counsel Martin H. Foss yesterday informed Police Commissioner Allman that "soundies" or "panorams" may be installed legally in Chicago taverns and other business places on payment of a fourth class amusement license at a cost of $200 a year. The machines cost from $800 to $1,000 and hold enough film for eight short motion picture subjects.

'America at War' Radio Series Begins Feb. 14 on Major Chains

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

The new series of America at War broadcasts, which the four major networks will broadcast simultaneously, will start Saturday, Feb. 14. Norman Corwin, outstanding script writer and producer at CBS, will be the director. Talent services are to be contributed and many important stars will participate. More than 500 stations of the Mutual, NBC, CBS, and Blue networks will be linked for the dramatic interpretations of the wartime activities of America and explanations of our resources. There will be short wave rebroadcasts to the British empire and translations for transmission to other foreign lands.

The shows will start at 6 p. m. and run a half hour. There will be a rebroadcast for the west coast at 11:45 p. m. The first broadcast will feature a dramatization entitled, "America at War."

CBS is launching a new series entitled "They Live Forever" at 9:30 p. m. next Sunday. It is a dramatic program designed to show America on the offensive and will be a testimonial to our heroic dead. It will represent a resolution that the Pearl Harbor attack and other enemy treacheries shall be avenged. Charles Vanda will be the producer; Howard Teichman and Jerome Lawrence, script writers, and Lynn Murray, musical director.

Winifield Honey, who plays the rôle of Capt. Blaze in Terry and the Pirates on W-G-N, is an ordained minister. Emily Vass of the singing Vass Family, now plays the part of April Kane. Her sister, Virginia Vass, is the songstress on the Gene Autry Sunday show.

Budd Hulick, one-half of the team of Col. Stoopnagle and Budd, has assumed the name rôle in "Meet Mr. Meek." Another newcomer to this cast is Caryl Smith as Mr. Meek's daughter, Peggy.

The Mutual network has turned over its popular serial show, "Helen Holden, Government Girl," to the American Red Cross for its exclusive use. The Red Cross will have the right to the time ordinarily reserved for commercial announcements. The show is aired on W-G-N at 12:15 p. m., week days.

Lucille Ball, wise cracking Hollywood comedienne, will appear regularly this month on the Herbert Marshall-Bert Wheeler show.

PLOT TO BLOW UP PEORIA RAILROAD BRIDGE CHARGED

3 Union Men Cited by U. S. Court.

Peoria, Ill., Feb. 3 (AP).—Allegations that a group of strikers had planned to dynamite a railroad bridge were revealed today when Federal Judge J. Leroy Adair summoned three men into court to determine if an injunction had been violated.

The judge's order said a fourth man had been paid $1,270 to blow up a bridge near Eureka, which would have tied up traffic on the eastern division of the Toledo, Peoria, and Western railroad, a freight line against which two railroad brotherhoods struck Dec. 28.

Publicity Man Cited.

Three men were ordered to appear next Tuesday to show cause why they should not be held in contempt under an injunction restraining violence or threats against the road. They are: Paul Brokaw of Cleveland, public relations representative of the brotherhoods of railroad trainmen and of firemen and enginemen; Delmar Newdigate of Peoria, general chairman of the Peoria lodge of the Brotherhood of Trainmen, and H. J. Dilley of East Peoria, a striker.

The show cause order, issued at the request of T. P. & W. attorneys, said Newdigate was arrested a week ago tonight near the bridge, with 60 pounds of dynamite and a revolver in his car. He has been charged by Woodford county officials with illegal transportation of explosives and carrying a concealed weapon.

$1,270 Payment Charged.

It alleged that Brokaw had paid $1,270 to William Weaver of Peoria, an acquaintance of Dilley, to dynamite the Eureka bridge and that Brokaw had arranged for Newdigate to deliver the explosives to Weaver at the bridge the evening of Jan. 27.

At the bridge, Weaver was stopped by a Woodford county deputy sheriff just as Newdigate drove up with the dynamite, the court order continued.

Officials of the T. P. & W., which has important east-west freight connections, have said that traffic is on a virtually normal basis.

IGOE OFFERS AID IN NORTH SHORE RAILWAY TIEUP

Mediation Board Decision Awaited by Unions.

With government and state agencies apparently unable to do anything toward meeting the unique situation that finds North Shore Line trains barred from the Chicago elevated lines, Federal Judge Michael L. Igoe offered the road's harassed commuters a ray of hope last night.

Judge Igoe, who is in charge of the receiverships of the "L" and North Shore companies, said the situation had not been placed before him officially, and that if it is presented he would do everything humanly possible to get the Amalgamated union and the rival railway brotherhood union to reach some agreement that would restore full service.

Customers Hike Thru Snow.

The Amalgamated [Amalgamated Association of Street, Electric, Railway and Motor Coach Employés] has barred the North Shore lines from Chicago since Sunday, with great inconvenience to passengers.

The Amalgamated's official explanation was the railway brotherhoods had been "raiding" Amalgamated of members on the North Shore. Since then, approximately 30,000 patrons have been forced each day to change to elevated trains at Howard street or at Wilmette's Linden avenue station. In Wilmette this change entails a short hike thru the snow.

Complain to Congressmen.

There have been squawks from these involuntary sacrificers of time and effort. Some of them have written their congressmen about it. Mayor Frank Wallin of Waukegan and Mayor John Dromey of North Chicago have asked Senators Scott Lucas and Wayland Brooks to use their influence to get the dispute settled.

The congressmen and senators have tried to get numerous governmental alphabetical agencies to intervene, with no success. It is possible the dispute will last indefinitely. The situation is unique and every agency approached disclaims any authority to act.

Contracts with Three Firms.

The Amalgamated claims 3,500 workers on the L lines, 900 on North Shore and 16,000 on the Chicago surface lines. It has contracts with the three companies.

Until two years ago, when the North Shore achieved the legal status, under federal law, of a railroad, the Amalgamated was the only union having North Shore line members. The railway brotherhoods, not AFL as is the Amalgamated, have since been gathering members and claim 300 on the North Shore lines.

Opposed Craft Elections.

A few months ago, the brotherhoods asked the railway mediation board in Washington to declare their unions bargaining agents for their members under a craft union system, and demanded that elections be held for each craft. This was opposed by the Amalgamated, which showed that it had been sole bargaining agent for years and asked that if any election was held, all the North Shore employés should vote as a body and not piecemeal.

Thereafter bad feeling developed between the two unions. The surface lines' Amalgamated members, at a meeting Monday, assured the elevated members they would be supported in their refusal to throw switches for North Shore trains.

In their resolutions the surface lines workers declared the railroad brotherhoods had scattered "scurrilous" pamphlets with the object of promoting "confusion, dissension, and disunity."

Hopes for Decision.

The Labor Mediation board has not given a decision, but Leo J. Hassenauer, counsel for the brotherhoods, said last night he was hopeful one would be handed down soon.

Amalgamated officials indicated the decision, if it went against them, would mean nothing. O. D. Zimring, their attorney, said the union would not coöperate in North Shore train operation on elevated lines if any other union was given any representation in the North Shore bargaining arrangements.

The Amalgamated has allowed trains carrying troops and workmen engaged on the Great Lakes Training station improvement, to go into and out of Chicago and has asserted defense has not been hurt by their order and its enforcement. The 30,000 commuters are bearing the brunt of the inconvenience.

FAKE COLLECTOR FINED $100 AND JAILED 60 DAYS

Raymond Cole, 42 years old, was fined $100 and sentenced to 60 days in the House of Correction by Judge Oscar S. Caplan in South State Street court yesterday. He was charged with attempting to obtain money by representing himself as the agent of an organization raising funds for entertaining soldiers. Cole was arrested a week ago at the Van Sicle Window Cleaning company, 4331 North Ashland avenue, when he called to collect $25 from Floyd E. Van Sicle, the president. After agreeing earlier to Cole's telephoned request that he donate the money Van Sicle became suspicious. He learned that Cole was not collecting money for the United Service organizations.

How to make a WAR GARDEN

Amateurs, unfamiliar with the whims of garden seeds, may begin planting their war garden too late in the spring. A great number of seeds are extremely hardy and can be sown long before the average gardener possibly would consider the weather warm enough for planting.

If the garden work is delayed too long the home owner may find himself nursing a crop of seedlings while the more experienced gardener is harvesting his first vegetables.

Most vegetables will grow as soon as the temperature of the ground rises to 50 degrees Fahrenheit. Other vegetables should not be sown until the danger of frost is over and the soil is around 60 degrees.

By consulting the weather map and planting chart, the gardener can determine which zone he is in, the average date of the last killing frost, and the approximate time the various vegetables should be seeded.

Many seeds will rot if they are planted in cold ground. Early planting of some seeds may result in young sprouts being nipped and killed by frost.

Garden plants can be divided into four planting groups.

Early cabbage plants, kale, onion sets, smooth peas, potatoes, and radishes may be planted two weeks before the average date of the last killing frost.

Beets, Swiss chard, carrots, lettuce, wrinkled peas, cauliflower, spinach, and sweet corn may be sown about the date of the last frost.

Beans, parsnips, salsify, melons, cucumbers, tomatoes, and sweet potatoes may be planted after the last killing frost.

Peppers, eggplant, lima beans, squash, and other more delicate plants should not be set in the open until the ground is warm. This will mean planting about four weeks after the last killing frost.

The following zone map and chart tell when it is safe to plant various vegetables.

WALTER, 2, MEETS THE WAR; BUGGY TIRES ARE STOLEN

Does Not Need Ration Card to Get More.

The rubber shortage was brought home yesterday to Walter Scott Hanson, 7061 North Damen avenue. As it was his birthday, Walter was going to be taken for a little spin about the neighborhood.

But when his mother, Mrs. Helen Hanson, went out to prepare the vehicle she found that all four tires had been stripped from the new baby buggy parked in the hall.

Walter, who is 2 years old, made no statement. Officials in the Office of Price Administration held without a dissenting opinion that Walter or his father, Harold, may replenish the equipage without appearing before Tire Administrator Michael Mulcahy or his adviser, Oscar Hewitt.

Not Under Ration Program.

These tires are not under the rationing program, OPA held. If the Hansons can probe around the rubber shortage and come up with tires they may do so with complete patriotism. If they cannot, Walter could get tires by using his vehicle to haul defense materials.

Clergymen of Illinois were not as fortunate as Walter. They were told yesterday by state tire rationing officials that under present rulings they cannot get preference.

"The impression seems to have become general," said Henry Pope Jr., state tire rationing administrator, "that the federal regulations have been revised to permit clergymen to obtain tires. This is not so."

Problem Under Study.

Frank M. Bane, in the Washington OPA office, advised Pope that the subject of tires for clergymen still is being studied. He said additional information will be forthcoming in 10 days.

Instructions governing the release of new automobiles to purchasers who placed their orders before the sale of cars was halted will be sent to the 111 rationing boards of the Chicago metropolitan area today. Mulcahy, who also is in charge of car rationing, said the instructions will be followed when examination of applications for release of such cars begins a week from tomorrow.

ROBS CLOTHING STORE.

A gunman walked into a clothing store at 6814 South Halsted street last night and took $167 from the cash register after locking the manager, Bernard Charmes, and a clerk, Miss Elsie Gallager, in a back room.

LAKE FOREST PLANS SAFETY REGULATIONS FOR BICYCLE RIDERS

Rationing of automobiles and tires has boomed the popularity of bicycles in Lake Forest to such an extent that Mayor Richard H. Mabbatt yesterday appointed a committee to draw up safety measures. The new regulations probably will require all bikes to be equipped with front lights and rear reflectors. Police Chief Frank Tiffany said there are now 1,250 licensed bicycles in Lake Forest, including 70 new ones purchased during January. In addition, 50 more have been ordered. Altho bikes in the suburb are licensed, no license fees are charged.

SAYS OWNERSHIP OF HOME DOOMED TO BE A LUXURY

Morgan L. Fitch, chairman of the Chicago Real Estate board's taxation committee, said yesterday that home ownership is doomed to the "status of a luxury" as a result of increased budgets and tax levies by the county and other local governments. The 1941 tax rate is estimated at $9.87 for each $100 of valuation, an all time high.

"The taxes levied to meet the increasing county budgets will put a premium on home ownership that in time will make owning a home an economic impossibility for many residents of the county," Fitch said.

Fitch also asserted that the 5 per cent increase in 1941 real estate taxes in Cook county will be passed on in the form of higher rent to those who are not home owners.

WEAVER MAKES REMARK AGAINST U. S.; FINED $100

Michael Hobelsberger, 36 years old, 2856 North Troy street, a weaver, was fined $100 and costs by Judge Victor A. Kula in the Shakespeare avenue court yesterday for disorderly conduct. He allegedly told a soldier "America isn't worth fighting for."

He was arrested Sunday night after police were informed he made the remark in a tavern at 3005 Diversey avenue. He also was accused of saying "Roosevelt and Hitler ought to fight it out alone in one room." Hobelsberger denied yesterday that he made the remarks. He said he has a brother in the German army.

Police told Judge Kula federal authorities had investigated Hobelsberger and decided he was "harmless."

NEW PLEA SENT TO JUDGES: HELP CUT PAY ROLLS

Farr Warns That County Is Near Bankruptcy.

Newton C. Farr, president of the Civic federation, yesterday asked the Circuit court judges' committee on help to withdraw its recent report granting 2,287 jobs in the 13 county fee offices for 1942, and to proceed at once to cut the pay roll to meet the county's "dire financial situation."

The demand was made in a letter to Judges Robert J. Dunne, committee chairman; John Prystalski and Julius H. Miner. This committee determines the jobs in the fee offices, subject to the approval of all the Circuit court judges.

The recent report which was adopted by the judges disregarded recommendations by a special efficiency survey staff that 493 jobs be eliminated at a total saving of $800,000. The judges cut out only 22 jobs.

On Brink of Bankruptcy.

"It seems impossible that your committee could have understood clearly the desperate financial condition of the county when it presented this report to the court," Farr's letter said, "particularly in view of the fact that one of the members of the Circuit court was quoted in a daily newspaper as making light of warnings of the county's condition and referring to them as 'old stories.'"

Farr asserted that the judges have brought the county to the brink of bankruptcy by refusing in the last three years to reduce county pay rolls, in accordance with demands by civic groups and the board of county commissioners.

The letter pointed out that preliminary budget estimates by the county controler indicate a budget deficit for 1942 of $3,419,000, assuming no increases in employés. The county has already been granted an increase in taxes for 1942, Farr added, which will bring its tax levy for all purposes to 74 cents per $100 of assessed valuation. This is only 1 cent below the constitutional limitation on the county's taxing power, and leaves no room for making up the deficit thru taxes, he explained.

Brands Statement Untrue.

The judges apparently gained only a "superficial impression" of the economy proposals made by the efficiency staff, which were prepared at a cost of $20,000 to the county, Farr declared. He branded untrue the judges' statement in their written report that most of the changes proposed by the staff would require legislation or constitutional amendments. Farr said 450 of the 493 proposed job cuts would require no legislation or constitutional change.

The judges also gathered the idea, as indicated in their report, that the efficiency staff had proposed the elimination of their personal bailiffs, Farr said, no such proposal was made or contemplated.

The county commissioners yesterday began consideration of 1942 budget requests by heads of the 19 nonfee offices. Mrs. Mabel Reinecke, member of the board of election commissioners, outlined a program whereby the board's original request for $1,767,000 for election expense could be reduced by $820,000.

Proposals for Savings.

The savings would be made by registrations at fire houses instead of in 4,000 precincts, by buying paper now for ballots, and by reducing the pay of judges and clerks from $16 to $8 a day.

Gen. Manus McClosky, head of the County hospital, said $100,000 could be cut from his 1942 request for $5,079,000.

SHIRLEY MARIE BELL.

GIRL, 6, FOUND RAPED AND SLAIN; CYCLIST HUNTED

Child Is Strangled with a Jumping Rope.

San Bernardino, Cal., Feb. 3 (AP).—Garroted with her jumping rope, the body of 6 year old Shirley Marie Bell was found partly buried today in forbidding Lytle Creek wash, more than 24 hours after she disappeared.

Bicycle tracks led Police Officer Lee Robb to the body in brushland five miles northwest of San Bernardino. The child last was seen riding on the handlebars of a bicycle pedalled by a man about 30 years old. She had left home for school a short while before.

Autopsy Reveals Rape.

County Autopsy Surgeon F. S. Small said the little girl had been raped.

A playmate and H. C. Boone, a rancher, both reported seeing Shirley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Bell, on the bicycle with the stranger yesterday morning. Boone said the girl was crying, but he suspected nothing at the time.

Evidence of Struggle.

Police Chief James W. Cole said there was evidence of a struggle at one place in the wash. Farther along the girl's lunch pail was found partly buried and covered with brush. There were signs that the man had dragged the body part of the way to the place where he had caved in a bank in an effort to bury it.

A detail of 150 soldiers joined posses of officers, Civilian Conservation corps recruits, and Boy Scouts in searching for the girl.

PRESIDENT OF CICERO SUED BY CONTROLER IN TOWN PAY DISPUTE

Anton J. Krupicka, controler of the town of Cicero, filed suit in Circuit court yesterday for a writ of mandamus to compel George Stedronsky, town president, to countersign warrants drawn on the town treasury for payment of salaries to Cicero employés for the first half of January.

The employés had been paid in cash since 1936 until Stedronsky balked last Jan. 20, stating that employés would be paid separately by check. Stedronsky charged there were several persons on the town rolls "because of certain political groups." He said he would learn their identity thru the paychecks, then discharge them.

Krupicka said Stedronsky wanted a list of town employés so that he could bring pressure on them to vote for his candidate for trustee in the Feb. 10 primary.

Practicing Chiropody Without Permit Charged

M. O. Hammonds was arrested yesterday on a charge of having practiced chiropody without a license at the Home Foot Service, 69th and Halsted streets. He is to be arraigned in the County court tomorrow. Alfred C. Hellmer of 6714 Bishop street reported that Hammonds gave him eight treatments, according to investigators for the state department of registration and education.

Illinois Diphtheria Cases Rise During First Month

Springfield, Ill., Feb. 3 (AP).—An increase of nearly 50 per cent in the number of diphtheria cases in Illinois this year, compared with the corresponding period last year, was reported today by the state health department. There were 152 cases reported up to yesterday, with 102 cases reported to Feb. 3, 1941. Twenty-five new cases were reported last week.

COURT RETELLS MRS. ARMOUR'S FINANCIAL COUP

Finds for Her in $200,000 Income Tax Case.

The story of Mrs. Lolita Sheldon Armour's return to opulence after her late husband, J. Ogden Armour, lost millions and died broke, went into official legal records yesterday in a decision of the United States Circuit Court of Appeals. The decision relieved her of liability for an income tax claim of more than $200,000.

Mrs. Lolita Armour.

Judge Walter C. Lindley, who handed down the decision, supported the finding of the board of tax appeals that Mrs. Armour need not pay taxes on the income of a trust fund she had set up for her daughter, Mrs. John J. Mitchell. Mrs. Mitchell derived an income of $10,000 a month from the $2,000,000 fund, which was established in 1931. The tax claim was based upon the income for the years 1932-'35.

Pays Tax from Trust Income.

Mrs. Mitchell, according to Attorney Alexander F. Reichmann, counsel for her mother, had paid the tax out of the trust income. The treasury contended Mrs. Armour should pay it. The board of tax appeals upheld Attorney Reichmann's contention that Mrs. Mitchell rightfully had paid it. The government took the case to the appeals court and lost yesterday.

"The purpose of the government," said the attorney, "was to get the tax paid out of the higher tax bracket of Mrs. Armour's income. In that way the government would get more."

But here is the story as told in Judge Lindley's decision:

"The taxpayer is the widow of J. Ogden Armour, who died Aug. 16, 1927 [in London]. He had been president and extensive stockholder of a vast corporation engaged in processing and packing meats and a man of great wealth. Preceding his death, however, his financial reverses had been such as to bring about his insolvency.

Gives Large Sums of Money.

"During his opulence he had given to his wife and daughter, the latter being beneficiary of the trust, large sums of money. That given his daughter was sufficient to yield her an annual income of $150,000.

"When Mr. Armour became financially embarrassed he pledged to his creditors [a substantial part] of his assets. In addition his wife and daughter voluntarily surrendered and included in the pledge all the property they had received from him. The assets pledged were eventually taken by foreclosure; no part of them was returned.

"The daughter later inherited some one-half million dollars from her grandmother, but this she turned over to cousins to reimburse them for substantial property which they, too, had pledged to her father's creditors. As a result she had left no property or income of her own."

Sells Stock for Big Gain.

Still trying to pay her late husband's creditors, the decision set forth, Mrs. Armour in 1925 purchased for $1,500,000 a block of 500 shares of Universal Oil Products company stock. The stock, among the assets of her husband's estate, was "then of doubtful value," and the creditors had refused to accept it as of any value at all. The $1,500,000 inherited by Mrs. Armour from her father's estate then went to the creditors for the stock, but "subsequently," says the decision, "this stock became valuable, and on Jan. 6, 1931, she sold it for $9,500,000."

Of Mrs. Armour's motive in setting up the trust fund involved in the court's decision, the ruling said:

"She desired to make reparation to her daughter for the sacrifices the latter had made at the time of her father's difficulties."

WORKMAN HURT WHEN TRAPPED BY STEEL PILE

For 30 minutes yesterday Theodore Gonciarczyk, 19 years old, was held a helpless prisoner because of a slide of sheet steel in the plant of the Sherman Klove company, 3531 West 47th street, where he is employed.

Gonciarczyk was caught between two 7 foot piles of sheet metal. While he was walking between the piles, one shifted and pinned him, from feet to hips, against the other pile. Unable to free him, fellow employés called police and firemen.

Chief Rudolph Goetz of the 21st fire battalion directed the rescue. Care was necessary lest the other pile of sheet metal also shift and bury Gonciarczyk. A cable was finally placed around the shifted steel pile, after which a crane slowly pulled the pile away. Gonciarczyk, who lives at 1737 West 16th street, suffered a thigh bone fracture and was taken to the Evangelical hospital.

WIDOW CONTESTS 2 EXECUTORS OF ABBOTT ESTATE

A petition was filed in Probate court yesterday contesting the authority of James B. Cashin, a lawyer, and John H. Sengstacke, as executors of the estate of Robert S. Abbott, founder of the Chicago Defender, a Negro newspaper, who died Feb. 29, 1940. The petition was filed in behalf of Abbott's widow, Mrs. Edna R. Abbott, who charges that Cashin and Sengstacke, the latter her nephew, have taken control of the Defender plant and have refused to allow her or Valores J. Washington, the general manager, in the building. Mrs. Abbott asks that Cashin and Sengstacke show cause why their authority should not be revoked.

110	Hibbard, Spencer & Bartlett.
800	National Lead.
300	National Steel corporation.

Mr. Morris died in Chicago Jan. 15 at the age of 66. His will left the bulk of the estate in trust to his widow, Constance Lily Rothschild Morris; a daughter, Constance Irene, and a son, Ira Victor Morris. On their deaths the estate passes to Ivan Morris, son of Ira Victor Morris, and to any grandchildren born subsequently.

If Ivan and other possible heirs, however, should die before coming into the estate it passes, on the deaths of the other legatees, to Michael Reese hospital to found an institute for treatment and investigation of nervous and mental disorders.

Mr. Morris was the son of Nelson Morris, founder of the Morris & Co., meat packing firm.

BRIG. GEN. REGAN BURIED WITH FULL MILITARY HONORS

Brig. Gen. Lawrence V. Regan, former adjutant general of Illinois, was buried with full military honors in All Saints cemetery yesterday after services in Northwest armory at Kedzie and North avenues and in St. Henry's Catholic church, Hoyne and Devon avenues. Gen. Regan died Saturday a few hours after he had been stricken with a cerebral hemorrhage. He was 51 years old.

Officers of both the 33d division at Camp Forrest, Tenn., and the Illinois Reserve Militia, and others now retired who had served with Gen. Regan participated in the services, which were in charge of the 122d Field Artillery post of the American Legion. Gen. Regan rose to the rank of major with that regiment during the first World war.

Maj. Gen. Samuel T. Lawton of the 33d division sent Col. James U. Sammis and Col. William T. Delihant to Chicago to represent him and the division at the services.

Pallbearers included Brig. Gen. Leo M. Boyle, who succeeded Gen. Regan as adjutant general of Illinois; Col. William E. Swanson, staff officer of the militia, and Col. Benedict Aron, surgeon general of the militia, and the following, all former members of the 33d National Guard division and now retired: Maj. Gen. Roy D. Keehn, Brig. Gen. Harry Hill, Brig. Gen. A. E. Inglesh, Maj. Gen. Frank R. Schwengel, Brig. Gen. James J. McKinley, Col. George M. Hepple, Maj. Thomas Breen, Maj. R. J. Dunne, chief justice of the Criminal court, and Maj. Pierce L. Shannon.

CHICAGO GROUND HOGS TO APPEAR SATURDAY NIGHT

Monday was ground hog day, but the Ground Hogs of Chicago won't come out until Saturday evening. They will appear, despite traditions, at the Knickerbocker hotel, where they will enjoy a dinner, dancing, and entertainment.

These Ground Hogs are the men who are building the subway, dig foundations for skyscrapers, and perform other underground construction work. Five honorary members expected to attend are Mayor Kelly, Philip Harrington, commissioner of subways and superhighways; Col. J. B. Jackson of the Commonwealth Edison company, and Ralph H. Burke and W. H. Trinkaus, chief engineers of the park and sanitary districts. The program was arranged by R. F. Kelly, president of the organization.

Shadows will follow the Ground Hogs in the form of wives and children.

John M. Gilchrist Victim of Heart Attack in Street

John M. Gilchrist, 41 years old, stopped his car at 105th and Halsted streets yesterday, stepped to the street, and died of a heart attack. He had suffered a milder attack a half hour earlier in the office of the Federal Electric company at 8700 State street, of which he was a sales representative.

Mr. Gilchrist was a son of John F. Gilchrist, vice president of the Commonwealth Edison company, and lived at Brassie and Hawthorn roads, Flossmoor.

MARCELLE EDWARDS.

Los Angeles, Cal., Feb. 3 [Special]. —Marcelle Edwards, much married former New York showgirl, today denied that she obtained one husband's promise of $17,500 alimony so she could use the fund to set up housekeeping with her next husband. Miss Edwards, once the wife of Tommy Manville, asbestos millionaire, stated her position in filing an answer to a suit brought against her by Jay F. Carlisle Jr. to cancel the alimony agreement. Carlisle, son of a New York broker, contends he agreed to pay Miss Edwards the $17,500 before Jan. 1, 1942, in the belief that she had been a faithful wife to him up to the time of their divorce. But since then, he charges, he has discovered that all the time she was engaged to marry her present husband, Walter McGowan, real estate broker.

INJURIES FATAL TO CHILD, 7, HIT BY 5 TON TRUCK

Collision Is Fatal to Oak Lawn Woman.

Donna Morrell, 7 years old, 1613 Henry place, Waukegan, died yesterday in Victory Memorial hospital in Waukegan of injuries received Monday when she was struck by a five-ton gasoline truck at Greenwood and North avenue, Waukegan.

The driver, Elmer W. Williams, 47, of Winthrop Harbor, Lake county, told police the girl ran in front of his truck while following three playmates. Williams was unable to halt the truck on the icy street and a wheel passed over her body. The girl was the daughter of Robert S. Morrell, a salesman, and was a pupil in the Greenwood elementary school. This traffic fatality was Waukegan's first of 1942.

Crash Injuries Fatal.

Mrs. Mae Perlett, 47, of 5615 West 88th place, Oak Lawn, died early today in St. Bernard's hospital of injuries suffered Jan. 18 in an automobile collision at 74th street and Artesian avenue. Her husband, William, a chauffeur, was also injured. Leroy Sontag, 26, of 6710 South Claremont avenue, was the other driver.

James Redmond, 64, of 6443 South Oakley avenue, a watchman, died in St. Bernard's hospital early today of injuries suffered Friday when he was struck in front of his home by an automobile driven by George W. Lunt, 18, of 6647 South Claremont avenue.

Woman Dies of Injuries.

Mrs. Annie Bickley, 66, of Mundelein, died last night in St. Francis hospital, Evanston, of injuries suffered last Friday when an automobile in which she was riding struck a culvert on Milwaukee avenue, three blocks south of Glenview road. Her son, Clifford, 35, driver of the car, is in a serious condition.

Martin Kozesnik, 70, of 3026 South Drake avenue, was fatally injured last night by an automobile in front of 641 North Ashland avenue. He died in St. Elizabeth's hospital, where he was taken by the driver, Erwin Isaacson, 31, of 5024 North Harding avenue.

Up to 4 p.m., yesterday, 91 persons had been killed by automobiles in Cook county since Jan. 1. Of these, 70 were killed in Chicago, where 2,066 were injured in the same period.

MAJ. G. W. LILLIE, PAWNEE BILL OF WILD WEST, DIES

Gained World-Wide Fame in Frontier Shows.

Pawnee, Okla., Feb. 3 [Special].—Maj. Gordon W. [Pawnee Bill] Lillie, famous frontiersman, friend of Indians, and "wild west" showman, died tonight as residents of his Buffalo ranch prepared to celebrate his 82d birthday on St. Valentine's day.

"Pawnee Bill" Lillie.

Passing of the picturesque figure, ever outstanding with his long hair and mustache, buckskin clothes, and big western hat, consigned to history the famous school of frontiersmen distinguished by such names as "Buffalo Bill" Cody, "Wild Bill" Hickock, and "Bat" Masterson.

Wife Killed in Accident.

Pawnee Bill had been in failing health since 1936, when he was injured in an automobile accident that killed his wife, May Lillie, who was noted for her riding ability and skill with a rifle. At the time of the accident they were riding in a gold tinted car given them by friends on their golden wedding anniversary.

Since the accident, Pawnee Bill had lived quietly in a 14 room red stone ranchhouse on Blue Hawk peak, overlooking this northeast Oklahoma town populated mostly by Indians. He had made a hobby of raising buffalo, hence the name of his ranch, and had one of the largest private herds in the world. His imposing ranchhouse was crowded with souvenirs of the old west.

Born in Bloomington.

Pawnee Bill was born in Bloomington, Ill., and came to the Indian country as a youth. At 17 he was teacher and interpreter at the Pawnee Indian agency here, and in 1883 accompanied a band of Pawnees to join Buffalo Bill's show.

Five years later he married the daughter of a Philadelphia physician, and taught her to ride and shoot. She became a star of his wild west show and became noted for her marksmanship from horseback. Pawnee Bill took his show on a European tour and later merged it with Buffalo Bill's show and played all over the United States and Canada.

In the late '80s Pawnee Bill took time out from his show business to press the fight to open Oklahoma territory for white settlement. Dissatisfied with government reaction, he formed the "Oklahoma Boomers" in Wichita, Kas., and led them into Oklahoma on April 22, 1889, the date known today as Oklahoma's birthday.

Police Continue Arrests in Auto License Drive

Police issued summonses to 200 motorists whose automobiles lacked city license stickers and to 235 whose cars lacked state license plates in the 24 hours ended at 3 p. m. yesterday, according to Capt. John Prendergast, chief of uniformed police, and Capt. David Flynn, chief of the traffic division.

READY MONEY UNNECESSARY

You can get venereal disease care even if short of funds!

Don't let a lack of ready money cause you to neglect a venereal disease. Even though temporarily short of funds, you can arrange to get skilled treatment here! Organized by public-spirited citizens as a corporation "NOT-FOR-PROFIT," the Public Health Institute makes a full examination for syphilis and gonorrhea at very low cost, and gives individual treatments at fees so small as to be within the reach of every wage earner.

TIRE RATIONING NOT TO BOTHER DRIVER FOR YEAR

Tire rationing and similar problems will not worry William B. Adams, 45 years old, 215 West Goethe stret, for a year. Judge John V. McCormick in Safety court yesterday revoked Adams' driving privileges for a year and sentenced him to 30 days in the county jail for leaving the scene of an accident. A 10 day sentence for reckless driving is to be served concurrently. Adams drove past a stop sign Oct. 4 at 35th street and Ashland avenue, and his car collided with one driven by Raymond Youch of 2809 Wellington avenue. Adams drove on, but was halted at 38th street and Ashland avenue. He told the court he became frightened.

'Author of 'Rebecca' Writes Another Romantic Tale in Her Novel, 'Frenchman's Creek.'

BOOKS

'Introducing Australia' Turns a Vivid Spotlight on a Country at War in Pacific.

A New Thriller Turned Out by du Maurier Pen

"Frenchman's Creek," by Daphne du Maurier. [Doubleday-Doran, $2.50.] Published Monday, February choice of the Literary Guild.

BY FANNY BUTCHER.

The author of "Rebecca" has written another supermovie in "Frenchman's Creek." Altho it is a novel, its destiny is as obviously a movie thriller as if it had never known the robing of fine words and the cosmetics of lengthy descriptions of nature and emotions both lush and wild. It is a superstory straight out of the property room of any well equipped motion picture storehouse.

The beautiful Dona, rebelling against the chains of society and a too amorous husband, rushes off to the Cornish coast to get away from it all. Her two children and their nurse are her only link with her frivolous past. With the children, wandering in the woods, lying in the grass looking up at the serene sky, peace envelops her. Until, that is, a mysterious pirate comes into her life.

Miss du Maurier presents as juicy a dish of adventure as any romantic reader could ask for. Except for an occasional observation on the part of the French pirate, there is about as much reality in either the characters or their actions as there is sea salt in Lake Michigan's water. Miss du Maurier scatters glamor and mystery with a literary atomizer—covers everything with its mist—in this tale of the unhappy wife bent on finding happiness. Dona takes hers with a pirate who reads poetry, makes delicate drawings of birds, and is altogether a charming and cultured gentleman who does a spot of piracy on the side.

The period is some time in the remote past—England in the days of Charles II., I think—but "Frenchman's Creek" is historical only in the presence of an occasional curled wig and in the business in which its hero is engaged. Otherwise it is pure modern Hollywood.

Not that this isn't a thriller, de luxe! You'll find it as full of excitement as a good sponge cake is full of air. You'll find hairbreadth escapes, epic fights, a battle on a prize ship and on the great stairs which will make the hair at the nape of your neck prickle. It's an exciting yarn to knit up your "ravell'd sleave of care." And it's as little like life as a gingerbread man is like a sugar daddy. That's its charm and its reason for being what it is sure to become, a best seller.

Does Love Tale

Daphne du Maurier, whose "Frenchman's Creek," the tale of a lady who fell in love with a pirate, is reviewed today by Fanny Butcher.

Every Citizen Urged to Give in Book Drive

More than 30,000 books have been collected in the Victory book campaign sponsored by the Red Cross, the USO, and the American Library association, according to A. Kroch, director of the drive in the Chicago metropolitan area, whose goal is a million books to be sent to soldiers, sailors, and marines. Evanston topped its quota of 10,000 last week. The Junior Chamber of Commerce gave a large collection of books this week.

Mayor Edward J. Kelly in his defense talk on the radio yesterday urged every citizen to give five books to the campaign. At a Rotary club luncheon yesterday each member brought his arms full of books.

Next Wednesday the Friends of American Writers will have a book tea at the Chicago Athletic club, the admission to which will be at least two books for the campaign.

Five hundred thousand Chicago school children have been enlisted to make collections of books.

If you want to help, go over your shelves and get out the books that you are willing to share with our men in service. If you don't know any school children to call into service take them yourself to the nearest branch of the Chicago public library, the main library, or to your favorite bookshop. Put your name and address in them if you like . . . you'll probably get grateful letters from the boys who read them.

Fifty or more books will be called for by a truck if you telephone Randolph 5520.

Interesting Reading in This 1,000 Page History of Ireland

"Ireland, Past and Present," by Tom Ireland. [Putnam, $5.]

Well over half of this thousand page tome deals with the history of modern Ireland, and the book's chief value seems to be in its full coverage of the years since 1916, altho the story of Ireland before that time also is adequately dealt with. In his preface the author, an Irish-American attorney, concludes that Irish interests would best be served by handing over bases for use by the English navy and air force. The book provides interesting reading about a country whose history is too little known to most persons. R. C.

Upton Sinclair Adds to Saga of Lanny Budd

"Dragon's Teeth," by Upton Sinclair. [Viking, $3.]
"Northbridge Rectory," by Angela Thirkell. [Knopf, $2.50.]

BY EDITH WEIGLE.

The third book in Mr. Sinclair's novels built around historical events of our own times is by far the best. In "Dragon's Teeth" readers already acquainted with Lanny Budd and his amazing family and friends, having met them in "World's End" and "Between Two Worlds," now follow their fortunes from the stock market crash of 1929 to Hitler's blood purge of 1934.

As in the other novels, the author gives a running account of political affairs in Europe and this country, but with the spotlight this time turned on Germany under the Nazis. Lanny and his millionaire wife know not only the big-wigs of England, France, and Italy, but now are taken in by the officials of the National Socialist party—Goebbels, Goering, and even Hitler himself.

And because two of the American's Jewish friends fall into the hands of the Gestapo, Lanny sees with his own eyes the horrors of Hitler's torture chambers. The last part of the book is concerned almost entirely with Lanny's attempts to get Freddi Robin out of the Dachau concentration camp and is as exditing an adventure tale as "Escape."

"Dragon's Teeth" might be subtitled "Lanny Budd Comes of Age," for at long last this son of the very idle rich, this dilettante of the arts and dabbler in political creeds grows up mentally and has a chance to prove his mettle. In endangering his own life to save his friend he wins the sympathies of all readers. The tempo of this book is swifter, also, than the others, and the contents much more vital.

The author of "The Brandons," "Summer Half," and other delicately delightful novels of contemporary life in England proves that even in wartime her charm of style, characterization, and situation flow along smoothly and evenly, not one whit ruffled. The people in "Northbridge Rectory" are the very human, often whimsical, sometimes testy, always entertaining group her readers have come to know and enjoy.

Mrs. Villars, wife of the rector of the village, is the pivot about whom the others revolve in their everyday and defense activities. Nothing much happens. Everybody works for the Red Cross, for Women's Voluntary services, as air raid wardens, etc. But they all do it in their own individualistic, humorous way.

One feels that so many centuries have drifted over the quiet life of this little village and its inhabitants that a world war, more or less, cannot efface its sense of security, its leisure any more than it can change its personality. Mrs. Thirkell in this gentle story stoutly affirms that there'll always be a Northbridge.

Tells Strange Tale

Rumer Godden, author of the novel, "Breakfast with the Nikolides," reviewed below.

"Breakfast with the Nikolides," by Rumer Godden. [Little-Brown, $2.50.] Published yesterday.

The author of that really remarkable novel, "Black Narcissus," uses India again as the background for a work of fiction, but beyond that and the fact that both books are very beautifully written with a special kind of precious loveliness of words and word images, they have little in common.

"Breakfast with the Nikolides" is one of the vaguest, most tenuous novels you ever came upon. It concerns the putting to death of a little dog who had rabies and the dire and strange events which followed. But the bare bones of that event are padded over with the soft, warm human flesh of little Emily, who refuses to believe that her dog has died, who senses something cruel and bitter in her mother; with the hard, cold flesh of Louise, Emily's mother, who hates her husband and covets the affection he gives to Emily.

The brown flesh of the young veterinary doctor also pads the bones of the plot. He is a man torn between the ancient and the modern India. And the young student who brings woe and almost tragedy to many is another bit of flesh to fill out the bones of this strange book.

It has a fascination about it. But when the last word of this beautifully written book is finished the reader suddenly blinks his eyes and says to himself [with surprise, because he has had an engrossing hour with it]: "Well, it's charming, but what of it?" F. B.

A Timely Book on a Land at War in Pacific

"Introducing Australia," by C. Hartley Grattan. [John Day, $3.]

BY RALPH WILLIAMS.

Many armchair strategists, who like to keep a jump ahead of war developments by reading background material on countries involved, probably have been caught napping in the case of Australia. This work by Mr. Grattan will be a welcome discovery for Americans who know little about that great continent except that it produces kangaroos and boomerangs.

The average reader probably will rush thru the early chapters of the book to get to the final sections, which discuss the first World war and the present conflict. In these he will find a fine analysis of Canberra's insistence that the empire recognize the full importance of the war in the Pacific.

Mr. Grattan skilfully analyzes Australia's relations with the mother country, leaving no doubt about the British flavor of the country or the loyalty of its people to the crown, but stressing a growing collaboration with the United States.

Mr. Grattan himself is an American. He saw Australia with sympathetic eyes on extended visits, and he says he loves it—next to the United States. He presents an intimate picture of the eucalyptus lined sheep ranches, the vast industrial works that have stimulated a great labor organization, the great cities of Melbourne and Sydney, the vast expanses of waste land that irrigation some day may reclaim. He pictures a courageous people that remind us somehow of our own pioneers in the west.

This book is a history, a geography, an economics text on Australia. It's a travelogue, too. It will satisfy the reader who wants in condensed form a study of the land of the kangaroo.

Polish War Refugee Heroine in Appealing Short Story Volume

"Miss Bronska," by Gene Henry. [Dodd-Mead, $2.]

Miss Juliana Bronska, a Polish refugee, is the heroine of this volume of short stories. Between shifts in the air raid shelter, where she works as a canteen helper, she finds time to cheer up wounded RAF pilots, catch a spy, play Santa Claus and Cupid, and thru it all, including being trapped in a bombed house, keep her highly individual and useful sense of humor. You'll like her.

Story of Russia

Irina Skariatina, author of "Tamara," a tale of imperialist Russia, reviewed below.

"Tamara," by Irina Skariatina. [Bobb-Merrill, $2.50.] Published Monday.

The background of "Tamara" is Russia in the days before the first World war—with a few chapters of throwbacks to the two preceding generations when a Russian nobleman had married a gypsy girl and the gypsy strain had flowed thru the blood of their descendants. "Tamara" is probably almost photographically factual, for Irina Skariatina had exactly the kind of childhood and young womanhood which her heroine describes.

In 1931 Irina Skariatina published a remarkable book called "A World Can End," which described her childhood and youth in imperial Russia and the horrors of spirit and body which she and her family suffered in the revolution. I remember it almost word for word, as all of you who read it must remember it. The happier part of that same material she uses in the novel, "Tamara."

However, real as is this background, somehow the reader has a feeling of utter unreality as he reads this [mostly] pleasant tale, for the events of the book are conditioned not by the kind of people who live in it, but by the kind of world that those people live in—a world which has ended.

"Tamara" ends with a few pages of a family's tragic scrambling to get away from the revolution, but mostly it is a gay tale of a well bred Russian girl whose gypsy blood makes her cheeks glow with excitement and her eyes sparkle with devilitry. As a picture of a vanished period it is particularly colorful. F. B.

"Pursuit of a Parcel" . . . . By Patricia Wentworth Turnbull

[Copyright: 1942: By Patricia Wentworth Turnbull.]

INSTALMENT XXVII.

DISAPPEARANCE.

Delia was kissed and Antony out of the window before the words were out of her mouth. Lady Maddox found her young cousin in a housewifely conference about ration cards. There were a few gracious words on the excellence of the lunch, after which there was a stately return to the drawing room.

"What a high color that poor woman has," Lady Maddox remarked as they crossed the hall. "Really quite alarming, but I suppose it comes from bending over the kitchen fire."

Delia supposed it did.

Antony went back to town, dropping the Daimler en route. As soon as he got back to the flat he rang up Colonel Garrett in his office.

"Would you like me to come round and see you, sir?"

"No, I shouldn't!" The celebrated bark was at its rudest. "I'm busy! Have you got the parcel?"

"No, sir."

"Why haven't you?"

"That's what I thought I might come round and tell you about."

"All right, all right—come along!" The thump of the receiver jarred the line.

Antony put on his hat and went out again.

He found Garrett terrifying a new typist. Girls in the office being his pet abomination, he was not attempting to restrain himself. The wretched child gave Antony a look of passionate gratitude and fled. It was now so late that with any luck she might hope for a night's interval before she had to face any more of Colonel Garrett's dictation.

Antony shut the door after her, observed that girls worked better when they weren't bullied, and waited for the explosion. But Garrett only looked surprised.

"Who bullies them?"

Antony grinned.

"You do."

Garrett made the most frightful of his repertory of faces.

"Did you see her nails—half a yard long and bright scarlet? Revolting!"

"The girl's a nervous wreck. She'll have hysterics on you right here if you go on shouting at her like that."

Colonel Garrett's eyes became fixed in a steely gaze.

"Come here to lecture me on my office manners?"

"No, sir."

"Then sit down and tell me about this damned parcel!"

Antony told him.

"I thought it wasn't any good having a pitched battle—attract too much attention for one thing. Lady Maddox is just the sort of woman who goes screaming all over the place about how I'd dragged her husband into some mysterious affair about a parcel and all the rest of it, and I thought I'd better leave it over until she was gone. I can go down again tomorrow."

Garrett gave a grunt.

"Comes of having young women mixed up with things—that's what I say. Fatal! And they bring them into my office! Tchah!"

"Tchah it is! You don't suppose I want Delia mixed up in this rotten show? I'll go down tomorrow and bring the parcel back. What I can't understand is, why wouldn't Cornelius meet me? He went away at a quarter of 10, as soon as he heard I was coming down. Why? We parted on the most friendly terms. Why won't he meet me?"

Garrett looked up sharply.

"Wants to get away with the parcel. Doesn't want to come and see me. Not too comfortable in his mind about what he's been up to and what we're likely to do about it. That's my guess. Have you got a better?"

"No, I don't know that I have. It feels funny—that's all. What about No. 11 Silverthorn road—did you get anything there?"

Garrett humped a shoulder.

"What did you expect? Told you there wouldn't be anything."

"And there wasn't." There was the faintest tinge of irony in Antony's voice.

"There was an emtpy house. Plenty of empty houses knocking about these days. Old crater out behind and not much back wall left. Plenty of that sort of thing, too. Furniture's been cleared out."

Antony frowned.

"Then they weren't living there?" Garrett shook his head. "Then what were they doing—waiting for Con to come along? It might be that. We don't know where he was living, but it looks as if they did. Looks as if they knew he'd be passing along Silverthorn road and they'd got some one tailing him just to make sure. Then there was that crump. I wonder what was due to happen if Jerry hadn't dropped a couple just then. I wonder what did happen——" His voice trailed away.

Garrett looked up at him sharply.

"What's eating you? Nothing happened to Cornelius anyhow. Turned up bright and punctual on the girl friend's doorstep this morning, didn't he?"

Antony nodded.

"And didn't wait to see me—left like a streak of greased lightning as soon as he heard I was coming down. I can't fit that in, Frank. It doesn't feel right."

Garrett leaned back in his chair. He sucked at his foul old pipe. Then he said out of the side of his mouth:

"Don't want to meet me. Don't want to meet you, because he's afraid you'll hale him here to see me. Wants to get off with the bit of blackmail he's got in that parcel."

Antony leaned both hands on the table and said:

"Why?"

Garrett stared at him.

"How do you mean, why?"

"Why should he want to get away with the parcel? It was sent to me for a reason, and the reason still holds good. He wanted some one to hang on to it while he made his getaway. He'd told them that if he was laid by the heels or molested in any way, the parcel would get going—and from what I've heard of the doings over here it looks as if they believed him. Somebody's been trying very hard to get hold of that parcel, but I can't see why Cornelius should want to get hold of it. It seems to me that as far as he's concerned it's all right where it is."

Still out of the side of his mouth, Garrett said:

"Forgetting about being dead, aren't you? Told the girl friend you were a corpse, didn't he? Quite a good reason for retrieving his parcel, I should say. If you were dead, he'd want to find some one else to hold the stakes while he cleared out."

The shadow passed from Antony's face. He straightened up.

"I suppose he would. He wants to get away to America. Can it be done?"

Garrett shrugged.

"Don't ask me. Has been done. Lots of things get done that no one knows anything about, but you needn't say I said so. I want to see him first, that's all I know, but up to the present you and this girl of yours are the only people who've seen hair, hide, or hoof of him. I'd have sent some one down to Wayshot if I'd thought you were going to make such a mess of getting there." He grinned malevolently.

"If you'd given me a nice motorbike and some petrol, there wouldn't have been any mess," said Antony with his charming smile. And then, "Con oughtn't to be difficult to find—he's too big to be lost in a crowd."

"How much accent has he got?"

"O, none—none at all. He's not even too correct, which is where most Dutch people slip up. You see, he grew up speaking nothing but English. It's not a language he's ever had to learn."

"O, well, we'll find him," said Garrett easily. "I've been on to the Dutch about him. They say he dropped in on them from the blue—wanted a permit to stay here until he could get off to America. That was a couple of days ago. He left an address. Small hotel in Bayswater."

"Well?"

"Not particularly. He only stayed there two nights."

"Which nights?"

"Didn't come back last night. Left his bag. Nothing in it. Toothbrush. Pajamas. Change of linen. All new."

"But, Frank——"

Garrett stared.

"Don't be a fool! He went down to Wayshot." He removed his pipe and banged it on the edge of the table. "Wake up, young 'un! Whatever happened or didn't happen at 11 Silverthorn road last night, Cornelius rolled up to see your Delia this morning."

Has Democracy Failed Us . . . or have we failed it?

Fascism and Communism forever taunt us with, "Democracy's only goal is money, profits, dividends!" Is this true? Is economic welfare Democracy's only objective? What were our real mistakes when we ended the last war? When we allowed this one to begin? How will we have to overhaul our Democracy within the next few decades—adopt firm standards in Religion, Education, Art, Literature, Philosophy, Ethics—if we are successfully to meet new challenges of totalitarianism, apart from the battlefield? A historian brings his knowledge to bear on the practical problems of the present and future. $3.00.

LUCK ATTENDS CHICAGOANS IN QUEST OF FISH

Reports from Florida Tell of Their Prowess.

BY BOB BECKER.

Chicagoans are meeting with so much luck in their quest for sailfish and other salt water species in Florida waters that they're sending back postcards inscribed with that trite saying: "Having swell time; wish you were here." In the last week the sailfish have been jumping all over the ocean, and catches have been running ahead of last year.

Louis Swift Jr. of Wheaton, Ill., recently landed one 7 feet 8 inches long and released another while he was aboard Capt. D. Anderson's boat near West Palm Beach. Mrs. Swift also connected with plenty of sailfish on the expedition, even tho they didn't stay on her line until the finish. She hooked and played four of them. Otto Laurenz of Chicago had four to his credit, the largest measuring more than 7 feet.

Record Catches Reported.

Bonito, amberjacks weighing more than 40 pounds, and other salt water game fish have fallen before the tackle of anglers' trolling lures out from West Palm Beach. One hundred eleven sailfish—more than in any other day in this year's sailfish Derby of the West Palm Beach Fishing club—were caught in one day last week. This was three more than the total for the best day in the 1941 Derby. Experienced boat captains believe the excellent conditions will continue for some time.

There's a new Chicago member of Fort Lauderdale's exclusive sailfish club—a woman who, in addition to having become eligible for the angling honor, is next to the top in the sailfish division of the tournament there.

Mrs. Wahl's Big Day.

Mr. and Mrs. Fredrick Wahl of 829 Case street arrived at the Florida resort several days ago to fish the Gulf stream. They boated some nice kingfish, dolphin, and bonito on their first trip.

Mrs. Wahl's big day came when, on Capt. James Coward's cruiser Toxaway, she hooked and brought to gaff unassisted a 31 pound sailfish. This gives her second place in the women's sailfish division of the Fort Lauderdale Anglers' association tournament.

If her sailfish holds second place when the tourney ends April 15, she will be awarded a $25 defense bond. Bonds have taken the place of tackle prizes awarded in previous years. Mrs. Wahl has been awarded a sailfish button and certificate.

Samuel E. Parker of 1732 Foster avenue connected with a heavy sailfish while trolling out from Fort Lauderdale. His prize measured 7 feet 1 inch and weighed 49 pounds.

Miami Reports Encouraging.

Reports from Miami and Miami Beach indicate that Chicagoans are walloping the barracuda, bonito, groupers, amberjack, sailfish, and other species that are plentiful around the reefs and keys and also around the Gulf stream. The Miami tournament is offering hundreds of prizes to successful sportsmen this season. The bonefish, the speedster of the mud flats, will be sought this season, as prizes are being offered to those who land large specimens. The number of anglers on both the east and west coasts of Florida has been increasing in recent weeks.

One noticeable feature of the sport in Florida this season is the trend toward fly rods in capturing various kinds of game fish. The rods no longer are regarded as queer equipment by residents of south Florida.

Carry Tackle with Them.

The really hepped up fly rod enthusiasts carry their tackle with them even when trolling the edge of the Gulf stream, and anchor when they hit a school of dolphin. They ease out their baits in the clear blue water. And when a 5 or 6 pound bull dolphin connects there's plenty of action. Mostly, however, the saltwater fly casters do their fishing at the inlets or on the inside waters. Continuous sport when they're schooling are the small blue runners and jack crevalle, miniature editions of the reef running amberjack.

Also found in the inlets and in the salt and brackish tidal water are small snook and tarpon, both leaping gamesters.

Orientals in the Occident

In rites handed down thru the centuries the Chinese of Los Angeles, Cal., will celebrate their New Year's day Feb. 14. Here is a quartet of strolling players rehearsing in China City, near the Civic center.

All-Expense Ski Tours from Chicago Announced

Two all-expense ski tours, both starting from Chicago Saturday, Feb. 14, were announced yesterday. Four western skiing areas—Winter Park, Glenwood Springs, and Aspen, Colo., and Alta, Utah—are the objectives of a 10 day trip over the Burlington route. The Laurentian mountains north of Montreal will be visited by a group taken on a nine day trip by E. A. Poole of the Canadian Pacific railway.

MISSION RUINS OF NEW MEXICO LURE TRAVELERS

Gran Quivira Called City That Died of Fear.

Mountainair, N. M., Feb. 3 [Special].—Listed among "the cities that died of fear," Gran Quivira National monument, in central New Mexico, stands today as one of the important mission ruins of the American southwest.

Gran Quivira is of dual interest to the traveler. There are two ruins. The first church was built about the time the Pilgrims landed on Plymouth Rock. The second, or "new" church, was begun in 1649 and never completed.

In addition, the national monument and adjoining state monument contain 18 ruined house mounds. These once housed the Humanas Indians, a pueblo people whose women are believed to have built the two missions.

The "new" church, erected under the direction of Fray Francisco de Santander, was known as San Buenaventura de las Humanas. It is one of the largest structures of its kind in this state.

Built of Limestone.

Unlike most of the Franciscan missions in New Mexico, those at Gran Quivira were made of limestone, with walls from four to six feet thick. In the "new" church these walls still stand as high as 40 feet, dominating a hilltop in the monument area.

The Humanas pueblos formed a part of the Salinas group, named for the nearby salt lakes which were important to both the early Spaniards and the Indians. Separated from their neighboring pueblos in the Rio Grande valley by the sprawling Manzano mountains, the Salinas villages presented an outpost facing the fierce nomadic tribes whose depredations increased yearly.

Beleagured by repeated raids from the Apaches, and by repeated crop failures, the Humanas were finally forced to abandon their villages. Some time between 1672 and 1678 they moved into the southern Rio Grande valley.

Legends of Vast Riches.

Just as it is today, water was a problem with the Humanas. They solved it by building earthen dams across arroyos for the storage of rain water. From these reservoirs the water was ditched in to the town and the fields.

Connected with Gran Quivira are tales and legends of fabulous wealth. For many years treasure seekers pitted the ruins in a futile search for buried treasure. It is now recognized that the treasure never existed.

The name is probably a misnomer. It has no connection with the golden goal sought by Coronado in his expedition of 1540. The Humanas villages were known originally as Tabira, and this was easily twisted into Quivira.

Chicagoan to Address Bryan Memorial Class

Miami, Fla., Feb. 3 [Special].—Dr. Herbert L. Willett, former professor of oriental languages and literature at the University of Chicago, will address the Bryan Memorial Bible class here next Sunday. The class, founded in 1918 by William Jennings Bryan, claims to be the largest outdoor Bible group in the world.

Where can—and can't—we travel this year? J. B.

Americans are free to go wherever they wish in this country and in most other parts of the western hemisphere. Publication of the sailings of ships has been suspended as a wartime precaution, but bookings continue to be made at the offices of lines serving the West Indies and Central and South America. In a majority of cases passports are now required. None is required for travel to such countries as Canada and Mexico.

I am confused about the dates of the 1942 garden pilgrimage at Natchez, Miss. Can you straighten me out? C. W.

Two sets of pilgrimages to the antebellum homes and estates of Natchez are held annually. This year the Pilgrimage Garden club will hold its conducted tours from March 1 to April 1, and the Natchez Garden club will conduct its tours from March 7 to April 7.

Four of us are planning a trip westward and among the places we wish to see is Multnomah Falls, on the Columbia River highway in Oregon. Kindly give a brief description of it. T. G.

The 620 foot Multnomah Falls offers one of the finest scenic attractions of the Pacific northwest. It may be seen from a variety of angles, following an easy hike up well graded trails. It is reached via U. S. highway 30 and is situated about 34 miles east of Portland and about 9 miles west of the Bonneville dam.

Just how big is Florida? H. D. A.

Its area of 58,666 square miles is equal to the combined areas of Vermont, Maine, Rhode Island, and Connecticut.

PLEA FOR WINTER VACATIONS TO BE SENT PRESIDENT

Tallahassee, Fla., Feb. 3 (AP).—Gov. Spessard L. Holland of Florida has asked governors of 14 other tourist states to join him in appealing to President Roosevelt for a statement encouraging travel and vacations as usual during the war.

"I am convinced that it would be sound defense and sound economy if our President would issue a short, helpful statement in connection with tourist travel and recreation," he said in a letter to the other governors.

"I believe that vacation and travel, for rest and recreation, health and morale, are essential for successful war effort. It is just as necessary, in my opinion, for civilians to have furloughs that will enable them to maintain peak industrial production as it is for the soldiers to have such periods of rest to regain physical fitness.

"Being confident that you are deeply interested in this subject, I invite your collaboration in appealing to Secretary Ickes, or the President direct, in an effort to obtain from the President a statement that will help to do away with the apparent reluctance of the American tourist class to enjoy the usual vacation period in your state or mine."

"Please give me the facts about a trip to Southern California"

Below are more direct answers to questions asked Southern California authorities during the past month. If you are planning a trip here, you'll be interested in the answers:

QUESTION: Can I visit relatives out there? Will we be restricted in traveling?

ANSWER: Travel conditions are normal. Rail, air and bus lines from your area are operating on normal schedules. Travelers and their families enter and leave the State without restriction.

QUESTION: Are roads open? Can we motor around Southern California?

ANSWER: Yes. All highways are open.

QUESTION: Do we have to have special headlights for night driving?

ANSWER: No. There was one blackout on December 10 in Southern California. None since. People are on the alert, but living normally—night and day.

QUESTION: How is business out there?

ANSWER: Normal. Los Angeles County indices compare favorably with all other American production centers.

QUESTION: Are there many people from other States now visiting Southern California?

ANSWER: Yes. December travel to Los Angeles County and Southern California larger than same month a year ago. A survey at an important intersection in Los Angeles shows visitors' automobiles passing at the rate of one every 23.2 seconds.

This advertisement sponsored by the Los Angeles County Board of Supervisors

QUESTION: What are these visitors doing?

ANSWER: Enjoying Southern California's opportunities for recreation and sightseeing. The All-Winter Sun Festival is proceeding on schedule. Only 11 of the original 300 events were cancelled. About 150 remain on the late winter calendar.

QUESTION: Should we travel now? What is the attitude?

ANSWER: Victory depends on public fitness and morale, on the driving ambition of each person to win the war. Southern California and other great vacation areas offer ideal civilian furloughs for hard workers and quick rejuvenation for the big job ahead.

QUESTION: What about vacation costs?

ANSWER: Recent surveys show that actual vacation costs (housing, food, sightseeing, etc.) average 18.5% less than the average of 20 other leading U.S. resorts. Ample accommodations.

Newest White Hats Are Small, but Alluring

BY REA SEEGER.

Clever new hats, provocative enough to make you forget weather, war, and anything else that tries your disposition are small and devastatingly feminine, thank goodness! With such a hat atop your curls you are a picture, and how the pleased masculine critics turn and approve. Sugar white affairs are plenty tempting, especially with sleek black or navy blue clothes. They're superflattering, also, because of this dramatic white against a dull, bleak winter scene.

Soft pastels, together with bright, clear, strong colors such as Dublin green, canary yellow, all kinds of old gold shades, and vermilions provide the necessary fillip of color for dark winter wardrobes. A new shade is pale gray, in felt, in ribbon, in feathers, and in combines of ribbon and feathers.

The first shiny black straws and the delicate shades of pastel colored straws are also unpacked ready for the first rush. White hats trimmed or accented with vivid Dublin green are going to be tremendously popular. This drift of vivid green over so many spring hats seems to be the smartest contrast and the most popular.

Flowered hats are more beautiful than ever before. Some of them look like carefully composed corsage arrangements, tied securely with a bow of velvet ribbon. The violet and rose combines are the favorite finds to date, whether the roses are pink or romantically red. All-violet turbans are very young looking, especially appealing on coppertops and blondes, while the violet models with white buds or blossoms or roses in pink or red are effective contrasts for brunettes.

Council of Jewish Women Pays Tribute to Chicago Founder

Mrs. Hannah G. Solomon, spry and active at 83 years of age, was a special guest yesterday at a luncheon of the Chicago section of the National Council of Jewish Women in the Palmer House. It was Mrs. Solomon who back in 1893 organized the Chicago unit from which the national council developed.

Other special guests were Mrs. Maurice L. Goldman of San Francisco, national council president, and Miss Esther Beckwith of New York, director of the council's service to the foreign born.

Mrs. Goldman asserted that the war of arms is only one phase of the fight to preserve democracy, and added that "as Jews, we have a great heritage to contribute to America and a democratic world."

Their Engagement Recently Announced

[TRIBUNE Photo.]

The engagement of Miss Georgia Anderson and Dudley Zinke was announced at a cocktail party given recently by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Randall Anderson of Geneva. Mr. Zinke, who is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Arno Zinke of Geneva expects to report for duty in one of the services after his graduation from the University of Chicago law school in March.

Women in War Work . . . . By India Moffett

[The Women in War Work department will report on women's activities in war and defense work and will answer questions of women who wish to take part in these activities.]

The University circle, composed of wives of faculty members of Northwestern university, is doing an interesting bit of war work in addition to the Red Cross work the members carry on in Scott hall. The circle is sponsoring a series of 14 lectures on nutrition for defense in the Northwestern university settlement district. Mrs. Frederick H. Heidbrink, wife of the assistant dean of liberal arts, is a graduate dietitian who has taught at the Children's Memorial hospital, so she is in charge of the series.

The classes are held every Thursday morning at the settlement, 1400 Augusta street. There were 50 women in the first group, which met last week, with Clara Gebhard Snyder teaching the making of economy breads and rolls. It is expected that twice that number will assemble tomorrow to hear Martha Luyster talk about the canning and preserving of fruit. Mrs. Lawrence Lawson is president of the circle.

The rôle of garden clubs in the Victory Garden program will be discussed at a series of meetings thruout the state under the leadership of Mrs. Warren Shoemaker, president of the Garden Club of Illinois. The work of garden clubs in Chicago and the suburbs particularly will be considered at the first session at 10 o'clock Friday in the Victory center at Marshall Field's.

Another meeting of north shore clubs is scheduled for Tuesday, Feb. 17, in the Community house in Winnetka. Prof. Lee A. Somers of the college of agriculture at the University of Illinois will be one of the speakers. Lester J. Norris of St. Charles, chairman of the Victory Garden committee of the Illinois Council of Defense, is outlining a working program for state gardeners.

MISS JULIA ALICE CASE.

Students of Mundelein college are going all out for Red Cross work, for not only are they taking courses in nutrition, first aid, and home nursing but they will give the proceeds of their junior prom Friday night to the Red Cross. Miss Julia Alice Case is general chairman of the committee that has planned the dance, which will be given at the Stevens hotel.

The woman's division of the American Jewish congress has made arrangements with the Red Cross to give eight classes in first aid, all instructed by local physicians who have volunteered their services. The classes are free, the only expense being a $1 first aid and instruction kit which must be purchased at the first meeting. Mrs. Harper Levy, women's chairman of the congress' war efforts committee, is in charge of the series.

Classes will meet morning and evening on Mondays, Tuesdays, Wednesdays, and Thursdays, starting next week. Registrations of both men and women for the courses are being taken in the offices of the congress, 8 South Dearborn street, telephone Randolph 7013. The physicians who will instruct are Dr. Edwin L. Dunston, Dr. Eric Fantl, Dr. Oscar Wozasek, Dr. George F. Glaser, Dr. Hans L. Popper, Dr. Joseph Reutsch, Dr. Walter J. Karsten, and Dr. Walter Schick.

The fame of the Service Men's center, 176 Washington street, has spread far quickly, asserts Miss B. J. Norcott, promotional director, who tells the following story to prove it. A woman brought a cake into the canteen and Mrs. Edward J. Kelly, chairman of the canteen committee, who received it, asked her how she had heard about the center's need for cakes. The woman responded that her soldier son in Honolulu had been talking to a buddy who told what a good time he'd had in the center when he was in Chicago and also mentioned the wonderful homemade cakes and that the center needed more of them. In his next letter the son asked his mother to bake a cake for the center, and there it was!

Mrs. Walter S. Brewster, one of the women active in war relief work in the first World war about whom M. R. T. asked, is working now, too, altho not in quite the feverish way in which she labored for Fatherless Children of France during the other war. Before we entered that war and later she headed the Chicago committee for this organization. Now Mrs. Brewster heads the Chicago group of France Forever, but she feels that a man would be better in this position, so this week the nominating committee is meeting at her home in Lake View avenue to choose an executive committee, which, in turn, will elect a chairman. Mrs. Brewster will continue to serve on the executive committee and as head of the membership committee.

Mrs. Brewster also is working for the British War Relief and one of her chief duties is "speechifying," which she does splendidly. Mr. and Mrs. Brewster are planning to close their town house and to move to their Lake Forest one "for the duration," and then she expects to do war relief work at the Great Lakes or Fort Sheridan, wherever she can be of the most value.

Engagements Announced

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas J. Daugherty of Evanston announce the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Patricia Marie, to Willard Fiske Lochridge Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Lochridge of Evanston. The marriage will take place at noon on Feb. 14 in the Northwestern university chapel and will be followed by a wedding breakfast at the Edgewater Beach hotel. After their return from a wedding trip Mr. Lochridge and his bride will live on the north side. Miss Daugherty studied music at St. Mary's of Notre Dame college. Mr. Lochridge attended Northwestern university and the University of Arizona.

From Winchester, Mass., comes news of the engagement of Miss Eleanor Greene, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Edward Greene of that city, to Winslow Smith, son of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert W. Smith of Chicago. Miss Greene is in her senior year at Mount Holyoke college. Mr. Smith attended Harvard university and now is an aviation cadet.

Mr. and Mrs. George Warren of La Grange announce the engagement of their daughter, Patricia, to Thomas W. Roberts, son of William Roberts of Milwaukee. Miss Warren was graduated from the Prince school in Boston, Mass., and from the University of Illinois. Mr. Roberts attended the University of Wisconsin.

War Changes Winter Outing Plans of Many

BY JUDITH CASS.

SHUTTERS of American homes in Bermuda and the Bahamas are nailed closed and sunny patios lie quiet and deserted as their owners lend their efforts to defense work at home. Many Chicagoans who have homes in southern waters have abandoned all hopes for winter vacations there, while a few others are still trying to get the passports essential to trips to British possessions.

Mr. and Mrs. Owen Barton Jones and the John T. McCutcheons, who are neighbors in the Bahamas, hope to go down either in late February or early March. The Joneses' island, Green Cay, is just four miles from the McCutcheons' Treasure Island, and the two families pay frequent visits back and forth.

The McCutcheons' plans won't be crystallized until they learn just what their children will be doing. Their oldest son, John Jr., is an ensign in the naval reserve, and his orders may be changed at any moment. Shaw, the "middle" son, is at Harvard university, but plans to enlist in some branch of the service. The youngest son, Barr, is at school in Arizona.

Mrs. Daniel Loring Jr. Is Expected Back Soon.

Mrs. Daniel Loring Jr. is one of the few who have been to Nassau this winter. She and her niece, Nancy Shroyer, have spent a month there and are expected back here the end of next week. Nancy is the daughter of the Malcolm E. Shroyers of Barrington.

Summer is the season the Albert B. Dicks usually choose for a stay in their Bermuda home, Inwood, but they do not expect to be able to make the trip at all this year. Mr. and Mrs. John R. Winterbotham are doing defense work both in Chicago and in Bermuda—the latter by proxy, since the Winterbothams do not expect to go down this winter. The gardener and caretaker of Peppercorn, the Winterbothams' Bermuda home, have been instructed to give the produce from Peppercorn's vegetable gardens to needy Bermuda families.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert J. Pardridge of Wheaton, who almost always winter in Nassau, are sunning instead in Palm Beach, Fla. Col. Robert R. McCormick has lent the Pardridges his Palm Beach house, Mahawata, for the season.

John W. Millers Face Cancellation of Plans.

Perhaps the biggest disappointment of all is that the John W. Millers are experiencing. Inveterate sailors, the Millers purchased a 44 foot cutter last summer by mail from a man in St. Thomas in the Virgin Islands. The Millers had hoped to call for the boat themselves but because of the war had it sailed to Miami instead. The boat arrived there 10 days ago, but an illness in the family has kept the Millers in the north and they may have the boat sailed straight on to their summer home in Marion, Mass.

Many Palm Beach homes have been closed for the season and some of those which are open are not officially so, since their owners are doing little entertaining. Neither the Joseph M. Cudahys' nor the William Wallers' houses there are open now. The Wallers hope to go down around March 1 for a month, and the Cudahys aren't sure when they will be able to go, if at all.

Mr. and Mrs. John P. Wilson departed last week for their house at Yeaman's Hall, near Charleston, S. C. They expect to be away at least a month.

Miss Frances Glore's Betrothal Announced.

The birthday party given at the Charles F. Glores' home in Lake Forest on Sunday proved to be a dual celebration. Mr. and Mrs. Glore announced the engagement of their daughter, Frances, to Kellogg Campbell Beach of Detroit, Mich., son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Beach. Since Sergt. Beach is on active duty with the army, no plans have been made for the wedding.

Miss Glore made her debut in 1935 at a tea at home. She attended Miss Porter's school in Farmington, Conn., and Miss Nixon's school in Florence, Italy, and also has studied at the Career institute. Her fiancé was graduated from Alma college in Michigan.

Fish Story.

With a wary eye for the censor, we hereby offer what we consider the biggest fish story of the year, this boast being conditioned, of course, by the youth of the year. We also offer it as well authenticated, as every story we are told is until it turns out not to be.

It is the tale of two fishermen who set out in a dinghy one sunny Saturday afternoon not so long ago in a quiet, fishy little bay on the eastern coast. The two had been sitting for hours with proverbial patience, lines dangling in still waters, when sssssswishhhhhh! And something sliced the water 50 feet away. As the fishermen gaped, the turret of a submarine appeared.

Our brave heroes dropped their lines and jumped for their motor. A coughing spurt, and it gave out. Then, snatching their oars, they rowed frantically for the nearest point of land, ran thru the woods to a fisherman's cottage and called the coast guard.

In a few minutes coast guard boats were in the bay exchanging fire with the sub, navy planes were bombing from overhead and the baby submarine was sunk. Then the two fishermen, who had been rooted to the sandy beach with mouths agape, staggered away.

One of them wrote a letter, and that is how we heard of it, so. . . .

Notes of the Dance.

Martha Graham's appearance here soon will be her first dancing in shoes. . . . Louis Horst, father of the modern dance, now white-haired, fifty-ish, and Miss Graham's musical director, never stirs from his piano stool while he teaches; can't even jig. . . . Cecil Rhodes, the late South African diamond king who founded the Rhodes scholarships to Oxford, might be a touch surprised to see how Erick Hawkins, one of his Rhodes scholars, has turned out; young Mr. Hawkins went to Oxford from Harvard, just a whiz of a classical scholar, but in London he saw Kreutzberg dance. And that is how he happens now to be Miss G.'s assisting artist.

Verily, Verily.

The slogan going around is:
The man who relaxes
Is aiding the axis.
But Sam Hyman modifies it to:
The man who relaxes
Can't pay his taxes.

Carpenter at Home.

Charles McCormick Wilson, director of the scientific crime detection laboratory of the Chicago police department, spent all last Saturday evening laboriously boring holes into chocolates with an electric drill. Into the holes he cunningly concealed medicine which his four year old son, Mike, refused to take. The next day Mike was given the chocolates. He studied them coldly. "Just give me the pills," he said with sad futility. "I don't like chocolate."

Happy Birthday.

Dear Madam
Ever since Adam
Every one's had 'em
But with vitamin B
It's hard to see

War Economy.

Tighten the belt, boys. Learn to scrimp on potato peelings, girls. Save, save and sacrifice, but don't resort to such stringent measures as a woman we know. Don't try to make butter in a cocktail shaker.

Can't, Sir.

And then there was the traveler awakened in his hotel by a banging on the door.

"Who's there?" he growled.

"Bell hop, sir."

"What do you want?"

"Telegram for you, sir."

"Well, slide it under the door, dope."

"Can't, sir. It's on a tray."

A Rose by Any Other Name.

Russell Miller, who is nine and the son of a Chicago attorney, had to write a school essay on the subject "The Seal." He wrote:

The seal lives in the cold north and on the islands near Los Angeles, California.

In the United States the matters of the necessity for a seal on the various instruments and the kind of a seal required when necessary are almost wholly regulated by statutes. In New York and Connecticut the world "seal" or the Latin abbreviation L. S. written on the instrument is sufficient; and in Alabama . . . a scroll executed with a pen will be sufficient. In New Jersey, Wisconsin, and Wyoming any device or flourish with the pen will be recognized as a seal if intended.

Betrothal Told

Miss Betty Walsh, whose engagement to Thaddeus Harrison Harvey is announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. Russell Walsh of Glen Ellyn. Miss Walsh was graduated from St. Mary's of Notre Dame. Mr. Harvey, son of Mrs. Frank William Harvey Jr. of Wilmette, received his degree from the University of Notre Dame and at present is stationed with the army.

Young Pianist's Recital Rated Extraordinary

BY EDWARD BARRY.

Alice Martz has a manual dexterity that laughs at difficulties and a color command that makes the most of the luminous piano tone, but what really made her Orchestra hall recital of last night extraordinary was the proof she offered that she is that rarest of artistic phenomena—a young musician with ideas of her own.

Alice Martz.

She has been well taught, but her vigor and originality are more than the result of good teaching. Again and again during the evening she demonstrated the difference between acquired and native musicianship.

In the three Scarlatti sonatas, which opened the program, and in the "Waldstein" sonata of Beethoven which followed, she was never content merely to put notes together. She had obviously come to her own conclusions as to what the pieces as a whole meant, and how every part of them contributed to this meaning, and these conclusions she put forward persuasively with every means at her command.

Even where a listener might not agree with Miss Martz's conception [as in the Chopin F Major Ballade, for instance] he could at least be thankful that the conception was clear. In the case of many artists you sometimes have difficulty finding out what the conception is, or whether there is any.

In the Chopin C-Sharp Minor Mazurka and E Major Nocturne the pianist had found her way to the very core of the music. The combination of sturdiness and piquancy in the first and the easy, fluid beauty of the second were powerfully externalized—in the one case by clever effects of accent, in the other by a round, effortless tone and a careful insistence on the relation of the ornaments to the general continuity of the melody.

Besides the pieces listed above, Miss Martz programmed works of Albeniz, Debussy, and George Garratt, the last named a young Chicago composer. This was the fourth recital in the Musical Arts cycle, and Miss Martz had won the right to appear in this distinguished series by emerging victorious from the contests conducted last year by the Adult Education council and the Society of American Musicians.

New Contributions Add $34,106 More to Red Cross Fund

Officers and employés of Marshall Field & Co. yesterday contributed $14,543 to the Red Cross war relief fund, in addition to the $13,000 previously donated by the company. Donald N. Dick, divisional service manager, who was chairman of the Field Employé committee, presented the check to Martin H. Kennelly, vice chairman of the drive.

Other donations brought the day's receipts to $34,106 which sent the grand total to $2,055,368 in the campaign for $3,750,000. Gifts from companies, exclusive of employé donations, included $2,000 from Bethlehem Steel company, $1,500 from the Electo-Motive corporation, and $500 each from the Allen B. Wrisley company, General Motors Acceptance corporation, Maybelline company, Merchandise National bank, and the United Autographic Register company.

Gifts from employé groups announced by Mr. Kennelly were $1,731 from Material Service corporation, $1,141 from Michael Reese hospital, and $691 from General Mills, Inc. Indications are that there will be a marked increase in the number of such contributions reaching headquarters at 105 South La Salle street this week, Mr. Kennelly said. The amounts may establish a new record for employé giving, he added, for a large percentage of the gifts already received have been on the basis of "one day's pay from those who are working for those who are fighting."

Looking at Hollywood

By John Chapman

Hollywood, Cal., Feb. 3.—Abbott and Costello, who often played for $5 a day apiece and who went many days without earning anything at all, earned an estimated gross of $500,000 in 1941 and expect to earn $1,000,000 in 1942. According to Bud Abbott, this is because they have been willing to take a chance.

Hollywood figures are not always believable, except those like Betty Grable's. Many a babe is padded here and there before she steps before a camera, and almost all wages are pumped up before being exhibited to a newspaper man. I can't vouch for the huge numbers in the first paragraph—but I believe them to be more accurate than most because I tried to make them so. For instance, Bud and Lou now have a cut of the profits on their movies above a certain figure, and they turned down an offer of $200,000 cash to settle their percentage on a recent but minor effort called "Keep 'em Flying."

Every once in a while somebody comes out and says the Abbott-Costello team is breaking up, because Lou is a very funny guy anywhere and Bud, after all, is just a straight man. Don't you believe it. The boys have gone on record as stating that only death will part them as a team.

In the beginning, Abbott was a producer for Minsky's burlesque outfit. He could have kept on being a producer of acts. He teamed first with Costello at the Republic theater, Minsky House on New York's 42d street. The team got $150 a week, and I think Abbott took more of this than he gave Costello. "We didn't begin to split fifty-fifty," he recalls, "until we played the Steel pier in Atlantic City for $300 a week.

"After the Steel pier we signed with Leddy and Smith, producers of a traveling unit called 'Hollywood Band Wagon.' We remained with Leddy and Smith until we got stranded in Milwaukee. They didn't strand us in the old sense of the management walking off with the dough and leaving us at the railroad station after the train pulled out. We had been getting paid regularly, but we lost all our money in a card game with the musicians in Milwaukee. Didn't have enough dough to get along to the next stop. We asked Leddy and Smith for an advance, but they told us we'd have to travel as best we could.

"That made us mad at them. As soon as we could we left them, and then we went to work for Eddie Sherman, a small-time booking agent. We played for $5, $10, $15 a day and didn't work every day. A $169 week was big stuff."

Abbott could have made that much as a single but he didn't choose to. He knew and Lou Costello knew there was something in the team, and they chose to stick together.

"That's the trouble with a lot of guys," says Bud. "They won't sacrifice everything and take a chance. There are lots of burlesque performers who are entitled to big time, but they won't get there. They want dough. You tell them you know of a chance and they say, 'How much is in it?' They know they can make sixty bucks a week where they are.

"I've tried to tell many of them they were shortsighted. One fellow listened to me. He had a chance to go into a show and he wanted to know how much he should ask. I told him not to ask for anything.

"The fellow was Red Skelton. He went into 'Panama Hattie' and he did all right. He came out to the movies and he's doing all right. He took a chance."

Abbott and Costello got their first big time break when they were booked into Loew's State theater in New York. They got $600 for the week. They did the "misfit drill" scene which later was the mainspring of their first film, "Buck Privates."

Kate Smith and Ted Collins caught their act, offered them a one-shot broadcast spot for $300. They went well, were called back for a second week at $500. "Nobody believed we could last," says Bud. "They said last week's show was fine, but how about next week's? Well, we lasted. We finally got a contract and we stayed on the show two and a half years."

Used Sewing Machines Are in Big Demand

BY SALLY JOY BROWN.

[Activities of the Sally Joy Brown department are sponsored by Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc.]

The hum of the sewing machine will be heard with increasing frequency from now on. All over the country women are working diligently, turning out garments to fill the wartime needs of the United States. Because of rising prices, mothers of growing children are returning to the custom of making and remaking clothing.

Almost every mail brings an appeal for a sewing machine from individuals or organizations in need of them. The first comes from Mrs. W., who writes:

"I am writing on behalf of our local unit of the Red Cross. We have a good working room in a school building on the south side, but we are sadly in need of a sewing machine. We have only a broken-down model which is so obsolete that we are unable to obtain parts with which to repair it. If any reader has a good used machine, we would be grateful for it."

From Mrs. S., who lives on the north side:

"Dear Miss Brown: We are a large family. My husband and I have eight children. There are many, many things we need, but the most urgent and what I ask of you is a sewing machine. I've tried mending and making over the children's clothing, but can't make much headway when it must all be done by hand. If you could help me I would be forever grateful."

From Miss N., who lives on the near north side:

"Dear Miss Brown: I am 22 years old but have a defective heart, which prevents me from working."

"I have eight sisters and brothers, and I do enjoy sewing for them. It will give me an occupation until my health is better, and there is much sewing to be done. I would greatly appreciate a sewing machine."

Stage Notes

Harry Zelzer announces that he will bring Molly Picon, celebrated Yiddish comedienne, to the Civic Opera house for a six day engagement in "What a Life," a musical with a libretto by Jacob Kalich and music by Joseph Rumshinsky. A company of 30 and an orchestra under the composer will support the star. The show will play here from Tuesday, April 14, thru the following Sunday. On the 13th it will be shown in Milwaukee.

Hebrew Volume by Chicagoans Hailed as Epic

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS.

Collaboration of a Chicago author and a Chicago artist over a period of seven years has produced a book described by Jewish scholars as "one of the three great Hebrew epics since the Bible" and by artists as "one of the most beautiful hand lettered volumes in existence."

The book, entitled "The Abramiad," was written by Ben Aronin, attorney, authority on Hebrew and Jewish lore, and director of extension activities of Temple Anshe Emet, Pine Grove avenue and Grace street. The medieval hand lettering was done by Harold Karlin.

Yesterday the volume was formally given to the Hebrew university, located on Mount Scopus in Palestine where from the summit Titus and his Roman legions once attacked the temple in Jerusalem. There the work eventually will take its place beside other famous manuscripts, including the original of Prof. Albert Einstein's "Theory of Relativity."

The formal presentation was made by Mr. Aronin to Prof. Walter J. Fischel of the university noted Islamic scholar who came to the United States to represent the Jerusalem institution at the 50th anniversary of the University of Chicago. Dr. Fischel has lectured at Harvard and other notable universities of America. His special Islamic field is Iran. The presentation ceremony was held in the library of the board of Jewish studies, 220 South State street.

The volume is a diglot, with the original letters in Hebrew and its English translation done in old English lettering.

Two hundred copies of the book were exhausted on publication.

Music Federation Group to Hear Brahms Recital

An all Brahms program will be given for the First district, Illinois Federation of Music Clubs, at 10 o'clock this morning in the Lyon & Healy concert hall by Norma Altermatt and Mrs. Alfred Moyfey, violinists; Sylvia Daniels, cellist, and Mrs. Cecil Bothwell, pianist. The Crescendo Music club is presenting the musical as a gift program. Mrs. Royden J. Keith, state president, will be guest speaker at the meeting.

If your scalloped potatoes boil over in the oven, you probably have the heat turned too high. Or possibly you've filled the casserole so full it just can't help bubbling over.

Adding sliced onions to scalloped potatoes is an old trick, but a good one.

Scalloped Potatoes and Onions.
[Serves four.]

4 medium potatoes, peeled and sliced
2 medium onions, sliced
Salt, pepper, flour
3 tablespoons butter or margarine
Milk

Butter a casserole and put in a layer of sliced potatoes and onions. Sprinkle with salt and pepper and dredge with flour. Add bits of butter. Repeat until potatoes and onions have been used. Pour enough milk over the mixture to come almost to the top layer of potatoes. Bake uncovered at 350 degrees for an hour, or until potatoes are tender.

Smothered Beef.
[Serves six.]

3 pounds beef rump
Flour, salt, pepper
3 tablespoons fat
2 tablespoons prepared mustard
1 teaspoon celery seed
1 cup strained canned tomatoes

Dredge meat with flour and brown a deep color on all sides in hot fat. Season with salt and pepper. Add remaining ingredients, reduce heat to very low temperature, and put a cover on the pot. Simmer very gently for 3 hours, or until meat is tender.

The foregoing recipe is nothing more or less than a pot roast, of course. But the mustard, celery seed, and tomato seasonings combine to give it a flavor which is a bit unusual.

Cook broccoli fresh for salad. Prepare it as usual, by soaking for an hour in chilly salt water, then looking it over carefully. Peel large stalks, and slit them once or twice so that they'll cook thru in the same time the heads cook. Steam or boil in salted water until barely tender. Drain off water and save it for soup or sauce. Chill broccoli. Arrange one large, or several small, stalks on greens on individual salad plates. Add mayonnaise to which lemon juice has been added, or a lemon French dressing with chopped egg in it.

Don't ever throw out bacon drippings these days. Use them in your cooking and, if you still have some to spare, save them and turn them in to your meat dealer by the pound. He'll reward you with a few pennies, and you'll be helping your country. Cooking fats are needed for soapmaking and certain processes in the manufacture of munitions.

Cornbread.
[Eight inch square pan.]

1 cup sifted flour
1 tablespoon sugar
½ teaspoon salt
3 teaspoons baking powder
1 cup yellow cornmeal
2 eggs
1 cup milk
3 tablespoons bacon drippings

Sift flour, sugar, salt, and baking powder together and add cornmeal. Beat eggs and add milk and drippings. Pour liquids into dry ingredients and stir batter until smooth. Pour into greased pan and bake at 375 degrees for about 35 minutes.

TODAY'S PRIZE RECIPE

"This recipe, which was brought from California," writes Mrs. Dorothy Trevillion, Earlville, Ill., "has made quite a hit in our community." It made a hit with the recipe contest judges, too, and wins today's $5.

Have you a recipe which you think especially good? Send it to Recipe Contest, CHICAGO TRIBUNE, and let us have an opportunity to see its merit. Write legibly, or typewrite, in standard recipe form, including necessary information such as cooking time, temperature, and number of servings.

GREEN BEANS EN CASSEROLE.
[Serves eight.]

1 tablespoon butter
1 tablespoon flour
Salt and pepper
¼ teaspoon Worcestershire sauce.
1 10-ounce can cream of mushroom soup
½ cup grated American cheese
3 tablespoons chopped canned pimiento
½ cup sweet cream
4 cups canned or cooked green beans
½ cup buttered bread crumbs

Make white sauce of butter, flour and seasonings, Worcestershire sauce, and soup. Cook until thick, stirring constantly. Add cheese and pimiento; stir until well blended, then thin with the cream. Pour over drained beans in casserole, sprinkle with crumbs, and bake in moderate oven [350 degrees] 20 minutes.

[Save this for your scrapbook.]

Indispensable Jumper Frock

MISS' JUMPER DRESS.

For school and campus wear, for office duty, and for many, many informal social occasions, the jumper frock is without equal. Today's pattern makes at least two versions of this skirt and blouse combination. Use woolen, silk, or rayon, checked, plaid or plain, and the blouse should be washable.

Style No. 3491 is designed for sizes 12, 14, 16, 18 and 20. Size 16 requires 2⅝ yards of 39 inch material for jumper; 1⅝ yards for short-sleeved blouse; 1⅞ yards for long-sleeved blouse.

Address orders for Clotilde patterns to Chicago Tribune, P. O. Box 537, Grand Central annex, NEW YORK CITY, including 10 cents in stamps or coin (coin preferred—wrap it carefully) for each pattern ordered. IMPORTANT! Be sure to state clearly the number of the pattern and the size desired and write your name and address plainly. The winter pattern book costs 15 cents, 10 cents if ordered with a pattern.

According to Culbertson

[Copyright: 1942: By Ely Culbertson.]

A great deal has been said and written about the folly of permitting declarer to ruff in one hand while discarding in the other. But, as further proof that there are no "nevers" in bridge, there are occasions when this very defense is the best available.

West, dealer.

The bidding:

West	North	East	South
Pass	1 diamond	Pass	1 heart
Pass	1 no trump*	Pass	2 spades
Pass	3 spades	Pass	4 spades
Pass	Pass	Double	Redouble
Pass	Pass	Pass

*One spade was North's correct rebid.

West opened the unbid suit, clubs. His deuce lead informed East that declarer, as well as dummy, had only two clubs, but nevertheless, after cashing the ace and king, East could see no safer return than a third club. True, West might have the diamond king, but, considering South's strong bidding, including his redouble, that looked doubtful, and East reasoned that a diamond lead would make matters all too easy for the declarer.

Actually, no successful defense was possible had declarer played correctly, but the third club return was the only line that could induce an error. Declarer foolishly discarded a heart from his own hand and ruffed in dummy. He then led three rounds of diamonds, ruffing the third. He cashed the king and queen of spades, and when West failed to follow, awoke to the danger of drawing a third round. He led a low heart to the king, and returned an established diamond. West ruffed with the 10 of spades and led a fourth club. Now declarer was really up against it. To ruff with dummy's ace would establish East's spade jack, so he chose to ruff with his own low trump. But now there was no way to enter dummy to draw the last trump. South tried to cash his heart ace, but East ruffed, for the setting trick.

Fulfilling the contract was simplicity itself. Declarer should have ruffed the third club lead in his own hand, cashed the king and queen of spades, and then led three rounds of diamonds, ruffing the third with his remaining trump. Then, all he would have had to do was enter dummy with the heart king, cash the spade ace [leaving East with the high trump] and go unconcernedly on his way, cashing established diamond tricks until East chose to ruff.

Your Handwriting

BY SHIRLEY SPENCER.

Here is the signature of Robert Young as another proof that humor can show in handwriting. It seems that my reference to laughing letters caused a skeptical comment, so I offer the amusing writing of Robert Young as another lesson on how to see humor in handwriting.

First look at that "R" by itself and see if you don't think it is amusing. The rest of the word "Robert" is quickly and lightly written with the "b" and "e" out of angle, and that little curved mark for a t-bar is certainly evidence of humor.

Then the "Y" taken by itself. You could easily draw a humorous face with those lines. Then we come to the "g." Here, indeed, is the evidence of humor—the cockscrew, as we call it.

And last but not least, we have the curved underscore and the fact that the writing runs uphill. This latter fact is always a sign of optimism which naturally accompanies this type of light, flexible, and amusing mind.

ner, the former Carroll Elting, will be surprised to learn she was married in Colorado Springs, Colo., on Jan. 20 to James M. Bovard of Pittsburgh, Pa. Mrs. Bovard is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Elting of Chicago and Santa Barbara, Cal. After their return from a wedding trip to the west coast, Mr. Bovard and his bride will live in his apartment in Pittsburgh.

The former Carroll Elting's first husband, Joseph Donner, died. She was divorced from her second husband, Lord Lionel Tennyson of England, and resumed her first husband's name. She has two children, Joseph and Carroll Donner. Mr. Bovard, who is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Bovard of Greensburg, Pa., was graduated from the Lawrenceville school and Yale university.

Miss Mary Helen Moore Becomes Bride Tonight.

A strand of pearls borrowed from her only attendant, Mrs. John D. Huggins of Columbus, O., will glisten at the neckline of Miss Mary Helen Moore's wedding gown tonight for her marriage to Robert Adam Vested. The ceremony will take place at 8:30 o'clock in the home of Miss Moore's parents, Mr. and Mrs. James A. Moore of Glencoe, and will be followed by a reception at the Skokie Country club. Mr. Vested, who is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry S. Vested, will be attended by his father as best man. After their return from a wedding trip to Sun Valley Mr. Vested and his bride will live on the near north side.

Friday, the 13th, is almost sure to be a lucky day for students at the Harvard School for Boys in Ellis avenue. That night their beautiful new gymnasium of steel and glass brick will be dedicated and the Harvard basketball team will meet the Chicago Latin's school team in two games.

Mrs. Zimmerman Will Be Speaker's Table Hostess.

Mrs. Earl Zimmerman will be hostess at the speaker's table at the Woman's Athletic club tonight for Herbert Agar's discussion of "Beyond the Victory." Among others who have made reservations for the dinner before the talk are Mrs. Charles W. Fisher, Mrs. Walter Huth, Mrs. Clarence Troup, Mrs. Edward Oneal, Mrs. T. Lloyd Kelly, Mrs. Philip Barber, Mrs. Frederick Watson, Mrs. Bruce MacLeish, Mrs. Alexander H. Revell Jr., and Mrs. Averill Tilden.

Both Prof. Walter Gropius of Harvard university and Mrs. Gropius, who are arriving tomorrow, will fill speaking engagements during their stay here. Prof. Gropius, chairman of the graduate school of design and of the architectural department at Harvard, will discuss "Sight and Shelter—a Contemporary Problem" at the School of Design in East Ontario street tomorrow night. Mrs. Gropius will tell the inside story of "Being the Wife of a Modern Architect" to the Columbia Damen club tomorrow noon.

An exhibit of Mr. Gropius' work will be put on display during his stay here, at the School of Design, of which Mr. Moholy-Nagy is the head.

Thru the Looking Glass

A new type of hair curler is causing a good bit of excitement among the girls who serve us as guinea pigs for such gadgets. They rave.

These aren't like any we've ever seen before. They're a couple of inches long, with a little peg at one end that fits into a snug opening at the other end, making the sturdiest kind of closure. And their outer covering is not of metal but of soft chamois that makes a cylinder over the flexible coiled spring inside. It's easy as pie to roll the hair up over them and to fasten them securely.

The big point about these, our enthusiasts tell us, is that they're blessedly easy to sleep on because they are so soft. Never having been addicted to the use of curlers, we don't know first hand about the discomfort of trying to sleep when the hair is rolled up tight on the metal ones, but we've heard tell it's something fierce. These are so flexible, because of their thin spring, and so soft, because of the chamois, that they snuggle down painlessly. It's also claimed that using chamois instead of metal saves the hair ends from being broken.

Not all women can do well when they try to give their hair the professional kind of dressing. But some are extraordinarily deft at it, and for them these new curlers will be useful and comfortable. The chamois will soil, of course, but it's easily cleaned with any ordinary cleaning fluid. So far as we can find out these retain their usefulness for a long, long time.

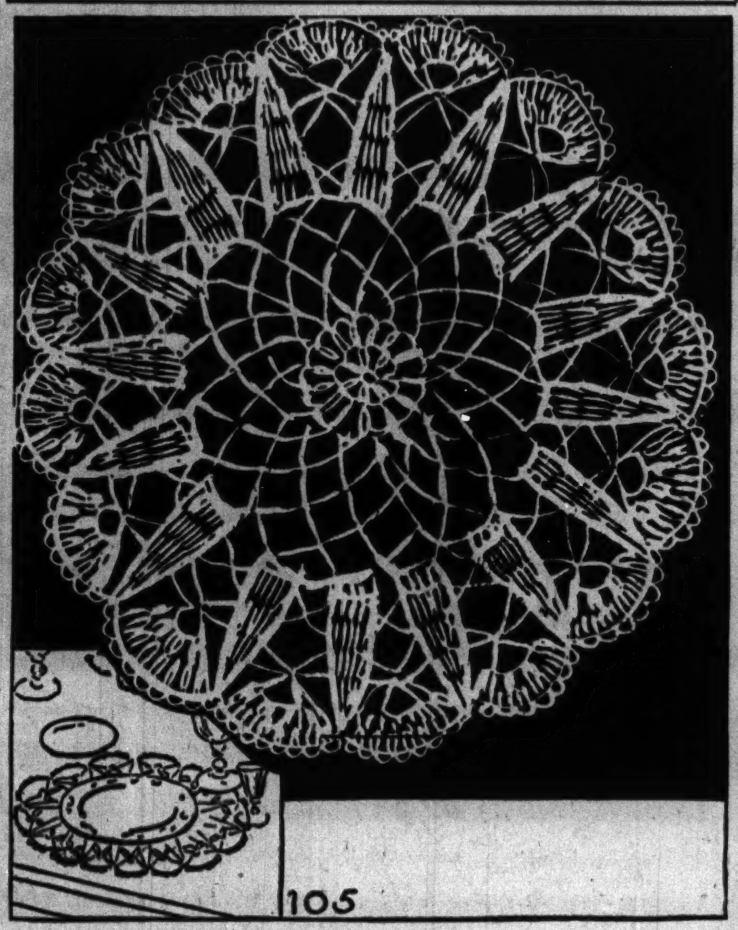
Lovely Circular Doily



BY ELLEN BRUCE.

Every bride loves to display exquisite luncheon sets made by doting relatives. It is with special pride that crocheted doilies and luncheon sets are brought forth. This pattern is a combination of a fan, cone, and mesh design, created of white mercerized crochet cotton. The items are not difficult to do, and are ideal for informal bridge luncheons.

For the instructions in crocheting the circular doily in fan, cone and mesh design, No. 105, send 10 cents in stamps or coin to the Needlework Bureau, Chicago Tribune, 220 Fifth avenue, New York City.

White Collar GIRL

BY RUTH MACKAY.

Here I Am Again, Doc.

The smart dog, Rusty, owned by an advertising man, has a son, Brick. Brick was given to a business associate of his master's, and went to live in Janesville. One day Brick developed an earache and the family took him across town, across the river, to a veterinary. At the end of the month came a bill from the veterinary for three office calls. The family telephoned him. Had not he made an error? They had taken the dog to his office but once.

"Too bad," the doctor said, "Brick reported back twice for treatment and I thought you had sent him."

Notable Women.

In "American Women—the Standard Biographical Dictionary of Notable Women" there are 750,000 women listed. Of that number 781 are from the state of New York and 682 from Illinois.

Business for Women.

A letter apropos of women florists: "I operated my wholesale business five years before my husband passed away and have operated it nearly six years since. In our west side wholesale flower market we also have another wholesale house operated solely by a widow and two other large houses have a husband-wife combination operating them.

"As to my own retail trade, fully 50 per cent of my retailers are women in business—some widows who have taken over; some who have gone into it for the joy of the business; some begun by women who did so well in the business that their husbands gave up their own work and joined hands with the wife.

"There are few greenhouses in the United States where the wife and women members of the family do not help, not only cutting but watering, planting, etc. It is a beautiful business and I feel sure all women connected with it in any way get as big a thrill as I do. . . . I hope I have shown you that the women are way up front in our line."

Southern Drawl.

"And then," adds H. F. to our collection of typographical error stories, "there was the southerner in Minneapolis, taking an insurance exam, who said he had a heart murmur. His southern drawl was too much for the stenographer who took the record. He had, she typed neatly in the report, 'a hot mama.'"

Some Whys.

"Why?" queries the No. 3 girl, "are women office managers obdurate and businesslike in offices, but almost always social wonders after office hours?"

"Why are white blouses stressed for the career girl, when everybody knows she is too busy or too tired to wash and iron a blouse every evening?"

"And why," winds up the No. 3 girl, "do business men think the white collar girl can't cook? After having dinner in the attractive apartment of a former white collar girl I know better!"

Thoughts While Typing.

The first shorthand was used by Tiro to record Caesar's speeches. . . . The first author to submit a typewritten manuscript to a publisher was Mark Twain. . . . One of the first typewriters—the model constructed by Christopher Sholes, was tried out and used by his daughter. . . . The first silver trophy and title of "World's Champion Typist," was won in 1907 by Rose L. Fritz, at the rate of 87 words per minute.

Low Physical Tone May Be Cause of Fear

By GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

[Copyright: 1942: By News Syndicate Co. Inc.]

We were saying, a day or so ago, in talking about the fears of little children, that they varied a great deal in their response to certain noises, and that some of that variation was an individual matter for which we couldn't necessarily account, except that some children are just "built that way," heredity determining certain individual traits.

Still there is quite a lot to be said about preventable causes of fear, and about curing fears that already have arisen. It is an especially timely subject, since there is so much that it is logical a child will fear in the world today, in addition to what we might call normal, or ordinary, causes.

A good point at which to start is your child's physical condition. The child who is below par physically, or who is in a generally nervous condition, may be more inclined to fears than the child who is in perfect condition. In dealing with fears that seem, to us, unaccountable, it always is well, then, to look first into a child's physical and nervous condition, if we can speak of them separately. In curing one, you often cure the other.

A child who is generally undernourished and fatigued, or who has some physical defect that needs clearing up, will be more easily made apprehensive, timid, or actually afraid than the child who is in robust health. This may also be true of the child who is convalescing from a serious illness, or who may be recovering from an operation in which an anesthetic has had to be used. Sometimes several vague fears will appear, or occasionally the fear will be fixed upon one situation or person.

In one case, that of low tone or physical defect, the child should be taken to a doctor and his advice followed in a building up process. In the other, the case of the little convalescent, the process may be a slow one, and the mother must be patient and especially vigilant to avoid strain and fatigue. Even with adults, fearfulness often accompanies ill health or fatigue. Fears, vague or concrete, often vanish like magic with the return of a child's high physical tone.

A look over the shoulder of the kitchen manager in an attempt to speed, lighten and add some novelty to her daily routine.

A set of wooden spoons of graduated sizes is almost a necessity to a good cook. These spoons are excellent for creaming butter and sugar, for mixing sauces and gravies to smoothness, for beating frostings and candies.

But we'd better forget homemade candies and the richer, sweeter frostings until the war is over—especially in view of the sugar situation.

WASHINGTON GETS 21 NIGHT GAMES; OTHERS 14 EACH

LANDIS CRACKS WHIP; RIVAL OWNERS OBEY

Commissioner Puts on a Fast Show.

Sox Open at Home

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

NEW YORK, Feb. 3.—The Chicago White Sox will open their 1942 season in Comiskey park on Tuesday, April 14, against the St. Louis Browns. As their opening day opponent the Chicago Cubs drew the Cardinals in St. Louis. Other first day pairings announced at the major league joint meeting today follow:

American league—New York at Washington; Philadelphia at Boston; Cleveland at Detroit.

National league — Brooklyn at New York; Boston at Philadelphia; Pittsburgh at Cincinnati.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Feb. 3.—Commissioner K. M. Landis, who didn't want to miss his Florida bound train, decided within a few minutes today just how far the two major leagues should proceed to meet President Roosevelt's suggestion that more night games might be appropriate during the war.

Harry Grabiner.

After the big boss of baseball had assembled his 16 employers or their representatives in a special joint meeting, announcement was made that a maximum of 14 electric lighted games per club would be permitted, but that Washington had been granted a concession by which it can schedule 21 of the after-dinner novelties for the 1942 season.

The joint conference, which consumed about a half hour, also resulted in the alteration of some of the annual All-Star game regulations and definitely cleared up some odds and ends which the American and National leagues couldn't solve in their seven hours of private haggling yesterday.

Mr. Landis Makes a Speech.

The National league, as the result of yesterday's conference, went into today's joint gathering determined to fight for a limit of 14 night games, or double the number allowed under the previous rule. The American league was equally set on 14, but with the provision that Washington, a one club city, should be granted the special privilege of scheduling 28 under the lights.

The National, so far as could be learned, never got a chance to cast its vote for what it wanted. Landis, it was said, just made a little speech to the boys. He said that in view of President Roosevelt's expression 14 games would be agreeable. He also said that Washington was a city in which practically everybody was a day worker, hence probably could easily absorb more night games. However, he thought it would be better to attempt 21 instead of 28 and the magnates quickly agreed. Clark Griffith, the Washington owner, was perfectly satisfied. He had asked for 28 only because he figured it would be shaved down.

Cubs Still Eye Sox Park.

Settlement of the night game differences tended to clear up, at least slightly, the little proposition by which the Cubs expect to rent Comiskey park, the White Sox home, which is an electrically lighted arena. James Gallagher, general manager of the

MOON MULLINS—JUST A WRONG GUY

War Veterans Are Backing Dade

Mr. and Mrs. Iver Hanson, in charge of the canteen at the Edward Hines Memorial hospital for wounded war veterans, go thru scrap book with Harold Dade (center) which records his Golden Gloves prowess. Dade, a veteran at 18, twice has taken the flyweight Golden Gloves championship and now fights as a bantamweight. Dade is pointing for his bout in the Coliseum a week from tomorrow when north and south sectional winners meet for city titles. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

Harold Dade, at 18, Swings for a Triple in Golden Gloves

BY HOWARD BARRY.

The crowd which jams the Coliseum to watch the Chicago Golden Gloves championship bouts a week from tomorrow will see some old favorites as well as some new contenders. Among the most popular of the veterans will be Harold Dade, who twice has taken the flyweight title and who now has moved up to the bantamweight division.

It's odd to refer to Harold as a veteran because he's only 18 years old—but he got started so early and learned so fast that he performs with a seasoned ring generalship in all of his bouts. That's one reason why he can always be depended upon to put on a good show. Some fighters are interesting because they're unpredictable—but Dade can be relied upon for a fast, level-headed, hard hitting performance every time he goes in the ring.

The wounded war veterans and the staff personnel at the Edward Hines Memorial hospital check up on Harold every day now as he points for his engagement in the Coliseum. Harold works in the canteen, where his duties include selling sox, pressing suits and making himself generally useful.

Harold Has a Following.

Harold works in an atmosphere of boxing enthusiasm. His boss, Iver M. Hanson, likes to reel off anecdotes about every good fighter who performed since he was a little boy. Dade is his latest favorite. He and the others at the Hines hospital think Harold is just about the best amateur bantamweight to be found in the world—and maybe they're right. One of the standard reference volumes in the concessionaire's office is a scrapbook containing newspaper accounts of the boy's many magnificent performances.

As soon as Harold gets thru with his work at the hospital each afternoon he hustles down to the CYO gymnasium where Coach Paddy Kane puts him thru one stiff workout after another just to make sure he's in top shape for his attempt at another championship.

Never Underestimates Foe.

Despite his many successes, there's nothing at all arrogant about Harold. "One thing I'll never do," he says, "is underestimate any one I'm fighting." He's not at all touchy about admitting that he's had plenty of tough going. One of the prominently

IOWA STATE IS BEATEN, 43-42, BY GREAT LAKES

Ames, Ia., Feb. 3 (AP).—Frankie Baumholtz's free throw with less than 30 seconds to play gave the Great Lakes Naval Training station basketball team a 43 to 42 victory over Iowa State college tonight.

Baumholtz, former Ohio university star, scored 12 points. He sparked a second half rally that broke a 30 to 30 tie and led to the Cyclones' first loss on their home floor this year.

In the last 50 seconds Capt. Al Budlofson, Iowa State forward, sank two free throws to make it 42-all, but the Cyclones were unable to break thru the sailors' defense in the seconds left after Baumholtz's shot. Great Lakes will play Creighton university in Omaha tomorrow night. Linsups:

LONG ISLAND'S QUINTET CRUSHES WHEATON, 83-36

Brooklyn, N. Y., Feb. 3 [Special].—Long Island university's basketball team set a new scoring record for the season tonight, defeating Wheaton [Ill.] college, 83 to 36. The Blackbirds scored their 20th victory in 21 starts and dealt Wheaton its seventh loss against four victories.

Capt. Hank Beenders and Dick Holub, center, with 16 points each, led Long Island's attack.

Long Island outclassed the visitors, who were held to three field goals in the first half. During that period Wheaton scored nine points, made by Bob De Wolfe, Baptiste, and Don Ewing. The Blackbirds led, 47 to 9, at the half.

MAKE PRESNELL NEBRASKA'S HEAD FOOTBALL COACH

Former Star Will Serve Until Jones Returns.

Lincoln, Neb., Feb. 3 (AP).—To Glenn Presnell, 37 year old Nebraska star of 1925, '26, and '27, went the job today of head coach of Cornhusker football during the wartime absence of Maj. Lawrence M. [Biff] Jones, head coach and athletic director for five years.

Presnell was advanced from back field coach, a position that paid him $3,700 annually, and it was reported his salary as head coach would be the same, as Nebraska joined other schools in preparing for a possible reduction of gridiron financial returns.

Jones, who left Lincoln last week and yesterday assumed his new post as West Point graduate manager of athletics, was given a new five-year contract last fall at a salary reported to be $12,500 annually. He plans to return here after the war.

Faces Important Job.

Presnell said he was "very pleased" at being asked to take over in the absence of Jones, and added, "It is going to mean that those of us who are left to carry on really have our work cut out for us."

The stocky, curly haired ex-Husker star was brought back to his alma mater by Jones in 1938 after a brilliant career in professional football and one year as back field coach at the University of Kansas. As a professional player at Portsmouth, O., he was named on the all-star team at quarter back in 1933 and at Detroit in 1934 he set the National league placekick record of 53 yards against Green Bay.

To complete the rearrangement made necessary by the recall of Jones and the decision last month not to renew the contract of Line Coach Roy [Link] Lyman, the board of regents approved selection of Athletic Business Manager John Selleck as athletic director, and employment of Elmer Holm, teammate of Presnell in 1926-'27 and co-captain of the Huskers in 1928, as line coach.

Coached at Washburn.

Holm went to Washburn, Topeka, Kas., college in 1929 as assistant athletic director, football line coach, and head basketball coach. In 1935 he moved up to athletic director and head football coach, remaining at Washburn until the end of the 1941 football season when he resigned and went into the insurance business at Topeka. His salary at Nebraska was not announced.

BY ARCH WARD.

THE Cubs have signed Bill Polston, 16 year old shortstop of Louisville, because it was learned that Bill plays on the same Sunday school team which produced Bill Herman and Peewee Reese. . . . Young Bill is the son of a barber, who is a preacher on the side. . . . The father used to be such a fan that he named an older son Ty Cobb Polston. . . . The parent says he lost all interest in the game when Ty failed to click, but is rampant now that Bill is being hailed as a great prospect. . . . The youngster probably will launch his pro career in the latest Cub farm, Ashland, Ky., of the Mountain State league. . . . The Stanley cup, that battered contrivance for which the big league hockey boys fight so valiantly each winter, will be 50 years old this spring. . . . Only two foreigners—Primo Carnera and Max Schmeling—have won the heavyweight championship since John L. Sullivan's time. . . . Buddy Lewis, the Senator infielder, has been promoted to corporal at Fort Knox, Ky. . . . Cleveland has produced five team champions in the last eight years of the Chicago Golden Gloves tournament. . . . Joe McCarthy of the Yankees, Johnny Moir of Notre Dame basketball fame, Ed Don George, former wrestler, and Tommy Hughitt, National league football official, will be among those who will pay tribute to the Rev. Joe Noonan, president of Niagara university, next Monday night on the 25th anniversary of his ordination to the priesthood. . . . When Ray Eliot, new football coach at the University of Illinois, arrived in Champaign as a student, he didn't have a nickel to his name. . . . A job in Paul Prehn's restaurant as a dishwasher and short order cook helped to provide food and lodging. . . . Dick Harlow, Harvard football coach, is vacationing in Miami. . . .

Bob Etnire, a forward on Indiana university's 1937 and 1938 basketball teams, is with the naval air corps at Pearl Harbor. . . . Each club in the Southern Association will play one game this season for the Red Cross. . . . George Schwab, director of the Huey P. Long fieldhouse and student book store at Louisiana State, has been called into service and it is rumored he may be made assistant athletic director at West Point under Maj. Biff Jones. . . . Schwab was student athletic manager when Biff coached at Baton Rouge. . . . Frank McCormick of the Reds has had the best fielding average in the National league for the last three years. . . . We are enthusiastic about art in all its forms, nevertheless we might take a small bet there aren't 25 persons in Chicago who could describe the $250,000 worth of sculpture on the exterior of Chicago stadium. . . . Jim Gallagher, a hockey expert until he became general manager of the Cubs, now avers that the severest bodycheck to be seen all season in the National Hockey league isn't as painful or as dangerous as a routine slide into second base.

A Tight Squeeze.

F. D. R. and Churchill have big jobs, but they're nothing compared with that of Bob Lewis, traveling secretary of the Cubs. On a radio program the other day Mr. Lewis described one of his most arduous duties. "When we get to the train my first job is to get the Cubs into a lower berth."—Ellis Haitch.

Old Jim Bowers is forever ranting
About the war he is always decanting,
When any one comes within his reach
Right then and there he begins his speech:
"The government ought to done this or that,
They ought to get wheelin' and end this spat,"
Nothing but words thru these critical hours
Is contributed by our friend Jim Bowers.

Old Ed Moore doesn't have much to say,
But I notice he oftentimes makes his way
To a postoffice window, shells out his pence
And buys just a few more stamps for defense;

But each pay day, they tell me, he buys a small bond.
Tell me, are you a Jim Bowers always raving,
Or an old Ed Moore, saying nothing but saving?

Boston, Mass., Feb. 3 (AP).—Mush March, the National Hockey league's oldest winger, rapped in the tying and winning goals as the Chicago Blackhawks outfought the Boston Bruins for a 5 to 3 overtime victory tonight before 9,500 in the Boston Garden. Red Hamill, a recent Bruin, also scored twice for the Hawks.

All of the Bruins' tallies were registered before Sam Lo Presti, the Chicago goalie, was felled by a close-up shot fired by Bobby Bauer during the 17th minute of second period play. The blow opened a deep gash over Lo Presti's left eye and the action was halted to permit medical attention.

Lo Presti Insists on Playing.

Altho six stitches were required to close the wound, Lo Presti insisted on resuming play, despite the fact that Paul Gauthier, the Bruins' spare goalie, was available as a replacement.

Before his injury, which must have been a severe handicap during the last 32 minutes, Lo Presti was beaten by Woody Dumart, Gordie Bruce, and Milt Schmidt. Meanwhile Johnny Mariucci and Hamill had countered thru Frankie Brimsek.

March Ties It Up.

March put the Blackhawks into a 3 to 3 tie during the 13th minute of the third period and the little veteran scored again early in the overtime, which ended shortly after Hamill blasted thru Brimsek for the second time in the lengthy game.

The loss, the second the Bruins have suffered on home ice in three nights, forced them to drop out of their first place tie with the New York Rangers, who advanced at the expense of the Brooklyn Americans. The 70 minutes of play were crowded with bruising action but no penalties were imposed on either team.

The Blackhawks left for Montreal after the game to meet the Canadiens on Thursday.

RANGERS WIN; TAKE LEAD

New York, Feb. 3 (AP).—The New York Rangers took sole possession of first place tonight with an overtime 3 to 2 victory over the Brooklyn Americans. The triumph also gave the New Yorkers possession once again of the William J. MacBeth trophy, emblem of interborough supremacy.

It was the Rangers' fifth victory this year over Brooklyn, against one loss, and was scored on a quick thrust in the first half minute of overtime by Alan Kuntz, who finished off a three man rush with a neat goal. A crowd of 11,198 attended. The lineup:

BRUINS DEFEAT AKRON, 52 TO 48; NOVAK SCORES 15

Chicago Five Leads at Half Time, 26-24.

Mike Novak and Ralph Vaughn scored 29 points between them to lead the Bruins to a 52 to 48 victory over the Goodyears of Akron last night in a National Basketball league game in Cicero stadium. Novak scored 15 points.

Akron jumped off to a 13 to 3 lead early in the first period. With two minutes to play, Vaughn tied the score, 48 to 48. Seconds later, he added a spectacular one handed shot from the side. Free throws by Novak and George Hogan clinched the battle in the last minute of play.

The visitors led 18 to 10 at the end of the first quarter, but the Bruins, due to Novak's sharp shooting led, 26 to 24 at the half.

JOE BURGER broke fast, but swerved over opposite the furlong pole interfering with LONG RANGE and MR. INFINITY. JOE BURGER just lasted to win. ALFORAY closed very fast. LONG RANGE might have won, but for interference. MR. INFINITY ran a very good race and would have won but for the rough work in the stretch.

SECOND RACE—Purse $1,200. Three year olds. Six furlongs. Start good. Won driving, place easily. Went to post at 2:31. Off at 2:33½. Winner, b. g., 3, by Portcodine-Ruby Watch by On Watch. Owner, Lookout stock farm. Trainer, G. E. Lewis. Time, 1:14.

A Mother's Joy.

"Australia calling"—then she heard
  A dear, familiar voice.
The lonely months were banished then
  And how she could rejoice.

Across the sea—across the land
  It seemed as if he came,
Again within the home he loved
  And gently spoke her name.

Because he's fighting for our land
  Within the "flying corps"
It will be long until she hears
  His key within the door.

But echoes of his voice remain
  Encompassed in her heart—
The magic of the telephone
  Had once more done its part.

Dade Punches for Triple in Golden Gloves

displayed items in the above mentioned scrapbook is a picture of himself sitting on the floor after being knocked down in a bout in Des Moines. Ask what happened next, however, and you'll learn that he got up and punched out a decision over the fellow who had just put him on the floor.

Not that Harold spends much of his time on the floor. As far as he can remember, that is the only time he has been knocked down. He's too smart a fighter ever to leave himself open for a knockout punch.

The list of Harold's successes is remarkable. In 1939 he started off by winning the Golden Gloves flyweight novice title. The next year he moved up to the open division of the Golden Gloves competition and he won there, too. He also took the IAC title. Last year he repeated both his Golden Gloves and his IAC victories. A couple of weeks ago he won the bantamweight championship in the All-American tournament in Boston.

Opponent Dies at Pearl Harbor.

Meanwhile he was boxing as a member of the CYO team in many special events. Last summer, in the bouts with Hawaii, he defeated a game little fellow named Paul Inamine, who subsequently was killed in the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor.

Harold was born in Chicago. He attended Du Sable High school. His family lives at 5425 Prairie avenue but since he's been working at the Hines hospital Harold has been living in Maywood.

He has sized up his opponent for the city championship—August Pope of Franklin Park, and he's expecting another tough fight. But Harold's always ready for that.

Fight in Six Cities.

Fighting went on in six cities in Golden Gloves territory last night. Semi-finals were held in Fort Wayne, Muncie, and Richmond, Ind., and earlier rounds were run off in Dayton, Peoria, and Moline. Dayton will hold its semi-finals tonight while Grand Rapids, Evansville, and Terre Haute are going thru second and third rounds.

Thruout a territory reaching from the Canadian border to the Gulf of Mexico and from eastern Ohio to Colorado, boxers are preparing for the Tournament of Champions, which will be held in the Stadium on Feb. 23, 24, and 25. Dade expects to be there as one of Chicago's eight representatives. His bout with Pope a week from tomorrow will decide which one makes it.

Kotz Is Idle, but Lead in Big Ten Scoring Grows

John Kotz's bid for the Big Ten basketball scoring championship appeared to be even better after last week-end's games had been completed than it was a week ago even tho Kotz and his Wisconsin teammates did not play. Kotz's total stood at 114 points, while Max Gecowets, Ohio State guard, moved his own aggregate up to 94 points. But, Kotz had played in only seven games and Gecowets, the runnerup, had been in nine—leaving Kotz eight to go and Gecowets six. The scoring leaders:

SKI CLUB TO HOLD OPEN HOUSE TRIP THIS WEEK-END

Novice ski enthusiasts will have the opportunity to join some of the world's outstanding military and professional ski experts in action when the North American Ski Scouts hold their first open house outing with a trip to Forest Lake resort, Kaswaskum, Wis., Saturday and Sunday.

Organized by a group of veteran skiers the North American Ski Scouts is a nonprofit organization dedicated to training American youth in the methods of skiing employed to advantage in the Scandinavian countries. The club meet each Friday evening at 7:30 o'clock in the Paul Revere fieldhouse, Irving Park and Western avenue. Associate memberships are open to the public.

Any one desiring to join the party for this or other week-end trips, or to become a member of the club, may obtain information by writing to Erik A. Lindgren, president, 4121 North Troy street, or by telephoning Irving 4986. Special buses will leave Paul Revere fieldhouse morning and afternoon on Saturday, returning Sunday evening.

TWO GILL TEAMS GET 6,668 PINS IN LEAGUE PLAY

Gold Coasts Count 3,373 and Stevensons 3,285.

BY C. H. BEUKEMA.

The Joseph L. Gill bowlers are believed to have set a record for teams competing under one sponsorship when the Gold Coast Gills piled up a 3,373 total and the quintet shooting in the Stevenson Major got a 3,285 series last night for a two team total of 6,668 pins. Included in the north side team's total was a 1,234 game, third highest reported in the nation this year. Each team lost a game, the north siders dropping the roll-off of a 1,077 game to the Pogue's Old Times and the Stevenson league team failing by 13 pins in their opener against the Pure Milk five.

High series in the Stevenson league was the W. C. Danne Insurance team's 3,298, which included a 683 by Bill Smith. Smith has just returned to competition after having lost part of his left hand in an industrial accident.

The night's oddity and high score were combined in one series, Si Lock of the Acme Furnace team at Gold Coast rolling three 246 games for a 738 total. High scores at Gold Coast included:

Joseph L. Gills.......1077 1062 1234—3,373
Pogue's Old Times....*1077 960 1071—3,108
Rudy Habetler, 279—705; Matt Kass, 256—678; Joe Sinke, 247—695; Les Kilbourne, 247—673; Herb Engstrom, 259, 245, 214—718.
Louis Glunz Liquors.1044 1095 1086—3,225
A. J. Williams Jewel..1026 1048 1113—3,187
Jim Rudnick, 241—697; Ray Vero, 266—673; Joe Aubert, 256—685; Hank Jouron, 257—692.

High scores at Stevenson's:

Danne Insurance.......1077 1107 1114—3,298
Krause Hardware.......941 982 902—2,825
Henry Arff, 698; Joe Stoffle, 636; Hank Pluge, 641; Frank Brown, 640; Bill Smith, 683.
Joseph L. Gills.......1074 1085 1126—3,285
Pure Milk Assn........1086 1049 939—3,077
Eli Maricich, 623; Sam Saric, 686; Roy Hoegh, 629; Lloyd Strouse, 646; Ad Carlson, 701; Joe Braskich, 668; Mike Straka, 646.

City Meet to Close.

Competition in the city bowling tournament will this week end when the last series in the minor events are rolled on the Adams-Wabash lanes. The remaining contestants will have the following leading totals to shoot at:

Major doubles—George Theel-Joe Wilman, 1,314; major singles—John Casti, 703; major all-events—Joe Wilman, 2,048; handicap doubles—G. Thompson-W. Gosch, 1,325; handicap singles—C. Sweetman, 740; handicap all-events—H. Huber, 2,006.

The Classic league will bowl at 9 o'clock tonight at Schalk's Evergreen Towers. Ambrosia meets Pabst, Monarch opposes Blatz, Schlitz faces National Bowling, and Koenig Brau is paired with Washington Shirt. . . . Demand for tickets to the Ned Day-Joe Wilman $1,000 match at Bensinger's 29 West Randolph center Saturday and Sunday is heavy. The pair will bowl 27 games, nine each Saturday night and Sunday afternoon and evening.

Lindermeier Shoots 300.

Al Lindermeier fired the Bell Auditors league's first perfect game when he followed 188 and 243 games with a 300 effort at Dearborn-Jackson Monday night. . . . Bowling centers which have added defense stamps to their stocks in trade have taken $23,000 of stamps, the proprietors' association reports.

February—which means the late season tournament period is coming up. Among the tournaments scheduled is the handicap event of the Chicago District Country Club Bowling association, which runs the four week-ends of March at Samuelson's arcade. The association is shooting for an entry of 100 teams this year.

Vincent G. Masten, 7241 Bennett avenue, is taking entries for the Chicago Postoffice Invitational tournament, scheduled at Playdium April 11 and 12. . . . Feb. 14 is the entries deadline for the sixth annual Cook County American Legion tournament, scheduled at Adams-Wabash Feb. 21, 22, and 28. The entries are being taken by C. A. Lichtenstein, 6517 South Albany avenue, telephone Hemlock 9738. . . . Math Luecker, 1738 Addison street, is taking entries for the 12th annual Craftsmen's tournament, to be held at Gold Coast four week-ends starting March 14. The event is open to Masons. Entry deadline is March 1.

Injured Pitcher

Eldon Auker, St. Louis Browns' pitcher, from his hospital bed in Detroit yesterday tells officers how he was injured when his car collided with another in downtown Detroit.

Detroit, Mich., Feb. 3 (AP).—Elden Auker, 31 year old pitcher of the St. Louis Browns, sustained head injuries and possible fractured ribs today in an automobile accident in downtown Detroit. He was taken to Receiving hospital.

Auker, employed as a salesman here in the winter months, was a passenger in the car of his employer, Louis Guetsjhow, when it was struck by a car. Police said he failed to observe a stop signal.

Draft Nears for Zale; He May Join Navy

Tony Zale will be eligible for army service late this month, a member of his selective service board said last night at Lake county board No. 10 in Gary. The middleweight champion's order number is 4554, high enough to enable him to go thru with his 12 round overweight bout against Billy Conn in Madison Square Garden Feb. 13.

It was indicated, tho, that Tony, who is known to selective service officials by his correct name of Anthony Zaleski, may join the navy after the fight with Conn.

Last July Tony was given a 1-H classification because he was 28 years old. When war was declared in December he automatically advanced to 1-A classification, becoming eligible for immediate induction.

Zale will engage in his final workout in Trafton's gymnasium tomorrow afternoon and then leave for New York, accompanied by Sam Pian and Art Winch, his managers, and Trainer Joe Neidwick.

ILLINOIS TRACK TEAM CRUSHES BUTLER, 90-14

Champaign, Ill., Feb. 3 [Special].—Sophomores today led the University of Illinois track team to a 90 to 14 victory over Butler. It was the opening dual meet for both teams. Sophomores won or shared seven of 11 Illinois firsts. Bob Kelley and Bob Rehberg, former state half mile champions, locked arms at the finish of the 440 and arranged a tie with Henry Diettrich, another sophomore, in the half mile. Bob Seib and Diettrich finished tied in the mile. Don Olsen, senior hurdle star, led the team with firsts in both hurdle events and the 60 yard dash.

Butler gained only six thirds and one second in the individual events, but won the mile relay.

LILLIS TO ACT AS NARRATOR FOR IRISH GLEE CLUB

Paul Lillis, captain of Notre Dame's undefeated 1941 football team, will be seen in a new rôle on Sunday afternoon when he appears with the Notre Dame Glee club in a concert under the auspices of Rosary college, River Forest. The concert is being held in the auditorium of Oak Park High school.

Lillis will appear as a narrator of Grantland Rice's memorial tribute to the late Knute Rockne, "South Bend Simoon," which will be set against the background of the familiar Victory March.

SMITTY—THE CALL OF THE WILD

LOYOLA MAY PUT IT UP TO DURKIN AGAINST DE PAUL

Dougherty, Regular Center, Has Injured Ankle.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

Mike Dougherty, Loyola's extra long center, may not be able to play against De Paul university Saturday night in the CYO double header basketball game in the Coliseum. Dougherty suffered a sprained ankle in the Bradley game when the Ramblers cut short Tech's string of consecutive victories at nine.

Loyola always has been short of material in recent seasons, so if Coach Lennie Sachs cannot start Dougherty it will be taken for granted that one of the other boys will fill the gap no matter how difficult the task. The No. 1 substitute probably is Bill Durkin, who played very well indeed against Bradley. This change will send Jack Dwan to center and probably will not mean as much to the attack as it will to the defense.

Dougherty Fifth in Scoring.

Dougherty ranks fifth in scoring with an average of 5.38 points for 16 games. Defensively he is invaluable under the backboard and he will be needed against De Paul since the Blue Demons will have superior height. If Loyola gains the lead and defensive play is indicated it would not be surprising if Dougherty gets into the game for that reason.

Loyola's carefully planned floor attack is of a neater pattern than De Paul's rushing tactics. Loyola handles the ball better and credit goes to Mickey Rottner, Dwan, Jack Stanton, and Bob Tietz, who with Dougherty are the regulars. The Ramblers gain position by block plays and have averaged nearly 47 points for 16 games. Loyola has been defeated only three times.

All in Series Have Been Close.

Washington university defeated Loyola, 40 to 36, in St. Louis, and Colorado and Toledo whipped the Ramblers on the Chicago Stadium court. Toledo won, 41 to 37, and since De Paul also was beaten by the Toledo quintet this is one basis of comparison indicating an excellent game Saturday. Comparisons mean little, however, for any De Paul-Loyola game is hard fought and all have been close.

Georgetown university and Marquette will meet in the other portion of the CYO double header Saturday night. Marquette has lost Jack Dentinger and Bill McCarthy, who failed to clear their scholastic hurdles. Georgetown probably should be the favorite unless the Hoyas also have lost front line players.

The CYO yesterday announced that tickets for the double header are nearly sold out, altho several hundred remain at $1.10 and $1.65. Proceeds will go to the Bishop Sheil Needy Youth fund.

STAR SKATERS RACE TONIGHT IN GARFIELD PARK

The postponed George F. Barrett A. C. ice skating Derby and Western open tournament will be held tonight in Garfield park at 7:30 o'clock, it was announced last night by Frank M. Kalteux, director of the annual event. The card of 40 races will bring into action 800 skaters, 50 of whom sought national titles last weekend.

Successful in winning national titles from the Illinois association and who will compete in tonight's events are John Martin of Champaign, junior boys' champion; Don Laser of the CYO, juvenile boys' titleholder, and Tom Tilden of Glen Ellyn, and Janet Montgomery.

The main rivalry tonight will be among the senior men and women with Bob Heckenbach of the Northwest Skating club, winner of the national five mile, and Vic Ronchetti of the CYO, victor in the half mile national event, battling for top honors.

TILDEN JUNIORS TAKE LEAD; BEAT DU SABLE, 57-13

Tilden Tech's junior basketball team moved into a tie with Phillips for first place in the central division of the Public School league yesterday by defeating DuSable, 57 to 13, on the latter's court. John Perkovich led Tilden Tech to its fifth consecutive victory with 27 points on eight field goals and 11 free throws.

A five point rally in the final period gave Lindblom a 24 to 21 victory over Kelly in another central zone junior game. It was Lindblom's fifth triumph in six engagements. Kelly was leading, 21 to 19, at the conclusion of the third period. Len Borske made a free throw, and a field goal by Ted Meyers put Lindblom ahead, 22 to 21. George Klupchak and Meyers each made free throws for the final scoring.

Harrison Tech and Manley won the other two junior contests in the central section. Harrison Tech whipped Gage Park, 33 to 24, in Tilden Tech gymnasium, and Manley, led by Harold Ordman, won from Farragut, 28 to 22, on the Manley floor. Lineups:

Waller Five Keeps Lead by Routing Taft

Waller High's junior quintet remained in first place in the north section of the Public School league by routing Taft, 65 to 22, in Taft gymnasium yesterday. Frank Hokl contributed eight field goals and four free throws in leading Waller to its fifth league victory.

Von Steuben continued in second place in the sectional standings, whipping Amundsen, 30 to 18, on Von Steuben's floor for its sixth triumph in seven games. In the three senior games Taft defeated Waller, 46 to 36, Amundsen conquered Von Steuben, 39 to 30, and Senn won from Sullivan, 42 to 31. Lineup:

Fitzpatrick Gains 16 Points on Chamaco in Cue Match

John Fitzpatrick last night gained 16 points on his rival, Joe Chamaco, in the exhibition three cushion match in the 131 South Wabash avenue recreation. Fitzpatrick won from Chamaco, 66 to 50. Chamaco, however, still leads in the series, 200 to 168. The fifth block will be played this afternoon and the sixth in the evening.

EVANSTON FIVE AND OAK PARK TRIUMPH AGAIN

Evanston and Oak Park High's heavyweight basketball squads remained in a tie for second place in the Suburban league by winning yesterday. Evanston defeated Highland Park, 36 to 32, in Evanston gymnasium and Oak Park triumphed over Waukegan, 34 to 26, in the Oak Park fieldhouse.

Waukegan's freshman-sophomore quintet increased its lead in that division by whipping Oak Park, 34 to 25. It was Waukegan's eighth victory in nine games. Heavyweight lineups:

YORK NEARS TITLES

York High's lightweight and heavyweight quintets took another step toward the West Suburban conference basketball championships by winning a double header from Downers Grove on the latter's court last night. The York leightweights routed Downers Grove, 51 to 36, and the heavyweights followed, 39 to 29. The York lights and heavies each have won nine out of ten games.

La Grange and Hinsdale also won in the heavyweight division. La Grange remained in second place by disposing of Riverside, 42 to 24, and Hinsdale won from Maine, 37 to 33. Heavyweight lineups:

OLD TIMERS OF BASKETBALL WILL GATHER TONIGHT

A group of old time basketball players will be guests at dinner tonight of Herbert G. Immenhausen, former star and later a widely known official. The dinner will be held in the Central YMCA. This group will constitute a committee to organize an Association of Old-Time Basketball Players of Chicago.

The organizing list includes, in addition to Mr. Immenhausen, Judge Jerome [Duke] Dunne, Eddie Fallon, Paul J. Reinke, Al Krause, Red Barak, Elmer Hooker, William Gullickson, Wilfrid Smith, and Leo Fischer.

LYONS, RIGNEY BAT .000 IN THE IVORY LEAGUE

Ted Lyons and Johnny Rigney, White Sox pitchers, each of whom is batting .000 in the three cushion billiards tournament at the former's establishment, 71st and Jeffery avenue, will battle for permanent possession of the cellar tonight. Their records are identical—six matches, six defeats. Each said last night he is determined to maintain his perfect record. The match will start at 8 o'clock and one of the spectators who probably will not be there is Willie Hoppe.

Illini Five's Captain Shows Team Spirit as Benchwarmer

Champaign, Ill., Feb. 3 [Special].—Bill Hocking, captain of the University of Illinois basketball team, always has stood well with coaches, teammates, and campus folk generally but now he rates higher than ever.

For Hocking, relegated to a second string berth on the Big Ten pennant bound Illini basketball team by the superior prowess of four dashing sophomores, has accepted the situation without a murmur.

"Bill has been a fine influence and help in the development of the team," Coach Doug Mills says. "His experience has been invaluable in playing with the seconds against the varsity."

A Star at Braidwood.

Bill won varsity letters in basketball as a sophomore and junior but last year was injured and handicapped for the second half of the season. Illinois basketball followers remember Bill as the hero of the 1938 state tournament, when he led a gallant Reed Custer High school team from Braidwood, coached by Louis F. Bottino, to the final game against Dundee.

Hocking averages A-minus in the college of commerce, where he majors in accounting.

He's a Hard Worker.

Hocking has never had to neglect basketball to maintain this exceptional scholastic record. He works conscientiously daily.

He did not play at all against Ohio State, Iowa, and Minnesota, but saw brief service against Wisconsin and Michigan and longer time against Chicago when he scored three baskets. He also saw limited action against Harvard, Detroit, Notre Dame, Butler, Marquette, and Chanute Field, but his total playing time for the season is not high.

Two other Illini captains have gone down in history for a sportsmanlike reaction to a like situation. Bill Kopp, captain and full back of the 1919 championship team, was retired to the bench when big Jack Crangle, Illinois' all time full back, appeared.

Kenneth L. [Tug] Wilson, present director of athletics at Northwestern university, also has his niche in the gallery of captains who manfully took it on the chin. Wilson had won his varsity letter as center in 1919 and was elected captain for 1920. But that year Charles R. [Chuck] Carney, one of the greatest cagers in Illinois history, was a natural for center. Tug won his letter as a reserve forward, but spent a great deal of the time on the bench.

Move Over, Tug!

Landis Gives Senators 21 Night Games

Cubs, recently revealed his plan but as yet the request has not been filed with the Sox officials. After today's joint meeting both Gallagher and President-Owner P. K. Wrigley declared they would act on the matter in the near future despite the fact that news of the scheme was received coolly by the Sox front office.

Such rental as the Cubs seek would, if granted, cause no end of confusion in the arrangement of dates. Harry Grabiner, Sox vice president, said today his club would play the limit. In fact, the 14 nights have been tentatively picked. Getting in the 14 dates is such a problem that one may have to be played in mid-May when Chicago weather is treacherous, and another at the very end of the season. The Cubs probably would be satisfied if they could get rental privileges for seven games under Comiskey park lights.

Eleven of the big league clubs have lighting facilities. The have-nots are the Yankees, Red Sox, and Tigers in the American league; the Cubs and Braves in the National. The Cards and Browns play in the same park, as do the Athletics and Phillies.

Requires Schedule Revision.

Adoption of the expanded night game program threw the 1942 schedules, which had been adopted for publication at this time, completely out of kilter. The joint meeting was no sooner over than President Ford Frick took the National league owners to another hotel where they pitched right into the job of revision. President Will Harridge of the American league went to Washington with Griffith, presumably to help supervise the complicated job occasioned by the Old Fox's special 21 game grant.

To make it a bit easier to clean out spots for the added night games the magnates agreed to remove the restrictions on Sunday double headers. The rule has been that no synthetic double headers could be played before the fourth Sunday after the season's opening, except in St. Louis where they were permissible a week earlier. The magnates also decided that no inning of a night game could be started after 12:50 a. m. war time. The former rule was 11:50 standard time, which meant the same thing in most cities.

All-Star Games Official.

The joint session made official the plan to put on two instead of one All-Star game between the two leagues. The first will be played Monday, July 6 in Brooklyn where originally awarded, or in the Polo grounds which has a greater seating capacity and hence would provide more dollars for the Bat and Ball fund. The other one probably will be a night game July 7 either in Cleveland or Comiskey park. Because of two such attractions the clubowners decided that pitchers can go five innings instead of a limit of three as in the past, but that a pitcher who works in the first game cannot be used in the other.

In their separate meetings yesterday the two leagues decided to adopt a voluntary salary allotment of 10 per cent plan for the purchase of defense bonds and stamps. It was to include everybody connected with a big league ball club. At today's meeting Landis, his secretary-treasurer, Leslie O'Connor, the two league presidents, and all club officials, agreed to do their mentioned bit. But they decided they didn't have the authority to force it on all baseball employés.

The delegates also were unanimous about doing what they could to assist in sports activities at military camps even to the extent of exhibition games. The individual clubs will make arrangements, possibly thru camp morale officers or the USO for free admission of the military to games during the season.

N. U. WRESTLING TEAM TO INVADE EAST FOR 3 TESTS

Northwestern university's wrestling team will leave tomorrow for matches with Franklin and Marshall on Friday, the Navy on Saturday, and Washington and Lee on Monday. Nine men, including three lettermen, four sophomores, and two reserves from last year, have been selected by Coach Wes Brown for the trip.

Ivy Strengthens N. U.

In two previous matches the Wildcats defeated Bradley Tech, 30 to 0, and lost to Chicago, 22 to 10. The three veterans are Myles Taylor, 128 pounds; Ed McMillan, 155 pounds, and Dick Trubey, 175 pounds. The latter won 9 out of 10 matches last year and has won both of his matches this year by falls.

The Wildcats have been strengthened by the addition of Bill Ivy, a sophomore who has just completed his year of freshman residence. Ivy, a graduate of Bowen High school, is regarded as a promising heavyweight candidate. He won his numerals as a tackle on last fall's freshman team.

Other Sophs Good, Too.

Other sophomores include Ned Nethercott, 121 pounds, who also has won both of his matches by falls this year; Maury Stern, 145 pounds, and Dave Allen, 165 pounds. Other squad members are Herb Weinstein, 136 pounds, and Ed Wojciechowski, 165 pounds.

WAR BOARD TIES SPORT VALUE TO CIVILIAN MORALE

Rubber to Be Released on That Basis.

BY HAL FOUST.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 3.—The relative value in civilian morale of rubber expenditures in various sports is being weighed by the war production board, it was learned today. The deliberations include debates on such questions as the following:

Will a pound of rubber made into golf balls furnish as much fun for the public as a pound of rubber made into basketball innards?

Would it be less of a strain in the family's happiness for Brother Bill to lose his tennis ball or for Sister Norma to give up her bouncing ball for playing jacks?

Continue Production for Army.

How many football bladders, requiring how many pounds of crude rubber, are needed to keep the youth of American healthy and the gridiron fans contended?

The army and navy personnel don't have to worry about the outcome of these deliberations. It's been decided that factories can continue to produce rubber sports equipment for the armed forces.

Crude rubber allocations for sporting goods for civilians have been halted temporarily. Stocks of these goods in dealer and factory inventories are ample for the time being, a spokesman for WPB said this afternoon, and under advisement are various proposals for resuming controled production of some of the articles.

Golf, Tennis May Suffer.

The best speculation is that golf and tennis are more likely to suffer from the rubber shortage than football, basketball, volleyball, or baseball. The civilian morale experts particularly favor the spectator sports. The average golfer, in plunking valuable rubber into water hazards, doesn't furnish fun for any one but the caddies and his opponents. The baseball player who socks a bit of rubber over the left field wall is thrilling thousands.

The games with bladder balls, mainly football and basketball, are going to be continued thru the war notwithstanding the rubber shortage, according to best informed forecasters on the WPB.

DICK TRACY—Hot Spot

ACME STEEL CO. REPORTS HIGHER EARNINGS IN '41

Quarter's Income Equal to $2.32 a Share.

Acme Steel company's earnings in the quarter and 12 months ended last Dec. 31 were larger than in the corresponding periods a year earlier, C. M. MacChesney, first vicepresident and secretary, reported yesterday. Acme is one of the nation's largest producers of electrogalvanized strip steel, and it also makes numerous specialty products, including barrel hoops, box strappings, and related items. Its headquarters is in Chicago.

C. M. MacChesney.

Fourth quarter net income rose to $762,836, equal to $2.32 a share, from $462,340, or $1.40 a share, in the last three months of 1940. The 12 month profit was $3,166,346, equal to $9.65 a share, compared with $2,110,432, or $6.43 a share, in the preceding 12 months. Gross earnings for the year exceeded 8½ million dollars against about 3½ millions in 1940.

Make Provision for Taxes.

The company made provision for $3,930,181 of excess profits taxes and $1,422,198 of normal and surtaxes for 1941. Comparative tax figures for the preceding year were not given.

Atlas Powder company, in a statement for the year ended Dec. 31, disclosed that it made provision for a fourfold increase in federal taxes and still had a larger profit than in 1940. Net income rose to $1,904,601, equal to $6.13 a share, from $1,784,429, or $5.71 a share, in 1940.

Vultee Aircraft, Inc., reported net profit for the fiscal year ended Nov. 30, 1941, was $3,100,735, equal to $2.95 a common share, compared with $374,457 or 36 cents a share in the preceding fiscal year. Earlier a preliminary report had estimated profit at $2,900,000, or $2.75 a share.

Tom M. Girdler, chairman, and Richard W. Millar, president, said the year's net sales were $34,057,207, against $5,606,410, an increase of 508 per cent. Federal income tax provision was $2,970,000, against $115,000 in the 1940 year. Girdler became chairman and chief executive officer of Vultee on Dec. 19.

Gains for Purity Bakeries.

Both sales and net earnings of Purity Bakeries corporation, Chicago, and its subsidiaries, increased during the fiscal year ended Dec. 27, Lewis A. Cushman, president, told stockholders in his annual report. Net income climbed to $1,429,379, equal to $1.85 a share on the common stock, from $1,148,505 or $1.49 a share in the preceding year. Sales aggregated $41,414,151, Cushman said, with both increased poundage and higher prices contributing to the gain over the preceding year's sales of $47,334,908.

Capital expenditures in the year for improvements and additions to baking and distributing facilities approximated $1,027,000, he said.

KNUDSEN MAKES INSPECTION TOUR OF CHICAGO AREA

Lieut. Gen. William S. Knudsen, new chief of arms production for the army, made an inspection tour of Chicago area arms plants yesterday with Col. Donald Armstrong, deputy chief of the Chicago ordnance district.

It was Knudsen's first visit to Chicago since his appointment to his present post. He will inspect other plants in the area today with ordnance officials. He will hold a press conference at 8:30 o'clock this morning before starting his inspection trip.

Illinois Central Reports Gain in Operating Income

Net operating income of the Illinois Central Railroad system increased in December to $2,976,858 from $2,698,860 in the last month of 1940, the road reported yesterday. For all of 1941 net operating income, before bond interest and other fixed charges totaled $26,012,414, compared with $1,865,461 in 1940. Railroad earnings reported yesterday follow:

SPECIAL 15 CENT DIVIDEND VOTED BY BUTLER BROS.

Sales Reach New Record Above 100 Millions.

A special dividend of 15 cents in addition to a quarterly payment of the same amount was authorized yesterday by directors of Butler Brothers while Thomas B. Freeman, president, announced that 1941 sales exceeded 100 million dollars for the first time in the merchandising company's 65 year history.

The largest wholesale distributor of dry goods, variety and general merchandise to independent retailers, Butler Brothers is celebrating the anniversary of its founding in Boston in a 16 by 40 foot room. The observance coincides with the annual spring market season.

Payment to Be March 1.

From Chicago headquarters of the company, Freeman said the two 15 cent dividends will be paid March 1 to common stockholders of record Feb. 13. Last year four payments of 15 cents each were made. He said the regular quarterly dividend of 37½ cents a share on the preferred stock was also voted.

Freeman said the company this year will not issue a preliminary report of 1941 earnings but will make an audited statement after Feb. 25. Sales in 1940 totaled $80,887,182.

Growth of the Firm.

Tracing the growth of the company, Freeman said that from the small Boston establishment with less than $5,000 in assets the organization now has more than 42 million dollars in assets, complete wholesale units in Chicago, New York, St. Louis, Baltimore, Minneapolis, Dallas, and San Francisco, and distributes more than 40,000 items. The original sales force of five, including the three Butler brothers—Edward B., Charles, and George O.—has expanded to 6,500.

Edward B. Butler established a Chicago branch at 202 West Randolph street in 1879. He promoted the idea of variety store merchandising of 5 cent articles. The company later developed its own chain of variety and dry goods stores and a group of independently owned stores which it serves.

BONDS GO THRU ANOTHER SESSION OF IDLE DRIFTING

New York, Feb. 3 (AP).—The bond market drifted idly in a narrow range again today after an early attempt to rally the rails fizzled and increased offerings appeared in other groups. Four of the five major groups in the Associated Press averages ended unchanged.

Making moderate progress in the general corporate list were Nickel Plate 4½s and 5½s, respectively, Texas corporation 3s, Portland General Electric 4½s, and Lehigh Valley 4s. Hanging back for small losses or ending unchanged were Missouri Pacific 5s, Northern Pacific 4s, Republic Steel 4½s, United States Steel 2¾s, Santa Fe 4s, Delaware and Hudson 4s, and American Telephone 3s.

United States government loans followed the same narrow pattern.

WHITE MOTOR.

Do you have a brief review of the White Motor company? I am particularly interested in its earnings and government orders.—B. N. P.

Answer: The White Motor company, Cleveland, O., specializes in the manufacture of heavy duty trucks. Lighter types and coaches and buses also are produced.

White Motor received large truck orders from the United States and British governments in 1940 and last year a substantial portion of its manufacturing facilities was given to national rearmament and war orders. Unfilled orders for trucks and spare parts totaling about $46,000,000 were carried over from 1940 and delivery schedules run into this year. In mid-1941, the company also reported a large backlog of civilian orders. Last July the company received war department and army contracts for more than $7,000,000.

In the first six months of 1941, net profit was $791,355, or $1.26 a common share, based on 625,000 shares outstanding. This compared with $743,529, or $1.19 a share, in the same 1940 period. The common stock, $1 par, is the company's only capitalization. Earnings for recent years follow:

1939	23,512,020	107,473	0.17
1938	19,393,219	*1,825,275	....
1937	30,684,564	65,854	0.11
1936	28,769,876	681,628	1.09

*Loss.

Dividends totaled $1.25 a share in 1941. Nothing had been distributed since 1934. At the end of last June, White Motor had total assets of $32,196,000 and net working capital of $15,601,000.

MAPLE LEAF.

Have you any information on Maple Leaf Aircraft corporation, a Canadian company? Is this a new company? What stock is outstanding?—F. L. N.

Answer: The Maple Leaf Aircraft Corporation, Ltd., was organized early in 1941. The company has a factory at Lucknow, Ontario, about 125 miles from Toronto. Maple Leaf manufactures training and civilian airplanes and parts for the British "Hurricane" fighting plane. The company has developed a low wing military trainer constructed of plastic plywood.

No earnings have been reported. The company has 795 shares of 6 per cent preferred stock, $10 par, and 138,675 shares of common stock outstanding. Its authorized capitalization is 10,000 shares of preferred and 400,000 shares of common.

Chicago Business During 1941 Improves in Nearly All Lines

Gains over 1940 were recorded last years in all except two types of Chicago business activity covered by the Chicago Association of Commerce's monthly and annual business survey, its final report for 1941 showed yesterday. Outstanding were an increase of nearly 10 million dollars in new building construction, a sharp rise in the factory pay roll index, a rise of nearly 4 billion dollars in bank clearings, and a jump of almost 33 per cent in pig iron production in the Chicago district.

An early rise in sales of new automobiles more than offset the sharp slump resulting late in the year from war restrictions on production of cars. Department store sales in the city exceeded 1940 by about 11 per cent.

Only the number of live stock slaughtered and the dollar volume of stock and bond sales on the Chicago Stock exchange showed declines under corresponding 1940 figures.

RAILROADS, STATE BODY MARK TIME IN FARE BATTLE

Carriers Say National Program Is Periled.

Railroads and the Illinois Commerce commission marked time yesterday in their controversy over the 10 per cent fare increase scheduled for Feb. 10. The railroads propose to increase intrastate fares in conformance with authority granted nationally by the Interstate Commerce commission at Washington.

The Illinois agency, however, has announced it would not grant the increase within the state because Illinois law sets the maximum rate at 2 cents a mile.

Held Result of Arms.

Hugh W. Siddall, chairman of the Western Passenger association, said the belief among railroad executives is that the Illinois agency should grant the increase because it is a result of the general defense activity.

The national agency, in granting the increase, recognized that railroad expenses have been raised by higher wages and higher costs of materials, railroad men said. In estimating the amount of money needed to offset the increased costs it was assumed that each state would produce its proportionate share.

Program Endangered.

If the Illinois commission blocks action within this state the national program for recovering at least part of increased railroad costs would be put out of balance, it was said.

The railroads are preparing their commutation tariffs on the basis of a 10 per cent increase. The new rates are to be filed with the Illinois commission Friday, to become effective on March 8.

Meantime the Illinois commission is meeting in Springfield and has taken no new action, its Chicago office reported.

MOVE TO UNIFY DEFENSE HOUSING PROGRAM OF FWA

Washington, D. C., Feb. 3 [Special].—Unification of the nation's defense housing program was announced today by the Federal Works agency under a new plan of operations by which construction of homes for war workers become the direct responsibility of three FWA officials in Washington and six regional representatives, each directly accountable to the administrator for getting done in record time the jobs assigned to them.

Of the 3,865 new homes to be financed with funds made available under the new Lanham act, 2,025 will be the personal responsibility of Neal A. Melick. Responsibility for building the remaining 1,840 is vested in William P. Seaver. Rufe B. Newman Jr., special assistant in charge of construction, FWA, is responsible for constructing 42,000 prefabricated, demountable houses with 153 million dollars allotted from the President's emergency fund for temporary defense housing.

According to Baird Snyder III., assistant FWA administrator, the several diversified housing programs of USHA, PWA, and other agencies building for FWA thus are brought together into one FWA program.

2 UTILITY STOCK ISSUES ARE FILED FOR PUBLIC SALE

Stocks of two public utility companies were filed yesterday for public offering with the Securities and Exchange commission in Washington, D. C.

Union Electric Company of Missouri filed a registration statement covering proposed sale thru Dillon, Read & Co. of 2,695,000 shares of no par common stock. Offering is to be made for the account of the North American company, a holding company.

Atlantic City Electric company registered 62,000 shares of $100 par cumulative preferred stock. It proposes to sell thru competitive bidding 49,000 shares and to reserve the other 13,000 shares for an exchange offer to holders of the outstanding $6 cumulative preferred stock.

Kroger Grocery Sales Rise 29.6 Per Cent Above 1941

An increase of 29.6 per cent in sales for the four weeks ended Jan. 24 over the corresponding period a year earlier was reported yesterday by the Kroger Grocer & Baking company with headquarters in Cincinnati, O. Sales for the period totaled $25,842,789 against $19,936,353 last year.

People and Events

The annual meeting and luncheon of the State Street council will be held tomorrow at the Palmer House. The part to be played by downtown Chicago in the civilian defense program will be the theme of the program. Mayor Edward J. Kelly will be one of the principal speakers. Elmer T. Stevens is president of the council.

Elmer T. Stevens.

More than 300 representatives of Chicago's investment business yesterday attended the annual winter dinner of the Bond Traders club of Chicago in the Palmer House. Thompson M. Wakeley, A. C. Allyn & Co., retiring president, inducted the following officers for 1942-'43: President, Henri P. Pulver, Goodbody & Co.; vice president, Frederick J. Cook, Clement, Curtis & Co.; secretary, Francis C. Woolard, Kneeland & Co., and treasurer, Jerry Marquardt, of Fuller, Cruttenden & Co.

John B. Hutson, president of the Commodity Credit corporation, Washington, D. C., will speak at a meeting of the Agricultural Club of Chicago Thursday noon at the La Salle hotel. A round table discussion will follow the address.

The annual meeting of the Greater Chicago Safety council will be held this evening at the Sherman hotel. George W. Elliott, general secretary of the Philadelphia Chamber of Commerce, will be the guest speaker.

Eugene F. Sitterly, president of Importers' Guide, New York, will speak before the Chicago Export Managers' club Tuesday noon at the La Salle hotel.

REJECT PLANS FOR FAST START ON CANAL LOCK

Washington, D. C., Feb. 3 (AP).—The house rivers and harbors committee rejected today a motion by Rep. George H. Bender [R., Ohio] to recommend passage of a senate approved bill to authorize immediate construction of an 8 million dollar lock on the St. Marys river canal, Michigan, for defense.

The committee voted 14 to 3 against the motion on the ground that the lock was listed in a general authorization bill not yet considered by the house.

Chairman Joseph J. Mansfield [D., Tex.] read to the committee a letter from Donald Nelson, war production chief, saying a lock was important but agreeing to leave the matter for action later.

PIPE LINE STOCK AND BONDS TO BE OFFERED TODAY

Formal offering to the public will be made today of 25 million dollars of bonds and preferred stock of the Panhandle Eastern Pipe Line company. An underwriting group headed by Glore, Forgan & Co. and Kidder, Peabody & Co. won the issues in competitive bidding Monday.

The securities consist of 10 million dollars of first mortgage and first lien 3 per cent bonds, series C, due Jan. 1, 1962, priced at 100.75 and 150,000 shares of 5.60 per cent cumulative preferred stock of $100 par value, priced at $104 a share.

John W. Houser Appointed Chief of SEC Division

Washington, D. C., Feb. 3 (AP).—John W. Houser, Long Beach, Cal., today was appointed director of the public utility division of the Securities and Exchange commission, succeeding Robert H. O'Brien, who was sworn in as a member of the commission. Houser joined the SEC as an attorney in the utility division in 1938 and became an assistant director last April.

U. S. SLOWS DOWN ITS GRAIN SALES AND PRICES GO UP

Gains Range to Slightly More Than Cent.

BY PHILIP WARDEN.

With the government "rationing" its remaining stocks of wheat and corn, grain prices in Chicago climbed ⅜ to slightly more than a cent a bushel on the Board of Trade yesterday.

Wheat advanced ⅝ to ⅞ cent a bushel with May contracts selling at the close at $1.29⅞. Corn gained ⅝ to ¾ cent; oats, ½ to ⅝ cent; rye, 1¼ cents, and soy beans, ⅞ to 1½ cents per bushel. Lard was unchanged to 5 cents per hundredweight lower.

Traders yesterday expressed the opinion that "there is more than meets the eye" in Secretary of Agriculture Claude R. Wickard's recent blast directed at those responsible for the advance in corn prices.

View of Grain Men.

"From latest estimates of government grain stocks, it appears the grain had been in such demand last month that surpluses were melting away too rapidly," officials of a large grain house commented.

"There appears to have been a mild panic in some circles that the remaining government owned stocks would have to be spread pretty thin to last thru the remaining 17 months in which farmers had been assured reasonable feed prices.

"Hence, Wickard's move to practically shut off further selling, except under certain restrictions which amount to rationing, resulted. His blast was followed in rapid succession by: [1] A decision to piece out demand with feed wheat; [2] Substitution of wheat for corn set aside for alcohol producers to use in making alcohol for munitions, only 12 days after the government officials had said 60 million bushels of corn would be available for alcohol production."

Using Record Amounts.

Corn processors have been using record amounts of the grain in recent weeks. They have been turning out corn sugars, oils, and starches as rapidly as possible to offset deficiencies in other commodities for which they can be substituted and to meet war time demands.

Processing company officials say they have been almost entirely dependent on the government for the grain. Because of the high government loan rates, movement of corn from the farm to the open market has been extremely light.

Until price control policies are clarified, agricultural spokesmen say they believe the government intends for the farmer to get a parity "income" but not parity "price" for his grain. To get this parity income, it would be necessary for the farmer to feed the grain to his hogs or live stock which are selling above parity.

SUPPLIES SHORT, HOG PRICES KEEP THEIR HIGH LEVEL

Monday's action was lacking in the hog market at the stockyards yesterday, but most classes held the sharp price gains registered then. Buyers paid an average of $12.20 for the day's supply, the same average as on Monday. Spots were 5 to 10 cents lower, including the $12.40 top which indicated a loss of 10 cents.

Slaughter lambs sold slowly at steady to 10 cents lower rates, top 95 pound Colorado stock bringing $12.40.

Best steers and yearlings were strong to slightly higher, the $14.90 top being within 10 cents of the highest sales since February of last year.

Butter and Egg Futures Decline Fraction of Cent

Futures prices of butter and eggs declined about 1/10 cent yesterday with February butter contracts closing at 33.8 cents a pound and eggs at 32.95 cents a dozen. Trading volume on the Chicago Mercantile exchange was small as traders awaited clarification of government lend-lease buying and price supporting policies. Wholesale prices of both butter and eggs were fractionally lower.

TREASURY BLOCKS FOREIGN CONTROL OF BUSINESSES IN U. S.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 3 (AP).—The treasury clamped down today on efforts of foreigners to use their "frozen" American money to get control of American businesses. A ruling required that the foreigners get special licenses before buying more than 1 per cent of any corporation's stock.

More than 5 million dollars of foreign assets have been tied up in this country by freezing orders, and since these assets cannot leave the United States they are frequently permitted to be invested here.

"The purpose of the new restriction," the treasury said, "is to make doubly sure that the treasury department may deal specifically with any attempt on the part of blocked nationals to utilize treasury licenses for the purpose of acquiring a substantial interest in American corporations."

A special questionnaire was required to be filled out whenever any frozen foreign funds are used to buy any American securities.

INDUSTRIALISTS MAP PLANS FOR BIG SCRAP DRIVE

Rosenwald Praises Harvester Scheme.

A plan for scrap collection by large industrial corporations, enlisting the aid of thousands of employés and dealers scattered thruout the country, was submitted yesterday by Fowler McCormick, president of the International Harvester company, to Lessing J. Rosenwald, chief of the War Production board's industrial conservation bureau.

Rosenwald, former board chairman of Sears, Roebuck & Co., addressed more than 500 members of the Illinois Manufacturers' association at a luncheon meeting in the Congress hotel held to accelerate the gathering of waste materials needed for the arms program.

Details of Scrap Plan.

The Harvester scrap collection plan, as described by McCormick and A. C. Seyfarth, a vice president of the company, contemplates three separate campaigns within the company:

1. A thoro salvage search thruout all the International Harvester properties, in plants, railroads, branches, and raw material works.
2. Mobilization of the company's 60,000 employés to uncover and gather scrap in their homes.
3. Enlisting the aid of International Harvester's 10,000 farm equipment and motor truck dealers to salvage needed materials on their properties and to collect scrap from farmers in their districts. The scrap would be accumulated at central points and sold to junk dealers, and farmer-customers would be credited for their share of the proceeds.

Praised by Rosenwald.

"The Harvester plan is an ingenious one which is capable of getting farm scrap flowing to industrial users," Rosenwald said. "There are from 1½ to 3½ million tons of iron and steel scrap on the farms, but we have thus far been unable to get it moving in sufficient quantities because there is no inducement for the regular junk dealers to go out and get it.

"The plan overcomes the inherent difficulty in assembling farm scrap at focal points and transporting it in carloads to the mills. I will recommend the plan to other large industrial companies."

Rosenwald emphasized the important function of the junk dealers. He said the dealers sort and clean the waste materials and prepare them for shipment. He also stressed the need for burlap bags which can be repaired or reprocessed and used for such purposes as gathering the wool clip after sheep are shorn on the farms.

More Salvage Plans.

Rosenwald also conferred with Nathaniel Leverone, Illinois state director of salvage. Leverone reported that he is negotiating with owners of abandoned strip mines in the state to gather discarded rail, railroad cars, engines and other equipment no longer in use. He also said he would confer with Mayor Kelly about collecting old cars abandoned in the city's streets.

W. Homer Hartz, president of the Morden Frog and Crossing works, was named chairman of an Illinois Manufacturers' association industrial salvage committee of 35 members. Hartz later chose 10 manufacturers to an executive committee which will press a campaign for collection of scrap in factories, public utilities, mines, and mills.

Emphasizes U. S. Need.

Speaking before the manufacturers' group, Rosenwald stressed the critical need for iron and steel, rubber, copper, paper, and other scrap.

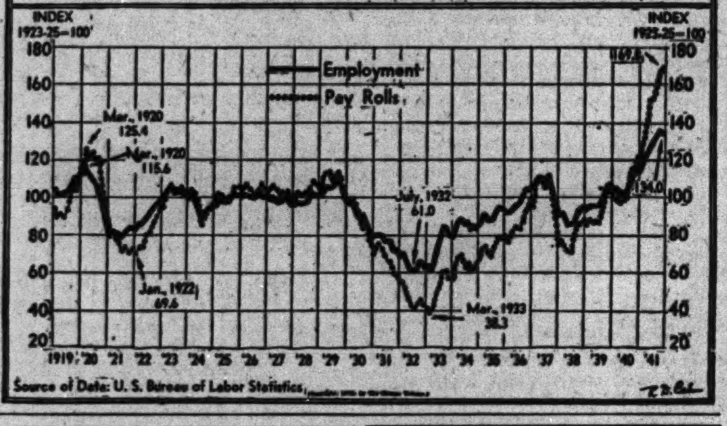
"In this shooting war our planes, tanks, ships, bombs, and guns have an enormous appetite for metal," Rosenwald said. "This appetite must be satisfied."

Work of the industrial salvage section of Rosenwald's bureau was explained to the manufacturers by George T. Weymouth, chief of the section, and by Daniel W. Gee, midwest regional director, and Eugene du Pont III., assistant regional director, of the section. Gee and du Pont have just established headquarters in Chicago, to direct the drive for the collection of obsolete industrial machinery, equipment, and other scrap. Gee formerly was chief of the reclaimed materials division of the Western Electric company's Hawthorne works.

Army Opens New Display of Articles It Needs

The army quartermaster corps yesterday opened its new procurement planning display on the 27th floor of the Civic Opera building, 20 North Wacker drive. Items ranging from uniform buttons to huge tents are included in the exhibition, designed to acquaint manufacturers with the army's needs. The display is open only to manufacturers who have registered with the contract distribution office of the War Production board.

Factory Employment and Pay Rolls



Silver Buying Policy Saved by Two Votes

Washington, D. C., Feb. 3.—The house came within two votes today of complying indirectly with Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau's expressed wish that congress wipe all silver legislation off the statute books.

During routine debate before passage of a $1,112,926,899 appropriation bill for the treasury and postoffice departments, Rep. Everett Dirksen [R., Ill.], proposed an amendment which, in effect, would nullify the silver purchasing act of 1934, but lost, 55 to 53, on a standing vote with less than a fourth of the members present.

Would Prohibit Pay.

The amendment would have forbidden the treasury to pay the salaries or expenses of personnel in the silver division. Dirksen said that Morgenthau and economists had termed the silver purchase program "a boner."

Rep. Louis Ludlow [D., Ind.], floor manager for the supply bill, contended the matter should be the subject of separate legislation.

Dirksen said the treasury was compelled to buy metal because of the 1934 act and had spent 1 billion 300 million dollars for 2 billion 477 million ounces in the last seven years.

Still Far from Goal.

The law requires the treasury to purchase silver until it reaches $1.29 an ounce or until accumulations are equal to one-fourth of the nation's monetary stocks. The world price is about 35 cents and the domestic price 71 cents.

Morgenthau testified recently that because of the law the treasury is unable to sell silver for industrial purposes, with the result that Canadian and Mexican silver is going into industrial uses and American silver into treasury hoards.

NEW DIRECTOR DENIES FRICTION PROMPTED COUP

The brokerage firm trader who walked quietly into the annual meeting of Alfred Decker & Cohn, Inc., on Monday, handed in 6,441 proxies, and won election to the board, said yesterday he approved of the management and sought the post only because his holdings were larger than those of any other individual.

The new director is Donald B. Stephens, 34 year old trader with Fuller, Cruttenden & Co. At the meeting with him were his attorneys, Albert V. Barsotti and W. J. Stevenson of the firm of Barsotti & Stevenson. Stephens replaced C. A. Gimbel, who had been a director for 15 years.

Alfred Decker & Cohn is a large manufacturer of clothing. Alfred Decker, chairman, said there had been negotiations with Stephens prior to the election. He denied existence of any friction.

Priority Rules Disturb Few Air Line Passengers

Government priorities on air travel have resulted in few inconveniences for civilian passengers thus far, L. W. King, Chicago district traffic manager for American Airlines, Inc., said yesterday. Seats have been available for all passengers on most regularly scheduled flights, he said.

FIX PRICES OF SHEETS AND PILLOWCASES UNDER PRESENT LEVEL

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 3.—Price Administrator Leon Henderson today fixed ceiling prices slightly under current market levels for cotton bed sheets, sheeting, and pillowcases.

Each sheet, pillowcase, or piece of sheeting sold on or after March 2 must bear a label containing: A statement of its type and class; if a "second," a statement of that fact, and if the piece does not meet minimum specifications, the term "substandard." Henderson urged retail customers to look for these labels and to asquaint themselves with the relative qualities of sheets.

"Today's action sets the maximum prices that may be charged by manufacturers and converters," Henderson said. "Hence, wholesalers, jobbers, and retail outlets are able to replenish their supplies of bed linens at stable prices. Any further increases at the manufacturing level will be limited to those provided in the schedule to allow for higher raw cotton costs. If raw cotton prices recede, the maximum prices of sheets and sheetings will go down also."

ALL ROCK ISLAND TRAINS TO HALT FOR TIME SWITCH

All trains on the Rock Island railroad have been ordered stopped at 2 a. m. Monday while crew members set their watches ahead an hour to comply with the nation's new war daylight saving program, J. D. Farrington, chief operating officer, said yesterday. The road is taking extreme precautions to avoid operating complications.

Crew members, in halting their trains, are directed to avoid stops at tunnels, bridges, heavy grades, and at obscure places. Engineers and conductors are to report by wire from the first open station that they have adjusted their watches.

Farrington's order provides that every one on the road even remotely connected with train operation report to his superior that he has changed his watch. Other roads are taking similar precautions.

TREASURY BARS REINSTATEMENT OF FILM CHIEF

New York, Feb. 3 (AP).—James Forrestal will continue as acting manager of the General Aniline and Film corporation, Agfa-Ansco division at Binghamton, N. Y., it was learned today.

Executives of the company, which has lost nearly a dozen key employés thru resignation of suspensions since the treasury began investigating its former connections with German industry, decided at a meeting yesterday "to try to keep on rolling under our own momentum."

Forrestal replaced Leopold Eckler, who, with four other executives, was suspended Jan. 13. The treasury order said they "personified the domination of the company by the German dye trust" [I. G. Farbenindustrie]. Nine hundred Agfa-Ansco employés had petitioned the treasury to reinstate Eckler.

Advertising Plays Vital Role in Bolstering British Morale

Nazi bombers are less than 20 minutes away from the Englishman's doorstep, but his activities go on in a defiant and confident spirit that is reflected in Great Britain's lively commercial advertising, a study disclosed yesterday.

Declaring that a nation's advertising is an index to the hopes of its people, the Lord & Thomas advertising agency paid tribute to England in a book in which examples of British advertising were reproduced to show "what life is like."

Newspaper advertisments reflecting the problems of England in its third year of war show an unshaken faith on the part of business and the public alike in Britain's future, the agency said.

"Woven deep into the ways of democracy," it said, "is advertising: a bridge between the freedom of people to buy and the freedom of people to sell. No Nazi bombing has been able to destroy that bridge in Britain.

A "Flag of Defiance."

"Every advertisment appearing there today is a flag of defiance; is testimony to someone's faith in the future; is someone's toast to victory."

The book cited England's life or death dependence on seaborne supplies, then exhibited many advertisments "to show how the ways of life go on, how much can remain of enterprise and freedom despite bombs and blockades, and how stubborn is the strength of democracy."

Some of the advertisments of manufacturers urged the public not to blame the shopkeepers who could not supply goods wanted. One soap maker, no longer able to package its product, advertised it as "unwrapped but unrivaled." Another urged each woman to lather less lavishly so others could have good complexions.

Chocolate for Children.

A chocolate processor advised adults to leave its product "for the children." A dog food maker wondered how it could assure every dog a fair supply. A candy manufacturer announced "retirement" of its regular line and substitution of a lower quality product until the war ends, asserting it would never use the old name on an inferior assortment.

Some of the displays used war terms to attract attention. In one a woman complained of "blitz feet." In contrast, many products with brand names, particularly items no longer available, bore no marks of the war and were unchanged from the form used for many years. Many companies are advertising solely to keep brand names before the public.

ANNOUNCE 1942 DISPLAY.

A 1942 exhibition of advertising art by middle west advertisers, agencies, and artists, will be sponsored by the Art Directors club of Chicago at the Art institute during March. Awards will be made for outstanding displays in nine classifications, including war art in both black and white and in color photography.

House Group Approves Big Loan for China

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 3.—The house foreign affairs committee unanimously approved today legislation extending 500 million dollars in financial aid to China. Permission will be asked of the house tomorrow for immediate consideration and passage of the measure.

The committee acted within a few minutes after hearing Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau, Secretary of War Henry L. Stimson, Secretary of the Navy Frank Knox, Secretary of Commerce Jesse H. Jones, and Assistant Secretary of State Breckinridge Long. The witnesses discussed the background of this nation's relations with China and detailed recent "political, military, and economic developments," the committee reported.

"In the opinion of the committee," its report stated, "these developments fully justify the financial aid which this joint resolution would authorize.

Advise Wide Latitude.

"It was thought desirable that the secretary of the treasury, acting with the approval of the President, should be given the widest possible latitude in arranging for the financial aid to be extended.

"The witnesses reported the various forms of credits, loans, and aid that have heretofore been extended to China and the splendid record of the Chinese government in discharging its obligations and commitments to the United States.

"The additional assistance now proposed is much more comprehensive in scope and is of a different character from the stabilization loans, Export-Import bank loans and other economic aids. The aid contemplated in the joint resolution should be regarded as the financial counterpart of lend-leasing war materials. It is designed to the same end—the successful prosecution of the war—and should be evaluated in the same terms."

Plan Victory Campaign.

CHUNGKING, Feb. 3 (AP).—Part of the new American and British loans, which the governments in Washington and London yesterday announced may total up to 700 million dollars, will be used as security for the flotation of Chinese victory bonds, a government spokesman said today.

The loans will be used abroad as well as domestically, it was said. Some money will go to meet the budget and to develop economic enterprises such as construction of new railways with rails torn up from Japanese occupied lines and opening of a number of small scale enterprises adapted to Chinese man power and machinery.

The spokesman said the flotation of a popular domestic government loan would have considerable effect on currency stabilization by absorbing large quantities of notes in circulation, one of the principal causes of high prices.

WICKARD CALLS WHEAT QUOTA VOTE FOR MAY 2

Washington, D. C., Feb. 3 (AP).—Secretary of Agriculture Claude Wickard today set May 2 as the date for a nation-wide farmer referendum on marketing quotas for the 1942 wheat crop. Quotas have been proposed, the secretary explained, because of the existence of large surplus supplies from previous years.

Wickard said the supply for the marketing year beginning July 1 was expected to reach a record level of 1 billion 428 million bushels. The United States normally requires less than 700 million bushels a year for all needs.

Quotas, which were invoked on wheat for the first time last year, must be approved by at least two-thirds of the farmers voting in the referendum. They were approved by 81 per cent last year.

Farm law authorizes a penalty on sales or use of wheat in excess of quotas.

'SUGAR STAMPS' TO BE REQUIRED UNDER NEW PLAN

Washington, D. C., Feb. 3 [Special].—"Sugar stamps" issued by the government to registered consumers will be required of all customers before retailers can make a legal sale of sugar under the new sugar rationing program nearing completion, it was learned here today.

Consumers will be expected to register by family units at local postoffices, where stamps covering the legal amount of sugar purchasable for the family over a period of a week to a month or more will be issued them, it was said.

The value of the stamp, expressed in the quantity of sugar it will enable a consumer to buy, still is to be determined by OPA, which is awaiting information from the WPB on the total amount of sugar which will be allocated for civilian purposes.

WARN INDUSTRY TO SLASH OUTPUT OF TYPEWRITERS

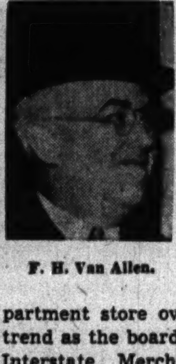
Washington, D. C., Feb. 3 (AP).—The War Production board today warned the typewriter industry, which built more than a million machines last year, to cut production substantially in 1942 and convert facilities to ordnance production.

Definite limitation orders have not yet been drafted, but officials said they were considering a quota which would reduce typewriter production by 20 to 25 per cent during the next three months compared with output during the comparable period last year. An ultimate reduction of about 40 per cent in production of standard typewriters and about 80 per cent in portables is being considered.

STORES PLEDGE FIGHT AGAINST HIGHER PRICES

War Policy Adopted by Council.

A spokesman for a large number of department store operators and apparel retailers who are in Chicago for the spring market week declared yesterday that retailers are preparing to put sales emphasis on plentiful goods as a means of keeping prices down.



F. H. Van Allen.

F. H. Van Allen, Clinton, Ia., department store owner, discussed the trend as the board of directors of the Interstate Merchants' council announced it had voted adoption by its members of a four point program designed to help in the nation's war effort.

Pledge of Retailers.

The directors pledged that the nation's retailers will:

1. Use all their facilities to stimulate the sale of defense bonds and stamps.
2. Fight rising prices.
3. Use all efforts to combat hysteria.
4. Adopt measures and precautions for the physical protection of customers and employés in case of emergency.

Van Allen, discussing the pledge to combat price increases, said: "We believe we can effectively control price rises by building up volume sales in 1942 out of goods now available. Volume retail sales are advantageous to both the merchant and the consumer. Volume in turnover makes it possible to keep down the cost of store operations."

Members in 40 States.

Van Allen is a member of the board of directors and formerly was president of the council, which includes in its membership retailers in 40 states and Canada. The council, affiliated with the Chicago Association of Commerce, is holding its semiannual meeting at the Hotel Sherman in connection with market week.

Yesterday's events for the thousands of buyers attending the spring market included a dinner-dance style show of the Chicago Millinery Creators at the Congress hotel. Last night the council held its 41st semiannual dinner at the Sherman.

The Association of Commerce reported that buyer registrations were running 11 per cent ahead of a year ago. At last year's event about 22,000 out of town merchants attended and bought an estimated 18 million dollars of goods.

Informal Lines in Demand.

The Merchandise Mart reported attendance at the apparel market in the mart was equaling or exceeding that of a year ago. Women's sportswear, including slacks suitable for wear in various types of defense work, was one of the lines being bought most heavily, mart officials said. Retailers indicated they expect the war to put increased stress on informal dress habits next summer. Cotton apparel is being bought in larger volume than clothes of any other material, it was reported. Rayon was next most popular. Little silk was available.

Clothes containing Australian or English wool were in much smaller supply than in the past, and prices were much higher than a year ago, mart officials said. However, domestic woolens were said to be only moderately higher, and manufacturers reported they have plenty in stock to supply the demand for 100 per cent woolen clothes for women until next fall, at least.

Styles and Colors Fewer.

The number of colors and styles available at the apparel market has been reduced 40 per cent as a result of a move to economize thru simplification of lines.

Exhibitors at the china, glass, pottery, and gift market at the Merchandise Mart reported varying trends in sales. Business was most active in decorative items and giftware. Sales of china and glassware were smaller than a year ago, because of active premarket buying by retailers recently. Giftware prices were reported about 10 per cent higher than a year ago.

STAGGERED WORK HOURS URGED AS TRANSIT LINE AID

Adoption of staggered working hours thruout the country is expected to be urged by transit company officials at the three day conference on war problems of the industry opening today in the Stevens hotel.

Increases in transit riding already are being felt, Charles Gordon, managing director of the American Transit association, said yesterday, and cities where arms production is booming the increases range to 60 per cent.

With working hours staggered, many more passengers could be carried without additions to present equipment which is taxed during morning and evening rush periods, officials said.

Rubber Received Despite Japs; Waste Charged to Motorists

Jones Gives Figures

Washington, D. C., Feb. 3 (AP).—Asserting that the United States still was receiving rubber imports at an average rate of 35,000 to 40,000 tons monthly, Jesse Jones, secretary of commerce and federal loan administrator declared today next year's supply would be adequate "if we're careful." He told the house banking and currency committee that the nation has received 114,000 tons of rubber from the Dutch East Indies and other sources since the Japanese attack of Dec. 7.

The United States has continued to take practically the entire rubber output of the Dutch East Indies, Jones testified. During January, he said, imports of 76,000 tons exceeded by 6,000 tons the amount allocated for civilian use "so that the stock pile actually was increased." Rubber losses in shipping in the war, he said, have amounted to 1,850 tons.

"Enough If We're Careful."

Jones doubted if rubber supplies next year would reach the normal peacetime figure but added, "Remember we've been curtailing its use, and I believe we'll have enough to get along if we're careful." He said "a good deal" of rubber was available.

[Rep. Henry B. Steagall (D., Ala.), committee chairman, said no effort was made to question Jones further, the members evidently assuming that further details as to quantity, manner of shipment, and source would fall within the category of military secrecy.]

Asked by Rep. Jessie Sumner [R., Ill.] if farmers would be able to obtain tires for farm truck operations after July 1, Jones replied "that depends on the rationing program."

Panicky, Says O'Neil

Akron, O., Feb. 3 [Special].—Tons of rubber are being wasted daily by automobile owners who are having tires recapped while the original tread still has thousands of miles of wear in it, William O'Neill, president of General Tire and Rubber company, declared today at the annual meeting of stockholders.

"There is more to conservation of rubber than the mere shutting off of manufacturing," he said. "That saves only one supply, the crude rubber in the stock pile. True conservation means making all possible use of every available pound of rubber, whether in the crude state or in a tire.

Terms Some Panic Stricken.

"Many motorists have become panic stricken in their rush to have serviceable tires recapped. Recapping should be done only when no further mileage is left in the original rubber. Fortunately we entered the war with our passenger car tires in the best condition in history.

"We made millions of tires in the last two years and can keep all American cars rolling for three years without making another new casing."

Allotment of about 40,000 tons of crude rubber a year for recapping, O'Neil said, with proper control over its use, would save more than 10 times that much rubber in tires already in use.

"This recapping must be handled by experts," he warned. "Amateurs could well waste much more rubber than they could possibly save."

O'Neil was reëlected by the directors and began his 28th year as president of the company he founded.

January War Expenditures Top 2 Billion

Washington, D. C., Feb. 3 (AP).—War costs of the treasury reached $2,100,754,425 in January, the first full month of the conflict. This was nearly 300 million dollars more than was spent in December, and represented a doubling in the speed of defense expenditures in six months.

The January total brought such expenditures in the first seven months of the fiscal year to $10,314,940,792. This was a little less than half the $23,996,525,400 which President Roosevelt predicted in his budget message would be spent this fiscal year, indicating that the rate of expenditures is in for an even greater speed-up in the next few months. In the next fiscal year the budget calls for a speed-up to an eventual rate of 5 billion dollars a month.

Counting all federal costs both for defense and civilian activities, the treasury paid out in the last seven months $14,183,827,573, took in $4,743,557,978, and had a record breaking deficit of $9,440,269,595. A year ago the deficit was $3,028,174,979.

Borrowing to pay for the deficit boosted the federal debt to $60,011,579,351 on Jan. 31.

PROF. HOHMAN NAMED CHICAGO PRICE EXECUTIVE

Elmo Hohman, professor of labor economics at Northwestern university, has been named regional price executive of the Office of Price Administration with offices at Chicago, John C. Weigel, regional OPA director, announced yesterday.

Hohman replaces George C. Benson, professor of government at the university, who has been transferred to Washington, D. C., as assistant OPA administrator in charge of field operations. Hohman previously was an appeals officer with the Illinois unemployment compensation commission.

Weigel also reported the appointment of four price executives assigned to Hohman's office. They are N. R. Coppersmith of Clayton, Mo., paper and paper products; Dayton Young, Chicago, consumers durable goods; W. H. Haywood, Washington, D. C., steel, iron, and steel products, and Charles M. Linthicum, Washington, D. C., fuel section.

FCC Wants to Give Up 'Urgent' Type of Wires

Washington, Feb. 3 (AP).—The Federal Communications commission today called a general conference of telegraph company representatives to discuss possibility of a voluntary discontinuance of the "urgent" classification for telegrams.

CHARGES BRITISH USE WAR RUBBER FOR GOLF BALLS, TOY BALLOONS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Feb. 3.—In the house of commons today John Parker, Laborite, complained that the British government, by showing preference to rubber plantation owners in Malaya, had failed to make proper provision for the production of synthetic rubber here. He complained that no real control of the use of rubber was introduced until Jan. 12, following the Japanese attack upon Malaya, and a good deal of rubber brought into this country and stored for war needs had been used for the manufacture of golf balls and toy balloons.

Parker accused Herbert Morrison, the minister of home security, of having consented to a systematic burning of dispersed scrap rubber dumps "to reduce the risks of fire during air raids." The new rubber control, he charged, was entrenched by "vested interests as strongly, if not more, than ever before."

Thomas Henry Hewlett, a Conservative who is interested in the rubber industry, said Parker made many statements "entirely without foundation." He declared he himself in 1937 had unsuccessfully attempted to prevent the export of waste tires and tubes to Germany and Italy, who were heavy buyers.

UNION CALLS OFF SLOWDOWN OF 80 AT TINPLATE MILL

The slowdown of 80 employés at the Gary, Ind., tinplate mill of the Carnegie-Illinois Steel corporation was scheduled to end today and operations were expected to return to normal. One thousand seven hundred employés had been made idle by the inaction of the 80 reckoners [reckoners count and weigh sheets of tinplate as it comes out of the mill], and important war work was reported delayed.

The steel workers' organizing committee [CIO union] agreed that members would work "normally so that an appeal for settlement of the reckoners' grievances can be taken to "top management" of the company.

Fix Prices on Petroleum Products Except at Retail

Washington, D. C., Feb. 3 (AP).—The government today fixed prices on petroleum and petroleum products, including gasoline, for all transactions except retail sales. Effective immediately, prices were frozen at levels posted for crude petroleum and the lowest quoted for petroleum products on Oct. 1, 1941. These levels already prevailed generally as a result of OPA requests and voluntary agreements with the industry.

SENATE SETS UP BILLION DOLLAR INSURANCE FUND

Protection Against Enemy Damage.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 3 (AP).—A billion dollar insurance fund—planned to ease the minds of citizens who fear enemy bombs may blast their homes and property—won speedy senate approval today. Without a record roll call, senators voted that fund and added 2 billion 500 million dollars in new borrowing authority for the Reconstruction Finance corporation.

Sen. F. T. Maloney.

Sen. Francis T. Maloney [D., Conn.], floor leader for the broad termed wartime legislation, explained that damages up to $15,000 for an individual, corporation, or local government would be provided without cost. He said that premiums may be charged for coverage above $15,000 under details to be worked out by the War Damage corporation, RFC subsidiary created by the government soon after the Japanese attacks of Dec. 7.

Wants It for Soldiers.

Remarking that property owners were getting a "free ride" on possible damages from enemy attacks, Sen. Robert M. La Follette [Prog., Wis.], suggested that congress consider similar free insurance for the men in the armed forces.

Sen. Claude Pepper [D., Fla.], proposed that a survey of possible insurance for injury to, or loss of life by civilians be included in the measure, but Maloney asserted that such a study could best be made separately and by a congressional committee.

The 3 billion 500 million dollar measure now goes to the house where an early agreement is expected. Maloney told the senate that the 2 billion 500 millions for the RFC was requested by Jesse H. Jones, federal loan administrator.

Authority Exhausted.

Jones testified before the senate banking committee that the present 7 billion dollars of lending authority for RFC and its defense affiliates was exhausted by the purchase of rubber and the entire Cuban sugar crop, loans to new aviation and armament plants and similar activities. He said the President's new airplane expansion program alone probably would require a billion dollars.

He also told the committee that many details of the war damage program must be solved later. He "guessed" that insurance compensation probably would be limited to about 75 per cent of the adjusted value of damaged properties.

The adjustments probably would be made by professionals now working for private insurance companies which do not cover war risks, he said.

Provides for Delay.

Altho protection would be afforded in Hawaii, the Philippines, Alaska, and territories and possessions of this country, the War Damage corporation could delay actual settlements under distress conditions such as enemy occupation.

As approved by the senate, the free insurance would not cover "accounts, bills, currency, debts, evidence of debt, money, notes, securities, paintings, and other objects of art."

Maloney said the legislation also gave the RFC and its defense affiliates power to condemn land and real estate needed for war purposes. He said these government corporations now were limited to purchasing or leasing these facilities and this had proved a handicap where speed was needed for war production.

Open Plant for New Power Supplies in St. Louis Area

Venice, Ill., Feb. 3 (AP).—A new generating plant, with a yearly capacity of 640 million kilowatt hours to meet the power demands of the St. Louis area under war conditions, was formally opened today by the Union Electric company of Missouri. A second unit of equal capacity will be ready for operation in about two months. The 33 million dollar expansion will increase the system generating capacity about 40 per cent.

RECOVERY TREND STILL APPARENT IN STOCK MARKET

But Buying Is Slow and Some Issues Lose.

New York, Feb. 3 (AP).—Stocks generally took a few more steps toward recovery in today's market altho buying still was restrained. Further selective advancing tendencies appeared at the opening and, altho declines were plentiful, gains predominated at the close. Dealings again were sluggish, but they topped the aggregate of the preceding session, lowest since last June.

The principal buying handicap, brokers said, was the fear Singapore would be unable to hold out in the face of the Japanese seige. On the other hand, the MacArthur stand in the Philippines was cheering. Business developments were fairly helpful considering doubts about taxes, shortages and priorities.

General Motors Gains.

The 50-cent dividend of General Motors failed to disturb this stock which ended up ⅛. Chrysler advanced a point.

Lima Locomotive and Transue & Williams edged into new high territory for 1941-'42, the former on prospects of growing railway equipment demand and the latter in reflection of 1941 net of $4.16 a share compared with 76 cents in 1940.

On the advancing side were Union Pacific, Santa Fe, United States Steel, Bethlehem, Goodrich, Sears Roebuck, International Harvester, Standard Oil [N. J.], Texas Company, Westinghouse, J. C. Penney, General Electric, Dow Chemical, American Telephone and International Mercantile Marine. Coca-Cola, Douglas Aircraft, and J. I. Case dropped about a point each.

CHICAGO LIST IRREGULAR.

Price movements on the Chicago Stock exchange yesterday failed to establish a trend with 34 of the 83 issues traded closing higher and 29 finishing lower. Volume increased slightly to a total of 19,000 shares.

Of the most active issues, Chicago corporation closed unchanged at 1¼, Swift ⅛ lower at 24⅝, Lincoln Printing off ⅛ at ½, Armour up ⅛ at 3¾, and Borg Warner ½ higher at 22⅛.

In the final half hour, after the close in New York, Commonwealth Edison and Swift each declined ⅛, while Butler Brothers preferred gained ¼.

The Office of Price administration yesterday advanced the ceiling price for wool tops 4.8 cents a pound to $1.327, and for grease wool 7.7 cents to $1.035. Price Administrator Leon Henderson said the change was necessary to comply with provisions of the new price control act covering agricultural commodities. There is no change in maximum prices set in recent amendments covering South American wool, domestic pulled wools, or certain tops and yarns used in fabrics for the army.

In the commodity futures market, cotton rallied after a week of declining to close 45 to 75 cents a bale higher. Cocoa lost .02 to .06 cent a pound. Santos coffee was unchanged to .1 cent lower. Rio coffee, grease wool, and wool tops were unchanged.

ENOUGH WELDERS RETURN TO KEEP WAR PLANT BUSY

Union Hints 'Secret Plan' to Enforce Strike.

Tacoma, Wash., Feb. 3 (AP).—Puget Sound shipyard officials reported today that enough welders were back at work to insure continuous production of the multimillion dollar war program.

R. J. Lamont, president of the Seattle-Tacoma Shipbuilding corporation, said the back to work march in Seattle yards had reach such proportions the management did not care whether more came back or not.

Seattle welders said they would adopt secret new strategy in the walk out, but Tacoma welders asserted they did not know of such a plan.

FBI Action Is Hinted.

Lamont commented, "When a man says he has a secret plan for bucking the United States government I'm not much interested in it. I think the FBI might be."

Welders made no comment on a statement issued yesterday by defense officials who branded the walkout "an attempted impairment of the war effort."

The walkout began last Friday. More than 1,100 were idle in Tacoma and about 500 in Seattle. The welders walked out demanding a union independent of the AFL. They claimed their members were forced to hold cards in various AFL unions because of work at different plants. Defense officials in Washington, while assailing the walkout, said the welders' demand had considerable merit.

False Information Changed.

Charles Brinkeroff, leader of Tacoma welders, said "shipyard officials are putting out false information on the number of men at work in Tacoma yards."

"One of our friends walked thru the plant today and failed to see a single welders' arc. We are staying away from the yards because we fear violence might break out. The AFL has its goons on the jobs inside the plant."

The walkout followed dismissal of a few welders for nonpayment of dues to the AFL union. The shipyard has a closed shop with the boilermakers who do all the hiring.

UNION DISPUTE SEEN AS THREAT TO DETROIT MEAT

Detroit, Mich., Feb. 3 (AP).—Refusal of union butchers to handle cattle at one unit of the Detroit stockyards raised fears today that a labor dispute there might result in curtailment of the city's meat supply.

Members of the AFL Butchers' union at the Michigan Live Stock exchange, a farmers' coöperative, refused to butcher 800 head of cattle after AFL Teamster union pickets appeared at the gaes.

Victor C. Swearingen, state labor mediator, said the two other stockyard firms planned to handle exchange cattle but that the teamsters might then extend their picketing. Eighty per cent of Detroit's meat is supplied by the three yards.

The Teamsters' union demands recognition of its members among employés and unspecified wage increases for some workers.

STEEL INDUSTRY EMPLOYMENT UP TO 646,000 MARK

New York, Feb. 3 (AP).—Employment in America's steel industry rose to a total of 646,000 in December from 645,000 a month earlier, the American Iron and Steel institute reported today. In December of 1940 the total was 585,000.

Steel payrolls in December aggregated $117,221,000, boosting the 1941 total to $1,301,348,000, the institute said, for an increase of nearly 35 per cent over the 1940 total of $960,856,000. The December, 1940, figure was $91,233,000.

Wages in the industry averaged 99.9 cents an hour in December compared with 99 cents in November and 86.5 cents a year earlier.

STRIKE NOTICE FILED BY STEEL COMPANY UNION

Detroit, Mich., Feb. 3 [Special].—Notice that a strike is threatened at the Great Lakes Steel corporation mill in Ecorse was filed with the state labor mediation board today by local 1299 of the Steel Workers' Organizing committee [CIO]. The notice stated that aid of the state board was requested in preventing a strike. It charged that "numerous violations of the contract" had occurred.

The mill had several wildcat strikes prior to the attack on Pearl Harbor, but there had been no indication of further trouble since America entered the war. The plant makes high tensile steel for tanks and other war armaments.

Union to Ask Pay Boost of 3 Big Electrical Firms

New York, Feb. 3 (AP).—The United Electrical, Radio, and Machine Workers' of America [CIO] said today that it would ask for union-security provisions and a 12½ cent an hour wage increase for employés of three electrical manufacturing firms in annual contract negotiations. The companies are General Electric, Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing, and General Motors. The provisions would affect 200,000 workers.

Hosiery Makers, Workers Open Wage Negotiations

Philadelphia, Pa., Feb. 3 (AP).—Negotiations for wage increases for 50,000 hosiery workers in the nation were opened today by representatives of the Full Fashioned Hosiery Manufacturers association and the American Federation of Hosiery workers. A previous agreement provides for such negotiations if increased living costs warrant it.

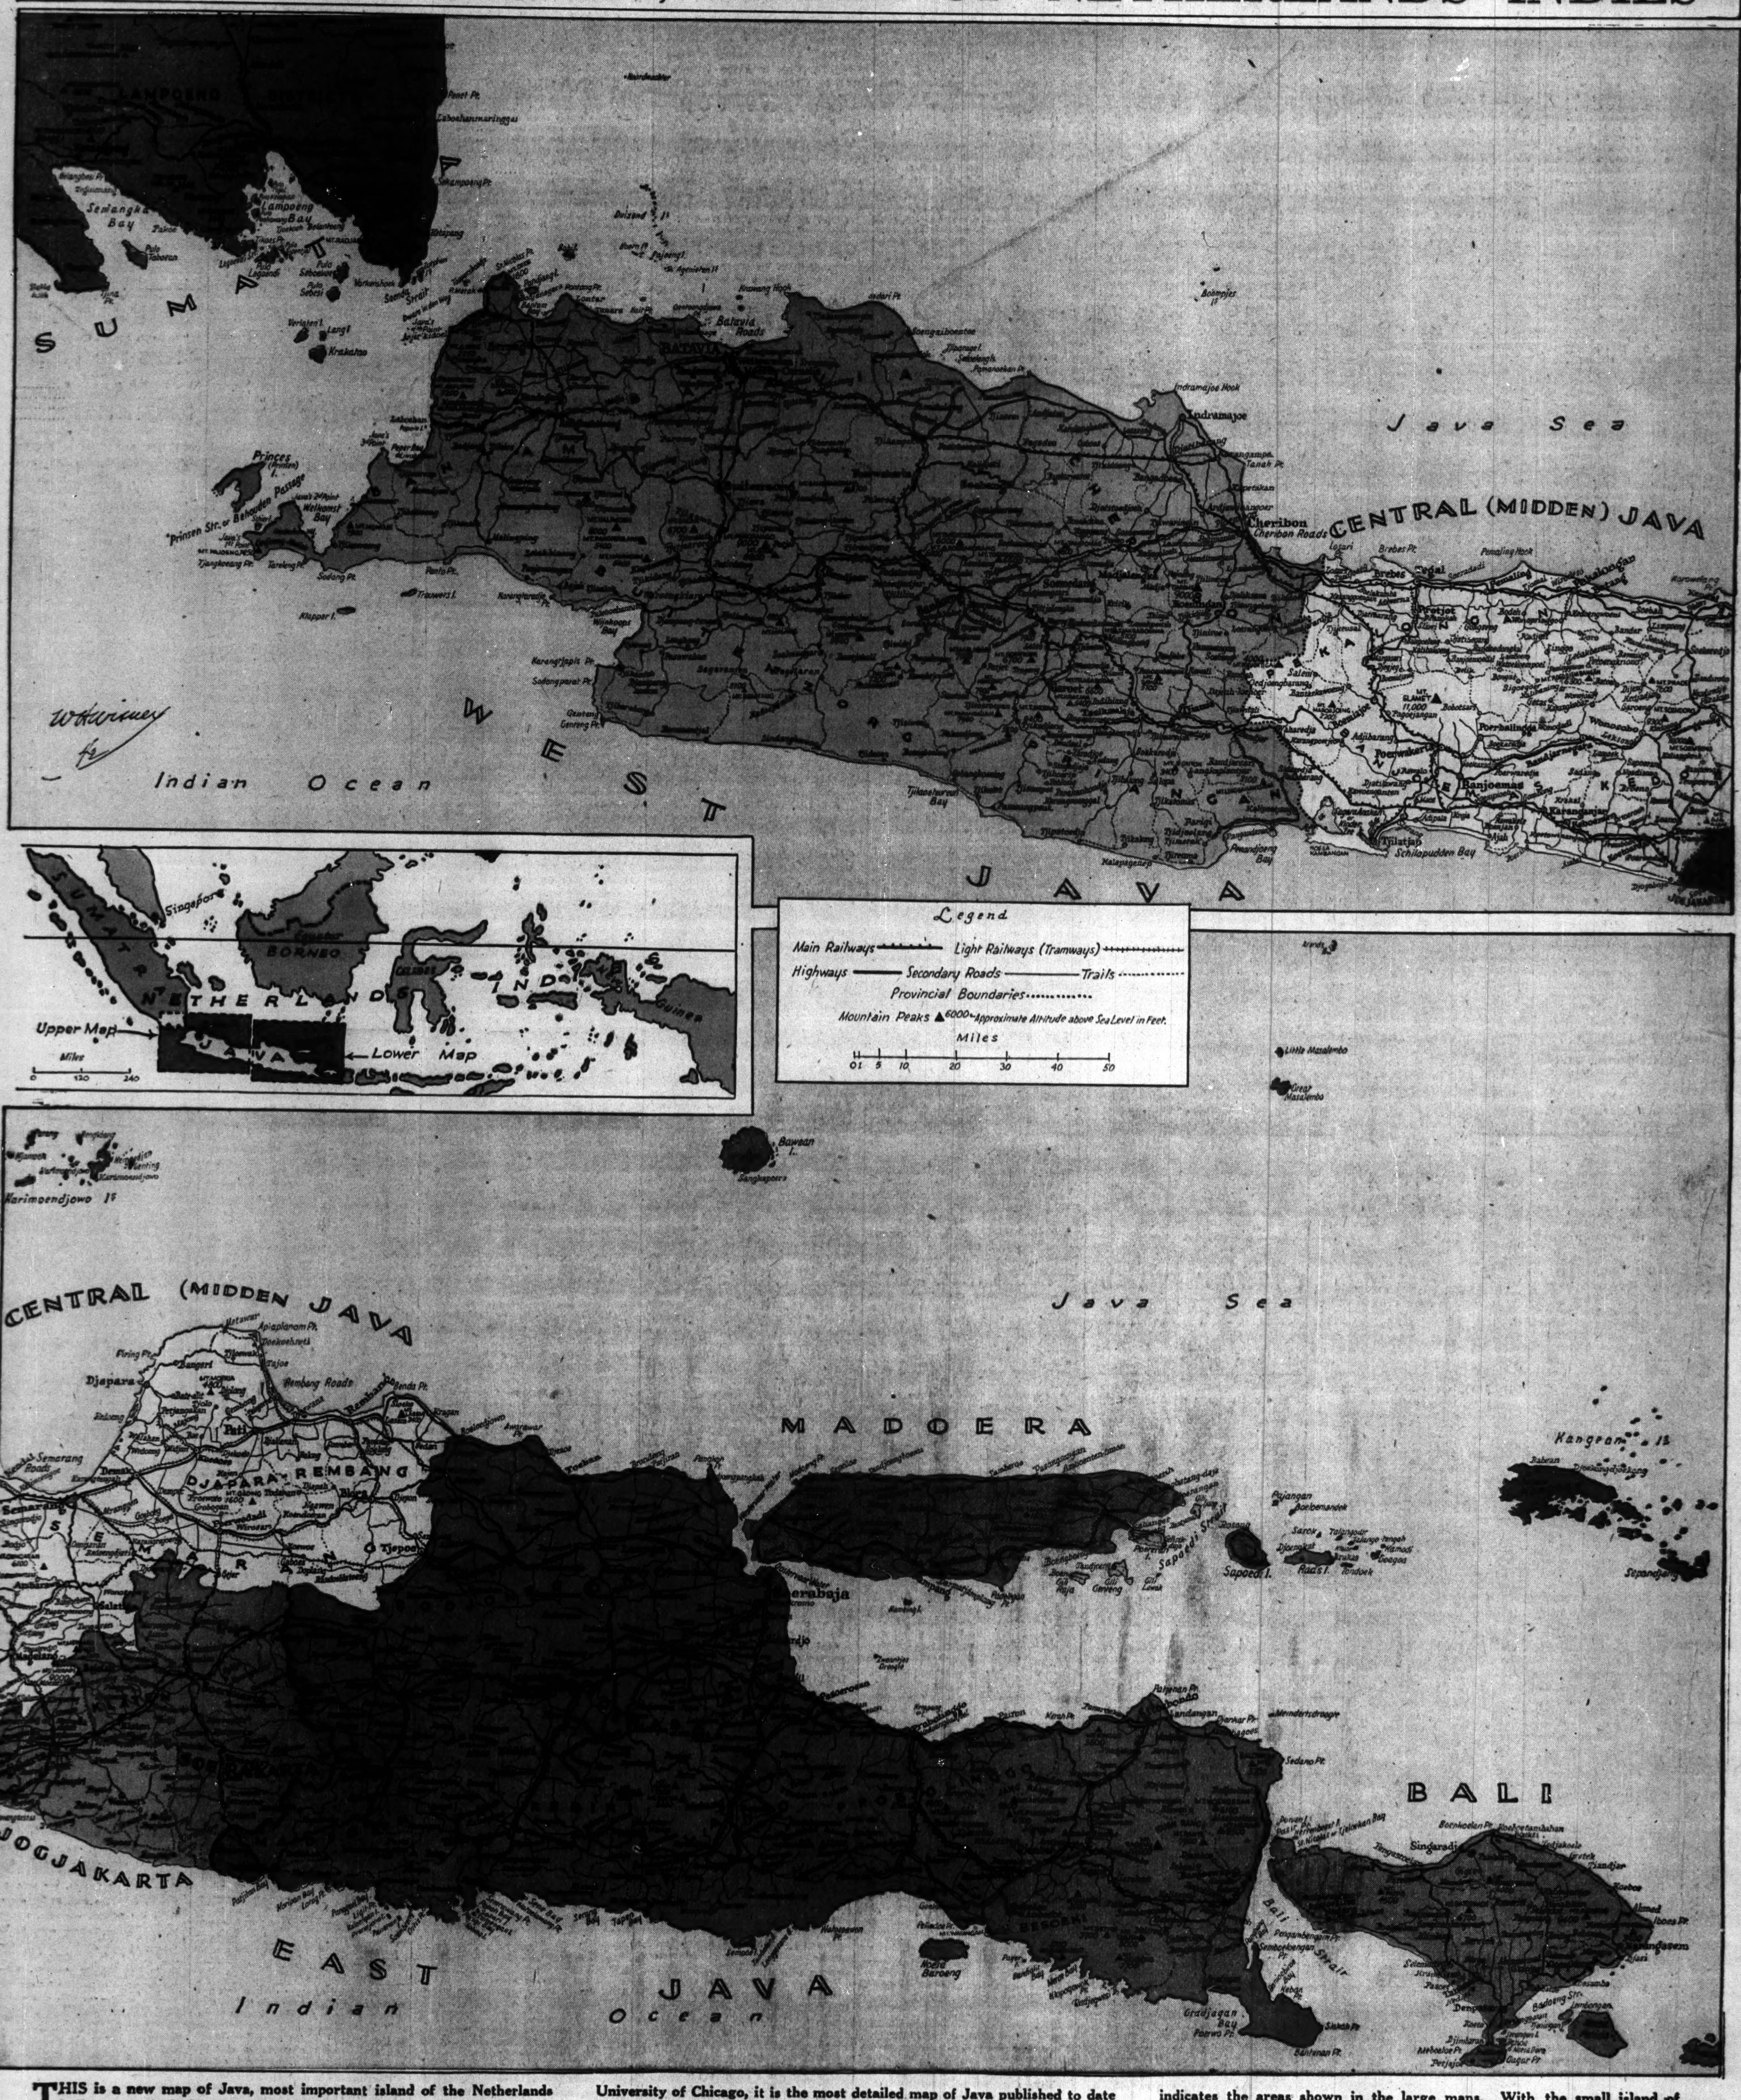
WAR MAP OF JAVA, HEART OF NETHERLANDS INDIES



THIS is a new map of Java, most important island of the Netherlands Indies and principal base of opposition to the Japanese in Australasian waters. Adapted from a Dutch map provided thru the courtesy of the University of Chicago, it is the most detailed map of Java published to date in this country. Because of the shape of the island it was necessary to map it here in two sections. The inset map of the entire Netherlands Indies indicates the areas shown in the large maps. With the small island of Madoera, Java covers 51,032 square miles and has a population of roughly 42 million. Batavia, capital of Netherlands Indies, is Java's largest city.
